1,000 MEASURES ARE WIPED OUT IN SPRINGFIELD

Assembly Ready to Quit Friday.

Bills in Graveyard

Among important measures killed in legislature yesterday at Springfield were the following:

Cermak's Chicago licensing bill for revenue relief; also his bill to abolish elective boards of Cook County assessors and reviewers and substitute appointive board of three to do work of both.

School boards $50,000,000 building bonds bill.

Automobile drivers' license bill.

Women's 8-hour bill.

Women's jury bill.

The Chicago real estate board's tax reform bills.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Clearing the decks for a Friday windup, the house and senate tonight committed wholesale slaughter on their own bills. The house tabled about 1,000 measures—all house bills left on the calendar or in committee. The senate tabled about 250 in the same classification. All left on the calendars now are bills passed by one house awaiting action in the second.

Included in these thrown into the discard are the revenue programs of Mayor Cermak of Chicago and the Chicago Real Estate board. Gone, too, are the pair of measures which would allow the Chicago board of education to issue $50,000,000 in twenty year bonds for a two year building program.

Affects Board of Assessors.

The Cermak bill is the measure to wipe out the elective boards of Cook county assessors and reviewers and substitute an appointive board of three to do the work of both bodies.

This bill was accounted dead weeks ago. The senate revenue committee made announcement two weeks ago that it would not be considered at this session in the expectation that the governor would call the legislature back for an emergency session on revenue.

In the senate the wiping out of the bills expunged the second income tax bill which Senator Lantz [Rep., Congerville] introduced a few days ago at the time the Democrats introduced the Cermak bill allowing the city to license various businesses and manufacturers. This licensing bill was killed this afternoon by direct vote in the senate, being short eight votes of a majority of 26.

Real Estate Board's Bill.

The real estate board's program, which embraces the proposals for a bond issue on the 1930 taxes, semi-annual payment of taxes and extending the penalty dates on delinquent taxes, was the closest of all the revenue measures toward the goal. They had got on second reading in the house after the revenue committee had given a recommendation that they do pass, but without commitment.

Amendments to these bills were put in with a view of making them satisfactory to all groups, but criticism was raised that they left the situation somewhat in a muddle. This was said to be due to the fact that it was attempted to epitomize in eleven bills changes which originally were set forth in approximately 100 bills which the house refused to allow introduced two weeks ago on the ground that it was too late in the session and that it would be a useless expenditure of money to print these bills.

Igoe Bills in Senate.

On the senate calendar three house bills by Igoe referring to personal property tax are on second reading and are to be put to a vote in the next two days. One allows the state tax commission to make out a new schedule of personal property. Another provides that delinquent personal property taxes shall pay one per cent interest per month, as does general property tax, and the third requires the assessors to furnish schedules by mail or otherwise.

The school board bills were taken up by the house committee on education today, which reported them out after the plea had been made they must reach the floor immediately if they were to have any chance. On that basis alone and without any discussion

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Night Crowd Sees Robber Shot in Loop

Attempting to hold up a motorist in the shadows under the elevated structure at State and Lake streets last night, John Stone, 21 years old, was disarmed by his intended victim, pursued from Lake to Randolph streets by a policeman, who fired several shots, and fell, wounded, in the arms of another policeman in front of the Oriental theater. Many loop pedestrians witnessed the shooting and capture.

The young robber, who lives with his father-in-law, Joseph Drysdale, at 1217 South Kildare avenue, took Drysdale's pistol early in the evening and set out in search of loot, according to his story.

At Lake street and Wabash avenue he encountered Dr. Nathan Lieberfard, a dentist of 2204 North Kedzie avenue, with offices at 30 North Michigan. Having attended a social affair in the Masonic temple, Dr. Lieberfard had gone to the Wabash avenue corner alone to get his car.

Robber Climbs in Car.

As the dentist stepped into the machine, parked in Lake street, facing west, Stone climbed in beside him with gun drawn and commanded him to drive slowly, turning left into the first alley. The alley runs just behind the Chicago theater.

Instead Dr. Lieberfard stepped on the accelerator and sped straight on to State street, when Policeman Peter Gunkel was directing traffic. Sighting the blue uniform, the dentist jammed on his brakes and, turning on the gunman, seized the weapon. The pistol went off, sending a bullet into the seat cushion.

A Thrilling Chase.

The robber sprinted south in State street with Gunkey twenty paces behind, firing as he ran. The fugitive darted from one side of street to the other. At Randolph street he was hit by a bullet in his shoulder.

The bandit turned west in Randolph street and, in front of the Oriental, was blocked by the crowd pouring out of the movie. Policeman Joseph Casey saw him stagger, threw his arms about him, and held him until Policeman Gunkel, the dentist, and the throng which followed the pursuit came up. Upon confessing the robbery at the detective bureau, Stone was taken to the Bridewell hospital.

In another loop robbery early this morning Joseph A. Dunn, official of the Underwood Typewriter company and a resident of the Parkway hotel, was beset by two Negroes soon after he left the Hamilton club, 20 South Dearborn street, and on Monroe street, between La Salle and Wells, was forced into an alley, where they robbed him of $250 cash, a $100 watch, and a $250 ring. One Negro carried a razor.

CARRY YOUR BABY IN A MARKET BASKET, UNCLE SAM ADVISES

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—Vacationing mothers were advised today by the children's bureau to take their babies along in market baskets.

In a series of suggestions for summer vacation care of infants, the bureau sugested that a market basket arranged like a bed is more comfortable than a mother's arms.

Other sugegstions were to avoid overclothing the baby, to let him go barefooted when taken on long journeys, and not to allow strangers to hold him.

Cider Turns to Hard Guy on Dry Visit

Buffalo, N. Y., June 16.—[Special.]—Next Christmas promises to be more joyful to Eugene Daul of Tonawanda than was the last.

For just as the last holidays were approaching federal agents swooped down on Mr. Daul and seized 99 barrels of cider which Mr. Daul was saving for the moistening of mince pies and plum pudding, mayhap for the innocent moistening of Mr. Daul's friends' throats.

Daul vainly protested that the cider was nonalcoholic; that the "sweet" juice was as innocuous as before it had been squeezed from the blushing Northern Spies.

Takes Case to Court.

The agents lugged the barrels off to a government warehouse and Mr. Daul went into court. He set up the legal claim that the agents had made no chemical analysis of the liquor and had no proof of alcoholic content.

The case dragged on until today, when Federal Judge Simon Adler upheld Mr. Daul's contention and ordered the return of the 99 barrels.

Old Man Nature had been at work, and what Daul got back is known in the rural districts as stone likker. While the innocent juice of the fruit stayed rent free in the cool government warehouse it had undergone a sinister change.

What Four Slugs Do.

"Maybe bad company, such as whisky or rum, contaminated Mr. Daul's innocent apple juice," said one of the owner's friends tonight. "Anyhow, it got just plain hard and tough since we last saw it. Four good slugs, and you go to bed. When you wake up you take a glass of water, shake yourself well, and are all lit again."

Mr. Daul still has a problem for next Christmastide. The federal constitution forbids him to sell or give away likker and 99 barrels is quite a large amount for one man.

Child Attacked by Dog in Critical Condition

Shirley Tulchinsky, 4 years old, 3251 West 15th street, was attacked by an airedale dog last evening while she was playing on the rear porch at her home. The animal, the property of Louis Lovitz, 3245 West 15th street, tore the skin from her scalp. She was taken to the Mount Sinai hospital, where her condition was described as critical. Policemen George Armbuster and Emil Piska of the Fillmore street station captured the dog and started with him to the pound, but shot and killed him when he attacked them.

Experts See a Revival of Prosperity

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—The gleam of returning prosperity lighted a dozen group meetings, a luncheon and a dinner that filled today's program of the Advertising Federation of America in convention here. The day's activities culminated this evening in the Hotel Astor banquet room, where Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland urged the more than 2,000 delegates to "sail forth with courage and fortitude."

ROGER BABSON.

Babson Sure of Upturn.

Signs of returning prosperity were reported by speakers at the mid-day general meeting, Roger Babson, the economist, declaring that irrespective of what happens to the stock market, business has seen its worst and that the change for the better though slow will be sure.

Mr. Babson declared "the old law of action and reaction teaches now that unparalleled prosperity again will follow the present depression."

"If there was ever a time," said Mr. Babson, "when the newspapers could perform a real service for the United States, it is today—furthermore this applies to all groups of people, bankers, manufacturers, merchants and wage earners. You need only to tell the people the simple truth. Statistics now indicate that business has seen its worst, even though the recovery will be slow.

Says Worst Is Over.

"Irrespective of what happens to the stock market in the next year, I am willing to stake my reputation, based on 30 years experience [1] that business has seen its worst; [2] that, although the change will be slow it will be in the right direction; and [3] that within a reasonable time this country will again enter a period of marked prosperity. In short, statistics today point to another period of prosperity, the same as they three years ago pointed to the present period of depression—as you go back home tell your merchants that now is the time to advertise."

Urges Stabilized System.

Stabilization of the American economic system on the basis of a higher order of self-government and industrial statesmanship was advocated by Gov. Ritchie, the Maryland executive who is among those prominently mentioned as a possibility for the Democratic nomination for the presidency.

The stabilization of industry, said Gov. Ritchie, would lead to the elimination of unemployment and would prevent recurrent periods of distress. Gov. Ritchie said that the United States as a nation and the world at large were now "on the verge of stupendous changes, in which new concepts of human relationships are to be created and from which new standards are to be evolved."

The speaker declared that the remedy for the social and economic problems is not to scrap the present order of things, "as communism and socialism would do," but "rather to examine the fundamentals of our institutions, change what has become outgrown and inadequate, but preserve that which has stood the trial of experience and the test of time."

Governor Is Optimistic.

"With from five to eight million men and women needing work and unable to find it, the thing the American people want to know is how to get a job and how to keep it," said Gov. Ritchie. "The business which reaps the profits of its labor when times are good must not turn that labor over to citizens' relief committees for food, clothing, and the necessities of life, when times are hard. If business does not realize that this problem belongs primarily to it, if business does not have nor acquire the statesmanship within itself to find this remedy, then the government, whose ultimate objective is to care for its citizenship, will seek the remedy and will find it."

The Maryland executive took an optimistic view of the future and of the ability of the American people, "commanding as they do limitless resources and possessed of great energy" to solve their problems.

Calls Newspaper Ads Best.

Sir Charles Higham of London told another group that "newspaper advertising is the way to reach the greatest number of people, effectively, profitably, and quickly," and added that the Britishers who stuck to their advertising programs are doing well. Hopeful signs also were seen by Dr. L. H. Haney, director of New York university bureau of business research, and other speakers.

CHIEF OF GANGS, AT END OF ROPE, PLEADS GUILTY

U. S. Judge Will Pass Sentence June 30.

Al Capone yesterday pleaded guilty to 5,000 crimes against the prohibition laws and admitted at the same time that he had failed to share his profits, in the form of income taxes, with Uncle Sam. His pleas were made when he was arraigned before Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

Thereby the world's most notorious gangster became a certainty for Leavenworth penitentiary, probably within three weeks, and United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson's assault on the Chicago politico-criminal alliance achieved its greatest triumph.

The abject refusal of Capone to fight against the mountain of evidence piled up by the government was regarded as his farewell to power and perhaps the actual breaking up of the entire criminal business organization he and his predecessors had built up in ten years of ruthless effort. The same evidence that could be used in his case can also be used to convict his allies, it was pointed out. Some of his leading lieutenants have already felt the lash of federal law.

To Be Sentenced on June 30.

The sentencing of Capone on his pleas of guilty to three indictments, two charging evasion of income taxes and one charging conspiracy with 68 of his men to violate the dry laws, was deferred until 2 p. m. of June 30 by Judge Wilkerson on motion of District Attorney Johnson and Defense Attorney Michael Ahern.

Considering the law in the cases, the maximum of two years that may be imposed for conspiracy, the precedents for punishment in income tax cases, and the fact that Capone is pleading guilty, it was regarded as a likelihood that Capone will be sentenced to a term ranging between two and four years in the penitentiary.

The highest income tax sentence on a plea of guilty so far imposed in the federal courts in Chicago is eighteen months.

Smiles as He Enters Court.

Capone entered Judge Wilkerson's courtroom yesterday at five minutes before 2 o'clock. He was accompanied by his lawyers, a squad of police detectives headed by Lieut. William McCarthy, and a single bodyguard, Philip D'Andrea, one of his men.

The gang chief beamed with apparent self-assurance as he seated himself at counsel's table. He wore a bilious sulphur colored suit that contrasted sharply with the somber apparel of the attorneys surrounding him.

Clerk Joseph O'Sullivan arose and intoned: "Case 23,852, United States against Alphonse Capone," repeating the same for cases 23,232 and 23,256.

Capone Pleads Guilty.

Assistant United States Attorney Dwight H. Green turned to Capone, who had stood up, and solemnly addressed him.

"Alphonse Capone," he said, "in indictment 22,852 you are charged with attempting to evade and defeat your income taxes for 1924. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," said Capone in a voice scarcely audible.

"In indictment 23,232," Mr. Green continued, "you are charged with attempting to defeat and evade your income taxes for the years 1925, 1926, 1927, 1928 and 1929, and with willful failure to file returns for the years 1928 and 1929. Do you plead guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," mumbled Capone.

Gangster Repeats Plea.

"Indictment 23,256," said Assistant United States Attorney Victor E. La Rue, "charges you with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act. How do you plead, guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," repeated Capone.

Then the crowd in the courtroom melted away as Clerk O'Sullivan called a routine case. The curious rushed after the fleeing Capone, who escaped in the freight elevator. He is free until June 30 in bond of $50,000 on both the income tax and conspiracy charges and in bail of $5,000 on his conviction and sentence to six months in jail for contempt of court, which is on appeal.

District Attorney Johnson declined to comment on his victory after the Capone arraignment, but smiled wearily, obviously relieved after a week's succession of conferences with his assistants and agents of the internal revenue department and special prohibition unit.

No statement of the evidence in the cases against Capone was made to the court yesterday, but it was disclosed that a detailed statement of the gang's activities will be made by Mr. Johnson when the chief public enemy comes up for sentence on June 30.

This evidence will include 5,000 offenses against the dry laws over a ten year period in which Capone's beer business is alleged to have brought in gross receipts of $200,000,000—said by government investigators to be the greatest prohibition conspiracy ever to be named in an indictment. The evidence will also include the alleged evasion of $215,000 in taxes on a total income of $1,038,000 for the years 1924 to 1929, inclusive.

The possible maximum sentence on the indictments to which Capone pleaded guilty is 33 years in the penitentiary for the income tax charges and a fine of $80,000, and two years in the penitentiary and a fine of $10,000 on the beer conspiracy charges.

Hopes for Concurrent Sentences.

However, the highest income tax sentence of record is that received by Jack Guzik, Capone business manager, and that was five years and a day. Guzik was convicted by a jury. Capone, it was reported, is hopeful that the sentences on his income tax and beer pleas will be made to run concurrently.

At any rate, Capone will be sent away, an objective of more than two years standing on the part of Mr. Johnson, agents of the intelligence unit under A. P. Madden, the special prohibition agents, and Washington authorities of the treasury and justice departments.

President Hoover, who acclaimed the government's income tax drive here, is reported to have been insistent on wiping out Capone and his gang.

Reasons for Guilty Pleas.

Capone would not discuss his decision to plead guilty with newspaper men, nor would his attorneys, Mr. Ahern and Leopold B. Melnick, but several reasons were ascribed for the move by federal officials. One of these is that Capone, though not broke, has experienced such financial reverses in the last year that he did not wish to stand the expense of a jury trial.

High bonds and high attorney's fees have already been paid by Capone and his leading lieutenants in the federal courts, it was pointed out, and the prohibition agents have been wrecking his finest breweries and stills.

Aside from the expense of a trial and probable appeal, the federal officials declared that Capone availed himself of the plea of guilty in an effort to obtain mitigation of sentence, because he feared to face a jury. The government has not lost a major prosecution since United States Attorney Johnson assumed office, his motto having been: "Every indictment a conviction."

Reported Planning Comeback.

There was a third reputed motive for the plea of guilty. This was that Capone, feeling himself young at 32, believes that he can still come back from Leavenworth and assume his gang leadership after he has served a term of a few years. The depression will be over, the gangster is reported to have reasoned, and there will be a letup in the present crusade of law enforcement. If he went to trial and then carried his case to the Supreme court, he might be sent away just when times begin to pick up, is the way his reasoning is reported to have run.

When Capone goes away to Leavenworth, which is expected to be soon after he is sentenced on June 30, it will be his second experience in imprisonment. Two years ago he served nine months with his bodyguard, Frank Rio, in a Philadelphia jail for gun toting.

Capone will find in Leavenworth the former chancellor of his exchequer, Frank Nitti, who went down in January to serve an eighteen month term for tax evasion. He will also find Sam Guzik, one of his retainers who took care of slot machines and booze on the near south side.

Brother May Go with Him.

Capone's brother, Ralph, may go down with him or join him a short time later. Ralph's appeal from a three year sentence for tax fraud is under advisement with the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and a decision is expected daily. There is also a good chance that Jack Guzik will join Capone before he has been grown accustomed to penitentiary fare. Guzik's appeal is also pending before the higher court.

Mr. Johnson was accompanied by Assistant Prosecutors Samuel G. Clawson and Jacob L. Grossman, besides Prosecutors Green and La Rue and by William J. Froehlich, special assistant attorney general, who has worked with the Chicago prosecutors and special prohibition agents in developing the beer conspiracy case.

Mr. Froelich telephoned to the attorney general's office at Washington immediately after Capone had pleaded guilty and informed Assistant United States Attorney General G. A. Youngquist of the successful termination of the case which Washington authorities had followed eagerly.

District Attorney Johnson will go to Springfield today to attend the rededication of Lincoln's tomb, and while there probably will be congratulated by President Hoover for proving the fallacy of a prediction which has been made for a long time—"The government will never get Capone."

GRANTED DELAY

TONY (MOPS) VOLPE.

Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday issued his formal order denying the writ of habeas corpus asked by Toney [Mops] Volpe, Capone gangster, who has been ordered deported by the department of labor for entering the country without inspection by making false and misleading statements. In making the order the judge reduced Volpe's bond from $5,000 to $3,000 and granted him a stay of 60 days to appeal to the United States Circuit court of Appeals. The judge denied the writ last Friday.

LADY ASTOR GLAD THERE'S NO OTHER WOMAN LIKE HER

LONDON, June 16.—(AP)—In opening a club for small children in East London tonight, Lady Astor declared that people differ too much individually ever to be equal, and added that she was often thankful that there was not another woman like her.

"I knew that when I first got into parliament most people hoped that I would be the first and last woman to get there, but my getting there was simply a sign of progress," she said. When she first mentioned drink in the house of commons, one would have thought she was committing a sin, Lady Astor asserted. However, no one in his right senses want his children to drink, she added.

In closing, she told how during the war she used to say to soldiers:

"Now get well or die, but hurry up and choose."

"Men are so stubborn that if you told them to die they will get well."

U. S. MAYORS SAIL FOR HOME AFTER TOUR OF FRANCE

HAVRE, France, June 16.—(AP)—America's touring mayors sailed for New York in the Ile de France today, ending a tour of France which began on May 21.

Mrs. Frank N. Padden, wife of Judge Padden, who is representing the mayor of Chicago, said the women of the party had done lots of shopping and were taking home souvenirs, such as lace bordered handkerchiefs, little blue china from Rouen, gloves, and all sorts of knicknacks.

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, in a farewell statement, declared: "Frenchmen like Americans and we like them—only I wish they could talk English."

CAPONE CALLED LAST OF GREAT GANG MONARCHS

Prison for Him Viewed as Knell of Super Crime.

Al Capone was, until the government finally found a way to head him toward prison, the personification of the gangland era that arose with the attempt to enforce the prohibition laws. His approaching departure from the scene of his triumphs to stay behind the bars is regarded by some observers of American life as the passing of that era of the super-gangster.

Capone was born in Brooklyn about 34 years ago, of Neapolitan stock. His formal education included the passing of the fourth grade in grammer school. Thereafter his learning was of a practical nature. Before the war he ran with the notorious Five Points gang in Brooklyn. He served during the war as a soldier of the United States and was honorably discharged.

Capone Comes to Chicago.

In 1919 Capone, a youth of 22, came to Chicago to serve as bodyguard for Big Jim Colosimo, a one-time street sweeper who came to power and wealth through political alliances and prohibition law violations. Colosimo died by a murderer's bullet and John Torrio, who succeeded him as the first gangster of Chicago, took over the young bodyguard. Capone was then a minor figure, one of a group of bad men subject to orders from superiors.

As late as 1921 Capone was only a satellite of Joseph Fusco, to whom Torrio, interested in the lucrative business of operating vice resorts, turned over the beer concessions in the city. In this capacity Capone was sent out to buy the trucks that Fusco needed. The Fusco organization at one time had fifty trucks and was merchandising a thousand barrels of beer daily—at least their breweries turned out that much. Capone, somehow, grew up with the business.

He Takes Torrio's Throne.

Torrio, shot after the killing of the picturesque Dean O'Banion among his roses in the floral shop opposite the Holy Name cathedral, gave up his scepter and moved back to Brooklyn or Italy—accounts differ—to enjoy life. That was in 1925, and Capone immediately thereafter was boss.

Where Torrio had organized vice and lawlessness, Al Capone syndicated it. He was a business man. He transformed some prairie villages into vice and booze centers. His slogan was: "We don't want any trouble." There are stories that in the little towns where he placed his resorts he paid off mortgages, bought new furnaces or repaired leaky roofs for those whom he wanted to be "good neighbors." He persuaded some of the villagers to permit bagnios and booze dens in the guise of roadhouses before the residents understood what he was about.

Murders Follow His Rise.

He proclaimed himself that he was only a business man, that he was giving the people what they wanted for their money. Murders occurred. His enemies died by the machine gun and the pistol.

It has been only a coincidence, but Angelo Genna and Samoots Amatuna, who aspired to leadership in Sicilian affairs in the alcohol business, died in 1925, the year Capone assumed leadership. Tony Lombardo was killed in 1928, Pasquale Lolordo in 1929, Joseph Guinta in the same year, Joe Aiello and Jack Zuta in 1930.

They went when they became too big. There was a saying in the underworld that a man who had been crowned king and mentioned as a rival for booze and vice profits lived but a few days. Only Capone endured in success. He branched out in the years from 1925 to 1930. Gambling, in suburban roadhouses, in Chicago and on dog tracks went under his control. There were rumors that he purchased protection with contributions to campaign funds.

The Valentine Day Massacre.

No evidence was ever gathered sufficient to pin a murder indictment on Capone. But seven men, members of the north side gang and adherents of Bugs Moran, who took over a territory after O'Bannion and then Hymie Weiss had been slain, were killed at once by machine guns on Valentine's day of 1929 and Moran cried out:

"Only Capone kills like that."

Capone, however, was in jail in Philadelphia then, sentenced for carrying a pistol. He got out and returned to Chicago again to take up the reins.

As to his wealth, it really existed. Capone could go to California when he liked. He could go to Florida and purchase a splendid seaside estate. But those cities in other states soured on him. They rejected him in the later stages of his career. He was distinctly not wanted. And then the general depression struck his business.

At times Capone has been quoted as saying that he wanted to get out of the rackets, but couldn't. The grip of circumstance operated to keep the man who rose to super-power in his treadmill. All the others who reached anything like his eminence in the Chicago underworld passed out by bullets.

His going appears to be an easier way. And when the prison bars are in front of him the era of huge, organized gangdom, authorities believe, will be gone.

END OF GANGS' RULE FORESEEN YEARS AGO BY EX-CHIEF TORRIO

St. Petersburg, Fla., June 16.—(AP)—Johnny Torrio, who taught Al Capone his trade, years ago saw the inevitable reckoning which gangdom must face and quit the racket, according to friends of Torrio, who has a home here.

The one time Chicago gang chief, who has real estate interests here valued at more than a million dollars, was out of the city tonight and could not be reached.

Torrio came to St. Petersburg several years ago after rival gangsters had shot him in Chicago. Torrio looks like a prosperous merchant or banker. There is nothing about him to indicate that he was at one time head of the Chicago beer racket, which Capone inherited when Torrio retired.

In talking to acquaintances last winter Torrio said that since he had been in St. Petersburg he had been approached at least once a week with propositions to get in on some gambling or rum running racket, but said he had turned them all down.

Capone has been a visitor here and Torrio frequently called on his successor at Capone's Miami Beach home.

SON ASKS COURT TO EXHUME BODY OF S. H. WHITE

Charges Father's Will Was Forged.

Exhumation of the body of Stanley Hastings White, former rental agent for the Chicago Title and Trust company, is being sought by Stanley W. White, one of two sons whom the elder White disinherited in his will. The will left White's estate to a friend, Miss Elfrieda Prestel.

Attorneys Daniel J. Webster and Harry J. Berman went before Superior Judge Frankhauser yesterday with a petition the draft of which asserted serious charges concerning Mr. White's death. The judge, doubting he had authority to sign the petition, continued the case, whereupon the lawyers announced they would take the document before a judge of the Criminal court this morning.

Cash Estimates Vary.

The petition avers the son's claim that his father's will was forged, the charge being that a substitution was made in the first sheet of the two page document. While Attorney Berman has estimated the value of the estate up to $500,000, the son has fixed it at about $50,000, and Miss Prestel says it is worth only $15,000.

Miss Prestel, a placid, gray haired woman of 40 years, was formerly secretary to United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and is now secretary to Mr. Johnson's law partner, Luther D. Swanstrom. She says she and Mr. White were engaged for several years prior to his death on June 2, and were not married only because of the market crash of 1928.

Back to Probate Court.

Before presenting his petition to Judge Frankhauser, Attorney Berman went before Oscar Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner, and asked him to reconsider the court's action of last week in admitting White's will to probate. Mr. Caplan set the argument for Friday.

As in the previous probate hearing, Miss Prestel, who lives at 1309 Newport avenue, was represented by her employer, Attorney Swanstrom. He characterized the charges made in the petition as ridiculous.

WOMAN NAMES ROBBER.

Mrs. Lillian Jenkins, Negress, complained to Warren avenue police yesterday that a Negro known to her as William Robinson had robbed her of $201 she had withdrawn from bank for taxes. The robbery occurred at her rooming house, 1651 Fulton street.

MAN WHO WAS MADE AN INVALID DEFENDING HIS WIFE GIVEN A DIVORCE

His story of the injuries he received protecting his wife from Cossacks during a Russian pogrom in 1907, and her subsequent treatment of him, won a divorce yesterday for Sidney Erzofski, 49 years old, who since 1924 has been a patient at the infirmary at Oak Forest.

Erzofski was carried on a stretcher into the courtroom of Circuit Judge George Fred Rush, where his wife had a bill for divorce and he a cross bill pending. He described the wild night when the Cossacks swooped down on their home in Katerinisloff, Russia, and told how he was slugged with a rifle butt in protecting his wife, Sadie.

The couple came to Chicago soon afterwards, he said. Twelve years ago his head began to trouble him, and since then he has had six operations on his skull. His ailment made it impossible for him to work, and he was taken to Oak Forest seven years ago.

In 1925, he asserted, he attempted to return to his home at 4811 North Central Park avenue, but his wife barred the doore against him. Judge Rush held that that act invalidated her charge of desertion, and granted the divorce to the husband.

MAXWELL SEES UPWARD TREND NEWSPAPER ADS

An upward trend in newspaper advertising lineage was forecast yesterday by Lloyd Maxwell, president of the Williams & Cunnyngham Advertising agency, at a meeting of the Chicago Newspaper Representatives' association in the Medinah Athletic club.

"Reduction of advertising rates is in no way the answer to the present stringency," Mr. Maxwell said. "Those publishers who have steadfastly maintained their rates and who have strengthened their cooperation to advertisers are contributing to the general improvement in business."

A more detailed study of markets and fields of distribution, coupled with intensive and concentrated advertising in daily newspapers, was held as one of the solutions of the business dilemma.

"With its compact, concentrated coverage the daily newspaper is equipped to meet opportunities as they arise," Mr. Maxwell said, "and the advertiser who takes advantage of that fact has a splendid opportunity to ride the crest of the business revival."

BIND AND ROB CHIROPODIST.

Ernest Goldstine, a chiropodist, was robbed of $40 yesterday by two youths who left him bound with adhesive tape in his office at 1318 Wilson avenue.

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—The motion picture operators' bill which forces two operators on every theater in cities of more than 25,000 slipped through the house tonight with just enough votes. It drew 77, the bare majority, 34 being tallied against it. Protests that the bill, if passed, would force small picture exhibitors out of business were to no avail.

POPE PROTESTS DEPORTATION OF SPANISH PRIMATE

Calls Action an Offense to Catholic World.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 16. — Pedro Cardinal Segura's expulsion from Spain yesterday threw a shadow over the controversy between the Vatican and Italy, and the energies of the holy see were concentrated on meeting the difficulties in Spain.

FREDERICO TEDESCHINI. [Associated Press Photo.]

These activities included instruction to Papal Nuncio Frederico Tedeschini at Madrid to lodge a vigorous protest with the Spanish government. This protest is against the action of the Spanish government in sending police to accompany the cardinal out of Spain. It calls attention to the dignity which the cardinal has with respect to the holy see, to Spain and to the entire Catholic world.

Difficulties with Four Nations.

Spain's action toward the Catholic primate left a most disconcerting impression in Vatican circles today and it was, perhaps, significant that Pope Pius, although he received several delegations today, made no discourses referring to it. The Segura incident makes the Vatican's relations precarious in three different Catholic countries in which the clean issue of church versus state is flatly posed.

These countries are Lithuania, where Papal Nuncio Bartoloni was recently expelled in the same manner as Cardinal Segura was expelled from Spain; Italy, the seat of the Catholic religion, and Spain, for centuries known as "the most Catholic country," not to speak of England, where some features of the pope's recent encyclical on capital and labor has aroused the ire of the Laborites and Prime Minister MacDonald.

Compared to Italian Situation.

Italian papers today gave full publicity to all the details of Cardinal Segura's expulsion. A parallel was drawn between the cardinal's expulsion and the closing of the Catholic clubs in Italy. In Spain, as in Italy, the Fascist paper Lavora pointed out, government action was not directed against the church as such, but to secure public order.

This paper added that, as Provisional President Zamora of Spain had said, there is no incompatibility in being a Catholic and at the same time opposing the cardinal-primate from the country, any more than there is between Premier Mussolini's closing Catholic clubs which were interfering in politics and at the same time having respect for the Catholic religion.

"It is evident that Spanish Catholics are not so much interested in the acts of Cardinal Segura and the religious orders as they are in the part they play in the political struggle as a political organization," Lavora said.

Pope Displeased with Primate.

It is expected here that Cardinal Segura will return to Rome immediately and that it will not make the situation any smoother for the church, for there were few doubts left three weeks ago, when Cardinal Segura arrived here after voluntarily leaving Spain, that his reception by Pope Pius had not been specially cordial and that it was held against him for fleeing Spain at a critical moment. There is reason to believe that he returned to Spain at the behest of the pope.

Osservatore Romano, Vatican organ, tonight printed a half column explanation of the cardinal's expulsion, announcing that the nuncio at Madrid had been instructed to lodge a protest. The Vatican version admits that the Spanish government first asked the cardinal to leave the country of his own accord, but that the cardinal refused.

According to Osservatore Romano, the Spanish government then besought the nuncio to prevail on the cardinal to leave the country and also telegraphed to the Vatican itself to wire Cardinal Segura to get out of Spain, expressing regrets at the same time that this measure was necessary in the interest of public order.

Denies Secret Return.

Osservatore Romano, however, denies that Cardinal Segura returned secretly to Spain. It maintains that the primate got regular visas and that it must have been known when he crossed the frontier. It also maintains that the Spanish government, during the past month, went on record as having stated that it had nothing to do with Cardinal Segura's first departure from Spain, indicating that beyond personal motives, there was no reason why he should have left.

Italian government circles today announced that the Vatican's latest note was still being studied. The reason for this lengthy study appears to be that the note is far from being conciliating. At the same time there were more indications that a practical solution of a temporary nature is being reached, even if the question of principle between the Catholics and Fascists may long remain in suspense. This solution apparently consists of some of the Catholic youth clubs which were dissolved transferring their allegiance or connections from the Catholic Action to purely church direction.

SPAIN HITS AT PRIMATE

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, June 16.—The provisional government of the republic tonight, without warning, struck its deadliest blow yet at the country's military oligarchy, the backbone of the monarchy and the bane of the nation's democracy, and at the same time sent a parting shot at the primate of the Spanish church, whom they forced across the French frontier early this morning.

During what the military autocracy of the Bourbons never dared, the republican government had already begun to slash the army. But tonight it abolished the whole system of captain-general and military governors, converting Spain at last into a purely civil state.

12,000 Officers Fired.

And more; it informed 12,000 officers who would not accept War Minister Azana's offer of retirement with full pay within limits set, that they may now go into the discard willy-nilly and one-fifth reduction in their salaries.

Thus, more than 50 military governorships are abolished. The system of eight regions presided over by captains-general, incubator for dictators, is smashed. These eight potentates in the old days intimidated parliament over the head of the minister of war; they chose Dictator Primo de Rivera and they threw him out. It was to them the fallen monarch wanted urgently to talk from the cruiser bearing him into exile.

Cardinal Segura got his, too. In a vigorous note, the government intimates that he came back to conspire against it. The text of the government's note follows:

"Because of the publication of the pastoral letter by the cardinal primate, directed to other prelates on the occasion of the proclamation of the republic, the government, believing the continued stay of the cardinal in Spain to be dangerous, asked the holy see to remove Pedro Cardinal Segura from his archbishop's seat at Toledo.

"A little after the government dispatched the note the cardinal abandoned Spanish territory spontaneously, going to Rome and returning some days later to Spain without giving previous knowledge to any civil or ecclesiastical authority.

Charges He Hid Three Days.

"The cardinal entered Roncesvalles pass the night of the eleventh, remaining in hiding three days, during which the government was unaware of his halting place.

"The government was waiting to receive a reply from the holy see in order to adopt whatever resolution it might believe pertinent, but, having notice that the cardinal, finally dropping his incognito, had convoked a reunion of priests and other ecclesiastical dignitaries at Guadalajara the last Sunday, did not vacillate in asking him anew to abandon Spain, giving him the maximum facilities."

WOMEN'S 8 HOUR BILL IS KILLED IN ILLINOIS HOUSE

Crowded Galleries See It Fall 18 Votes Short.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—The 8 hour working day bill for women in industry was killed today in the house. The vote stood 59 to 65, and the measure fell 18 short of the necessary constitutional majority of 77. A month ago the bill was passed by the senate, 27 to 11. It was one of the major measures in the program of organized labor this session.

AGNES NESTOR. [Moffett Photo.]

Galleries and lobbies, crowded with women who in the main opposed the bill, listened to a two hours' debate. A large delegation of young women workers from Kankakee came down by special excursion to represent 1,500 employes of a hosiery factory, the management of which had announced that if the bill went through the plant would be removed to Kentucky. Almost 1,000 residents of that city were said to be here.

Miss Nestor's Long Fight Vain.

The roll call showed 26 Republicans and 39 Democrats supporting the bill, while 46 Republicans and 19 Democrats opposed it. Twenty-nine members were silent or absent.

The action closed another chapter in the struggle of twenty years between Miss Agnes Nestor of the Women's Trade Union league and the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Miss Nestor in 1909 was a chief advocate of the women's 10 hour law. This was amended in 1911 to make it more expansive, and since then no change has been made in the plan. Efforts have been made regularly to put through an 8 hour law.

All through the session the bill has been an outstanding controversial measure. It was really a 48 hour a week bill, applying to women in industries, such as factories, printshops, laundries, etc., but exempting stores, hotels, and restaurants.

The bill was called up on special order by R. G. Soderstrom [Rep., Streator], who is president of the State Federation of Labor. Republican leaders said the bill had lost some support because Mr. Soderstrom was one of the four Republican members who voted last week against congressional reapportionment.

Would Mean Employment.

"The umpire has called three balls and two strikes," said Mr. Soderstrom. "I hope the bill will not strike out. The 8 hour day for women is less radical than the changes that have taken place in machinery and methods of production. The shortening of the working day means the employment of more people, and 75 per cent of the employes of the state are already within its provisions."

"In my district," said Luther B. Bratton [Rep., Kankakee], "more than 7,500 workers have signed a petition against this bill."

"We have four factories in Aurora," remarked John M. Peffers [Rep., Aurora]. "They employ women labor and the women workers say to us: 'You lay off our jobs; the factories would have to move.'"

Called "Health Measure."

A dramatic appeal for passage of the bill was made by Michael L. Igoe, minority leader, who said: "It's a health measure. Any girl compelled to hook up to a machine ten hours a day finds it injurious to health."

The roll call stood as follows:

WOMEN'S JURY BILL DEAD FOR THIS TERM OF THE LEGISLATURE

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Sporadic attempts to reconsider the vote that defeated the women's jury bill last week failed in the house this afternoon and the measure remains dead for the session.

Luther B. Bratton [Rep., Kankakee] moved that a reconsideration of the vote be had, saying that one Democrat member had voted "aye," but was recorded in the "nay" column on the official roll call. The bill failed by only one vote and had this member been correctly recorded it would have passed, said Bratton.

John O. Hruby [Dem., Chicago], rose to identify himself as the member, verifying Bratton's statement.

James J. McVickers [Rep., Chicago] a jury commissioner and author of the bill, which he introduced after the Illinois Supreme court had held that the law passed last session was invalid, made a plea for equal rights for women in the jury box and asked that the house allow the roll to be called so that each member might be rightfully recorded. A storm of protests arose and the motion failed.

Dr. Kretschmer is Elected Head of Medical Society

The heated election campaign waged during the last few weeks among members of the Chicago Medical society over officers for the coming year ended yesterday in the defeat of the society's regular ticket and the sweeping victory of the so-called "anti-gag rule" faction.

DR. KRETSCHMER.

Complete figures for the balloting at the society's 15 branch polls, announced late last night, showed Dr. Herman L. Kretschmer, the "anti-gag" candidate, victor by a majority of 320 votes over Dr. Edward H. Ochsner, heading the administration slate. The vote was: Kretschmer, 1,193; Ochsner, 873.

The interest in the election was shown by the heavy vote of 2,066 of an approximate possible total of 3,200 qualified physicians. It ended a campaign which was marked by bitter charges and countercharges. So keen was the interest in certain sections of the city that both parties employed watchers to guard against irregularities at the polls.

While the election settled the contest over officers for the next year, comment of society members at headquarters in the Medical and Dental Arts building last night indicate that the feud among the physicians is by no means closed and that it will continue to manifest itself in the operations of the society.

Kretschmer Discusses Policies.

Issues upon which the members divided were discussed heatedly in campaign handbills which were dispatched with increasing frequency as the campaign grew to a close. Charges of political trickery came from both factions.

Dr. Kretschmer, the new president elect, reached at his home last night, said he was not quite clear on the political aspects that arose during the campaign, but outlined certain issues which he regarded of greater importance and listed a number of problems confronting the medical profession which he hopes to work out during his term in office.

Plea for Family Doctor.

"The old family doctor," he said, "seems to have been left out of the picture in this medical renaissance. Our problem is to restore him to his proper place. He is an important cog in medical practice. There are other problems of practice arising from the growth of communities.

"The society, I believe, should be more intimate in its relations with the public in such matters as public health, the care of the body, and the prolonging of life. The public should also be given an opportunity to become more familiar with what the society is doing in its behalf.

"The society must also concern itself with the cost of medical care. It is a vital issue, which involves not only the patient but the doctor, the druggist, the hospital, and the nurse as well."

Supporters of Dr. Kretschmer who were elected to office include Dr. Charles H. Phifer, who defeated Dr. Charles J. Drueck for the office of secretary by a majority of 303 votes, and the following councilors at large: Drs. G. Henry Mundt, Arnold Kegel, Charles Humiston, J. H. Evans, and E. J. Williams.

Dr. Kretschmer is a nationally known urologist, a professor at Rush Medical college, and a member of the Presbyterian hospital staff. He was supported during the campaign by a group characterized as reformers. He said he had not taken an active part in the campaign and when interviewed said he had not yet learned of the election results.

The Chicago Medical society, the largest group of its kind in the world, has many special problems before it that must be worked out, Dr. Kretschmer said. In his opinion the greatest of these problems is that concerning changing methods in medical practice.

JAPAN PUBLISHES FIGURES SHOWING ARMED STRENGTH

TOKIO, June 16.—(AP)—The Japanese war office today published figures on the nation's military strength which will be submitted to the league of nations in connection with the 1932 disarmament conference.

These figures showed that the army numbered 231,600 men, including officers, in addition to 2,210 men in the gendarmeries and about 20,000 police in Corea, Formosa, and Manchuria.

The aviation branch totaled 623 airplanes and eight regiments, but it was intimated that the figures would be increased, bearing out press reports that the organization of two new air regiments was contemplated.

ties, which may bring suffering upon those who are touched by their immediate results. Put there is no disloyalty and no crime in all the category of human weakness which compares with the failure of probity in the conduct of public trust.

"Monetary loss, or even the shock to moral sensibilities, is perhaps a passing thing, but the breaking down of the faith of a people in the honesty of their government and in the integrity of their institutions, the lowering of respect for the standards of honor which prevail in high places, are crimes for which punishment can never atone. But these acts never touched the character of Warren Harding."

Beneath the outward circumstances of the ceremonies lay a substratum of clash and controversy. These were the plains where the Ohio gang once held sway, and whose twin capitals were the Daugherty's Washington Courthouse and the Anti-Saloon league's Westerville.

True Meanings Lie Beneath.

The ears of those who listened were attuned to catch lines that were unspoken and to sense the whisper of ghostly voices from out of the past.

Nor was it to be forgotten that these ceremonies were a part of a tour by a President as the beginning of his campaign to succeed himself.

The Coolidge who spoke was the same who dodged the duty of performing the dedication himself while he was in office.

The Hoover who lauded Harding today was the same who took two years to decide that this was an unpleasant job that had somehow to be done. Nor was the decision reached until it began to appear that Ohio Republicanism would, in its resentment at his continued refusal, turn against him in his desire for another White House term.

Other Notables on Platform.

The President was not alone, however, in paying this difficult and delicate homage. In addition to former President Coolidge the platform held Ambassador Dawes, who had had the courage to lay the corner stone of the memorial in 1926. There was Harding's former secretary, George K. Christian. There were Ohio's Democratic governor, George White; her Democratic senator, Robert Bulkley, and her Republican senator, Simeon D. Fess. There were Senator James E. Watson of Indiana and former Secretary of Labor James J. Davis.

And there was, of course, former Senator Joseph E. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, who as president of the Harding Memorial association presented to the nation the tomb whose cost of nearly a million dollars was made up of contributions of thousands from the wealthy and gifts of pennies from the school children.

Tells of Loyalty.

Senator Frelinghuysen spoke of Harding's loyalty, "which, because of its very depth, was sometimes abused." He spoke of his "shining record of which he could not be deprived," and then of "the broken reeds upon which he mistakenly leaned." But there were, he insisted, "many men surrounding Harding whose talents still shine in high places—Hoover, Coolidge, Chief Justice Hughes, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Dawes."

There were on the platform also three of Harding's former cabinet officers, Secretaries Work, New and Davis.

As honorary president of the Memorial association, Mr. Coolidge accepted the tomb on behalf of the nation. Gov. White accepted it on behalf of Ohio. Then Mr. Coolidge introduced the President with words of praise for his "patience, courage and ability; his experienced judgment and his decisive action."

Praises Kindly Character.

Harding the man, President Hoover honored with sympathetic reminiscence; Harding the President, he lauded for a kindly character that helped heal the scars of a war wounded world.

"Warren G. Harding," he said, "came from the people. Born just at the close of the civil war, it became his responsibility to lead the republic in a period of reconstruction from another great war in which our democracy had again demonstrated its unalterable resolve to withstand encroachment upon its independence and to deserve the respect of the world.

"Great as are the problems of the conflict, the burdens of statesmanship are equally difficult in the rehabilitation of social and economic life after the dislocation of war. Above all, the burden is heavy in composing the hates and prejudices which smoulder and threaten long after the formal documents of peace are signed. As the aftermath of war our national finances were disorganized, taxes were overwhelming, agriculture and business were prostrate and unemployment widespread.

Soothed Post-War Hatreds.

"These evil spirits aroused by war, augmented by inestimable losses, deep animosities, the dislocations of industry, the vast unemployment in a world still armed and arming confronted Warren G. Harding. He brought to the office of president a long experience in public affairs together with the character and spirit of which the republic was then in need. His was a mind and character fitted for a task where the one transcendent need was the healing quality of gentleness and friendliness. It was his mission to compose the prejudices and conflicts at home, to lessen the threats of renewed wars through the world.

"He succeeded in these tasks. When in two years he died, new peace treaties had been made in terms which won the support of our people; tranquillity had been restored at home; employment had been renewed and a long period of prosperity had begun."

"But our thoughts today," said the President, "turn to the man himself."

He recalled how Harding, then a senator, had come to him, then food administrator, and said: "I have not come to get anything. I just want you to know that if you wish the help of a friend, telephone me what you want. I am there to serve and to help."

"That statement," said the President, "I came to learn, was typical of him. I refer to it now because it reveals the nature of the man."

As he drew toward the end of his brief talk, after those sentences on betrayal, President Hoover went on:

"Warren Harding gave his life in worthy accomplishment for his country. He was a man of delicate sense of honor, of sympathetic heart, of transcendent gentleness of soul, who reached out for friendship, who gave of it loyally and generously in his every thought and deed. He was a man of passionate patriotism. He was a man of deep religious feeling. He was devoted to his fellow men.

Quotes Harding's Words.

"No revelation of his character can equal that of his own words just before his death. They were part of his last public statement. I quote:

"'We need less of sectarianism, less of denominationalism, less of fanatical zeal and its exactions, and more of the Christ spirit, more of the Christ practice, and a new and abiding consecration and reverence for God. I am a confirmed optimist as to the growth of the spirit of brotherhood. We do rise to heights at times when we look for the good rather than the evil in others, and give consideration to the views of all. The inherent love of fellowship is banding men together, and when envy and suspicion are vanquished fraternity records a triumph and brotherhood brings new blessings to men and to peoples.'

Coolidge Precedes President.

President Coolidge's address preceded President Hoover's.

"Warren G. Harding," he said, "was preëminently fitted to serve the country in the disturbed and distraught period following the war. He had experience and ability, courage and patience, combined with a generous toleration and cheerful optimism that inspired confidence. It would be difficult to find any peace time period of a little over two years when so much that was beneficial was accomplished as during his administration. He possessed a charming cordiality and his social graces were only an appropriate setting for a strong and rugged personality. To whatever position he was called he demonstrated his power by work done.

"It has often been remarked that when a particular crisis in human affairs has required a certain type of ability to meet it the right man has appeared. Whether this is because the times call the man or because there are latent powers in all of us which give those who become charged with responsibility the ability to respond by rising above themselves is impossible to decide.

"Perhaps it is enough to know that when the world has a work to do some one appears who is able to do it. President Harding had a natural gift of expression which he had developed into an art. He understood the people and the people understod him' in confronting a situation; in pacifying men, he was a master. Those qualities which were so much needed in our country and in the world he brought to the presidential office."

Benefits of Administration.

Mr. Coolidge went on to speak of the achievements of the Harding administration.

"Under this benign influence," he said, "trade revived and a better international understanding prevailed. He would be the last to claim all the credit for these accomplishments. He had the loyal and patriotic cooperation of public men within and without his own party. He had the advantage, too, of the deeply interested and watchful care of a wife who was ever devoted to his burdens. No record of his work would satisfy him which failed to recognize the helpful influence of Mrs. Harding, who sleeps here by his side."

So the tomb of Warren Gamaliel Harding and Florence Kling Harding was dedicated. And as Harry Daugherty stepped from the platform he said:

"I have been waiting eight years for this day. I was determined not to rest until I saw that grave in there closed at last."

PRESIDENT GREETS CIVIL WAR VETS ON VISIT TO COLUMBUS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Columbus, O., June 16.—[Special.]—President Hoover's visit to Columbus today honored the civil war heroes. The 65th annual encampment of the Ohio G. A. R. is in progress in Columbus and for an hour the President and Mrs. Hoover stood in the reviewing stand in front of the statehouse while the boys of '61 and '98 and '17 marched by to bands cheerfully blaring, the flags floating in the breeze. His eyes filled with tears as the thin lines passed.

Then for another hour and more they stood beside Gov. White and his daughter in the statehouse rotunda and shook hands with the three hundred veterans here for their meeting.

Following the reception, the President took to his special train again for his foray into Illinois and his speech tomorrow rededicating the Lincoln tomb in Springfield.

He and Mrs. Hoover will arrive in Springfield tomorrow morning and will be met by Gov. and Mrs. Emmerson and taken to the governor's mansion. Following a visit to the Lincoln home and a reception to the members of the legislature, will come the ceremonies at the Lincoln tomb and then the President's departure for the return to Washington.

HOOVER SILENCE ON RUM KEY TO 1932 STRATEGY

He Will Concentrate on Economic Issues.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—In political circles here, President Hoover's Indianapolis speech last night was appraised today as the keynote of his bid for reelection. The politicians found in the utterance what one of them called a rough draft of the sort of platform the President will desire the Republican national convention to adopt next year—a platform containing a great deal of economic issues and nothing, or next to nothing, on the prohibition question.

At Indianapolis the President mentioned every issue of the hour except prohibition, on which he was most comprehensively silent. This phenomenon is generally interpreted as an indication that Mr. Hoover proposes to subordinate the question of repeal or modification of national prohibition in his fight for reelection and to stress economic issues as paramount to all others.

Takes Roosevelt's Tack.

In this respect the attitude of Mr. Hoover is identical with that of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, the leading contender at this time for the Democratic nomination for President. Mr. Roosevelt favors repeal of the 18th amendment and the substitution of state option of prohibition, but he has set himself in opposition to a Democratic platform declaration that would go that far, and by so doing has won much approval in the politically dry south.

Mr. Hoover is also credited with having an eye on the support of the south, four states of which, in addition to Kentucky and Tennessee, he carried in 1928.

His "Platform" Reconstructed.

The prospective Hoover platform declarations which the politicians descried in the Indianapolis speech are the following:

Extension of the powers of the federal reserve system to enable it to "prevent a large diversion of capital and bank deposits from commercial and industrial business into wasteful speculation and stock promotion."

Reorganization of the banking system, "to give greater protection to depositors against failures."

Further regulation of stock and grain exchanges, if it is found that the "create illegitimate speculation and intensify depressions."

Reform of the entire structure of federal and state taxation for the purpose of equalizing the incidence of taxation.

Abolition of the capital gains tax, which is now a feature of the federal income tax.

No Relief Doles.

Opposition to the dole in any form or to payment of relief for distress arising from economic conditions.

Opposition to the government ownership of public utilities.

Maintenance of the principle of the protective tariff and of the level of rates fixed in the existing Hawley-Smoot act, except insofar as inequities shall be removed by the President upon recommendation of the tariff commission.

Opposition to all schemes proposing competition between the government in business and private enterprise, "except in temporary national emergencies."

Opposition to further extension of "the arm of bureaucracy into a multitude of affairs."

Embody the Hoover Ideals.

These and other suggestions in the Indianapolis speech are generally regarded as shadowing forth the policies with respect to economic problems which will constitute the Hoover program for the future, a program which the President not only will seek to write into the Republican platform next year, but presumably will present, in part, if not in its entirety, in his first message to the seventy-second congress when it assembles next December.

President Turns Aggressive.

Mr. Hoover has now done what many Republican leaders have been counselling for some time. He has deserted the defensive and assumed the aggressive. He has set out to glorify the present much abused tariff law, pointing with pride to its protection of agriculture and labor and taking the position that it has operated to mitigate in America the effects of the world wide economic dislocation.

While Republicans were evincing approval of the Hoover defense of the tariff Democrats were chortling in anticipation that his utterances on this subject will prove a boomerang. They liken the Hoover tariff apologia for the Hawley-Smoot act at Indianapolis to the Taft defense of the Payne-Aldrich act at Winona, Minn., in 1909, which contributed to the downfall of the Republican administration two decades ago, and predict a similar fate for Mr. Hoover.

Hungary to Hang 2 Women Today; Killed Husbands

They bade tearful farewells to members of their families, relatives and friends. The village was crowded with those who came from miles around in the hope of witnessing the executions.

DAUGHERTY SAYS HE APPROVES SPEECHES AT HARDING'S TOMB

Marion, O., June 16.—(AP)—Without mentioning any of the Harding memorial dedication addresses specifically, Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general in the Harding cabinet, tonight said "I thoroughly approve of the orations made here today by the distinguished speakers.

"Their fine tributes to President Harding form a fitting climax to the work of the Harding Memorial association and reflect honor on themselves, their country and its future."

Daugherty, a trustee of the memorial association, played a part in early plans for the dedication.

BOYS' BAND STIRS LEGISLATURE TO A PARTISAN TILT

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—(AP)—A concert played for Gov. Emmerson by the Boys Exchange club band of Paris, Ill., today was misinterpreted by Michael L. Igoe, minority leader in the house as "advance publicity for President Hoover." Igoe moved that the house adjourn until the playing ceased.

"Let's adjourn," Igoe shouted. "If Hoover wants a band let it play tomorrow."

Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Republican, Chicago, informed Igoe the band was not playing for Hoover. "The President of the United States," he said, "doesn't need a band to incite the enthusiasm of the people of Springfield."

Republicans applauded until Democrats shouted "What does he need?"

HOOVER ADDS TO BELIEF HARDING SENSED SCANDAL

Confirms Opinion Held in Washington.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—President Hoover's assertion in his Marion, O., address today that the death of President Harding was hastened by the disheartening discovery of his betrayal by friends he had trusted with his confidence and with high office aroused the utmost interest in official Washington.

The utterances of the President served to recall and confirm the stories current at the time that Mr. Harding had died broken hearted and physically weakened by prolonged brooding over the treachery of his appointees who were involved in the scandal of the administration.

Just how much President Harding had learned of the bribery, peculation, plundering and general corruption that prevailed during his administration never has been revealed. Mr. Hoover's assertion that his chief of those days had discovered what was going on, is particularly interesting for the reason that this is the first authoritative statement to this effect emanating from a member of the Harding cabinet.

May Have Had Confidence.

There is much speculation in Washington as to whether Mr. Hoover in making his assertion speaks from a greater knowledge than appears on the surface, whether in particular Mr. Harding confided to Mr. Hoover his great disillusionment with respect to the integrity of his official subordinates.

The scandals of the Harding administration were almost on the point of breaking when the President, accompanied by Mr. Hoover, set forth on his holiday trip to Alaska, from which he did not return alive.

At that time it was reported that Mr. Harding had learned of the peculations in the veterans' bureau for which its chief, Charles Forbes, later went to the penitentiary. The story was that Mr. Harding summoned Forbes to his office and faced him with the accusations and that in the course of the altercation the two men came to blows. Forbes was a personal selection of Mr. Harding for the office and the President felt that the conduct of his appointee was an indefensible betrayal.

Recall Cryptic Remarks.

After the scandals broke there were recalled a number of cryptic remarks made by Mr. Harding along in April and May of 1923 which had passed unnoted at the time, but in the light of the revelations appeared pregnant with the suggestion that he had some notion of the extent of the treachery around him. On one occasion he spoke in bitter vein of the loneliness of the presidency, the incumbent of which never knows whom he can trust.

Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall had resigned a few months previously and had been retained by Harry Sinclair as an attorney for an oil concession mission to Russia. But whether Mr. Harding knew that Fall was one of the friends who had betrayed him was at the time of his death and still is, a matter of speculation. Fall may know, as may some others of the inner circle of the Harding entourage, but they have never told.

His Friend Daugherty.

Of what went on in the department of justice under the administration of his friend, Harry Daugherty, the President was thought to have had some inkling, for it was bruited about Washington that Harding had virtually kicked Jess Smith, Daugherty's handy man, out of the White House and angrily told him never to darken its doors again.

Out of it all Washington also gleaned the information that there is little hope for executive clemency for Fall, now facing sentence to prison for his part in the oil scandals. Mr. Hoover's condemnation of betrayal of public trust was too severe to allow for any suggestion that he might show sympathy for Fall.

Police in Summer Uniform to Be Inspected Next Week

Members of the police department will appear in Grant park for their annual review in summer uniforms on June 24, according to an order issued yesterday by Acting Commissioner Alcock. The review will be held in two sections, forces from the south side of the city being inspected at 10 o'clock, and those from the north side at 1 o'clock.

100 REPUBLICANS OF CHICAGO WILL GO TO HEAR HOOVER SPEAK

One hundred Chicago Republicans, led by Allan T. Gilbert, president of the Hamilton club, will leave this morning on a special train for Springfield to attend the dedication ceremonies of Lincoln's tomb, at which President Hoover will speak. Reservations have been made for them by Gov. Emmerson.

The special train will depart from the Illinois Central station at 9 a. m., Chicago time, and will leave Springfield at 6 p. m., two hours after the ceremonies close.

Howard P. Savage is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the trip, Walter E. Bacon, vice chairman, and Harold A. Baum, secretary. Among others who are listed to go are: Representative Carl R. Chindblom, Gen. J. J. Garrity, George W. Dixon, Louis Nettelhorst, William J. Bell, Walter E. Beebe, George P. Jensen, John L. East Jr., Otto W. Balgemann, Charles Essig, William D. Saltiel, Emil A. W. Johnson, John R. Palandech, James Abbott, A. E. Patton, Mrs. H. S. Foote, Charles A. Nowak, and S. M. Murdock.

The Hamilton club male chorus of 65 members, led by Conductor Harry S. Walsh, and the Mundy chorus, both of which will participate in the program, will accompany the delegation.

HOOVER SETS UP ANOTHER BUREAU TO AID BUREAUS

Will Handle Statistics for Government.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—On the recommendation of J. Clawson Roop, director of the budget, President Hoover has added a new board to the administrative machinery of the government. This new unit is termed the federal statistics board and its announced mission is that of effecting government economies in the collection, compilation and dissemination of statistical information by agencies of the federal government.

One of the major aims of the new board is listed as that of eliminating needless duplication in statistical work by the various government departments and independent establishments. Under existing conditions figures produced by one government department rarely are made available for the use of another.

As explained the purpose of the board is that of doing away with the old wasteful system whereby each department worked up its own statistics independently of each other, two sets of clerks being paid by the government when one could have done the work.

FALL, FIGHTING PRISON, AGREES TO MEDICAL TEST

El Paso, Tex., June 16.—(AP)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, announced today he had been advised that government counsel in Washington wanted him to enter a government hospital in El Paso for a physical examination.

"I shall reply that I am ready to go at any time," he said. "I have nothing to conceal from any reputable physicians."

The one time member of President Harding's cabinet is under sentence of a year in prison on conviction of conspiracy to accept a bribe from E. L. Doheny, oil magnate, in the leasing of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve in California. The sentence included a fine of $100,000, the amount of the alleged bribe.

Fall's own physicians have stated that it would be dangerous to his health if he went to prison.

Several Bombs Exploded in Buenos Aires; Blame Reds

BUENOS AIRES, June 16.—(AP)—A number of bombs were exploded on street car tracks in various parts of the city last night, alarming the populace but doing no damage. Police attribute the incidents to unidentified persons seeking to create political unrest. General opinion was that they were connected with communist activities recently uncovered.

VOTE ON CHANGED REMAP BILL IN SENATE TONIGHT

Governor Calls on G.O.P. to Pass Measure.

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Congressional reapportionment was set for a vote in the senate tomorrow night after a score or so amendments had been tacked to the bill as passed last week by the house.

RICHARD J. BARR. [A. P. Photo.]

Most of the changes were rectifications of errors, while some were boundary alterations downstate agreed upon at a conference between Gov. Emmerson and Republican assembly leaders.

If the house refuses to accede, the bill will go to conference committee. The administration is urging passage of the new district scheme, which was been sidestepped for twenty years.

Time is growing short, for at a consultation between Gov. Emmerson, Speaker Shanahan, Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet] and others it was decided to try to end the session Friday night, letting some 500 bills on the calendar die. News of this, started an uprising among some of the house members tonight in favor of prolonging the session through next week.

Clear Decks for Windup.

The senate started to clear decks tonight for a Friday windup, if possible, by striking off all senate bills on the calendar and in committee. Crape is hung on Chicago revenue bills by the factor of time. The revenue committee weeks ago declared them dead in the expectation of a special session.

It leaves before the senate nothing but bills which have passed the house, among the exceptions being the senatorial reapportionment bill. This Senator Courtney says he will call up when congressional remap goes to a vote. In the house court reform bills of the judiciary advisory council were set apart for a period on Thursday for voting.

Efforts of some Republican senators to tumble Democratic counties out of new Republican districts led Senator James J. Barbour [Rep., Chicago] to tear into them.

"If you are going to frame districts to please sitting congressmen," he said, "we'll not get reapportionment and Cook and Lake counties will still have only ten districts."

Filibuster in Senate.

The remap conference followed a hectic session in the senate this morning, which was followed by a filibuster. Senators Thomas J. Courtney and Harold G. Ward, Chicago, Democrats, charged that the reapportionment bill had been rushed to the senate from the house last week and advanced to second reading "in the dark of the night" after the upper branch had adjourned.

Courtney sought to have the remap bill sent to committee. When this failed, the Democrats insisted on having every bill read at length as it was taken up, a procedure stipulated by the constitution.

"I'm not trying to tell the legislature how to vote," said the governor at the conference.

"But the Democrats have thrown down the gauntlet by their caucus action in voting to stand against reapportionment, and that makes it necessary for the Republicans to pick up the gauntlet. I am desirous of having congressional reapportionment passed."

Senate Ready to Recede.

One change agreed to is that Woodford county be taken out of the Peoria district and that Whiteside county be put in the Winnebago district. If the house votes it down, the senate, it is agreed, is to recede. The disposition of Calumet township is rectified in another amendment.

The controversy in the senate started early when the remap bill was taken up.

"I ask that the bill be re-referred to the committee," said Minority Leader Courtney, "so the Democrats may get a look at it. We aren't against reapportionment—we've fought for senatorial apportionment continuously, but we do object to railroad measures."

"This bill became a party measure in the house only after the Democrats caucused and tried to kill it," replied Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep., Joliet], the floor leader. "My notion is that they are trying to do the same thing here. The Democrats are always wrong."

Alcock Orders Stronger Enforcement of Auto Laws

Acting Commissioner Alcock yesterday issued an order instructing all police captains to enforce more stringently motor vehicle laws relating to licenses, head lights, tail lights, and passing through traffic lights. The acting commissioner declared there has been apparent laxity in the department in complying with his former order. He said proper enforcement of these laws is a step toward reduction of motor accidents.

HOUSE KILLS STATE EMPLOYES' PENSION FUND BILL, 53 TO 47

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—The state employes pension fund bill was killed on the house floor tonight, polling only 53 votes toward a necessary majority of 77. The nays numbered 47. It was presented by Representative Frank McCarthy [Rep., Elgin].

Most of the Republican leaders voted against the bill after Thomas J. O'Grady [Dem., Chicago] and John Devlin [Dem., Dixon] attacked it.

CERMAK BILLS, SCHOOL BONDS ARE WIPED OUT

Real Estate Board's Plan Defeated.

as to the merits of the bonding idea. the committee vote on the bond bill itself was 17 to 4.

The committee report was not permitted by the time the motion was made to clean up the calendar and therefore these bills were swept into discard as among those technically in committee.

Trustee Joseph P. Savage, the sponsor of the idea, appeared before the committee with Attorney T. V. Sullivan to speak in favor of the bills. The objection was made by Harris S. Keeler of Chicago bureau of public efficiency, who charged that the plan was "vicious." He predicted that if it were passed it would be only a few years until Chicago taxpayers would be carrying a perpetual debt of $100,000,000 or $150,000,000 for the erection of school buildings, which up to this time had been erected out of current revenue.

Tax Warrants Bill Wins.

About the only sizable revenue bills to emerge from the session were those allowing the state to issue tax anticipation warrants and to purchase its own warrants out of surplus funds and bills postponing the dates on which delinquent taxes for 1929 and 1930 in Cook county begin to bear interest.

As to whether there will be a special session on revenue and taxation, which legislative leaders for the last three months have deemed to be in prospect, Gov. Emmerson was still noncommittal. It depends on two things: First on whether enough legislators would come back to Springfield for an emergency session in the hot months, and second upon whether a more or less comprehensive program of revenue legislation for Chicago and downstate can be prepared.

KILLS LICENSE BILL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Mayor Cermak's bill to increase the licensing powers of the city of Chicago as a means of raising revenue was defeated in the state senate this afternoon by a vote of 18 to 21. Twenty-six favorable votes were required for passage.

"This vote," protested Senator Thomas J. Courtney, minority leader, "shows Mayor Cermak's bills are being treated solely as party measures. It proves he told the truth when he said that the Republicans in the legislature and in Springfield have turned thumbs down on all his relief measures. And it is a fact that the governor is able to deliver the Republicans in the senate."

The Chicago school board's $50,000,000 bond bill escaped from the education committee of the lower house after arguments that it must get to the floor today if it is to have any chance before adjournment, but it is admitted that chance is extremely slight in view of present plans to adjourn Friday night.

Trustee Joseph P. Savage and Attorney Thomas M. Sullivan spoke for the bond plan. Harris S. Keeler, director of the Chicago bureau of public efficiency, denounced the plan as "most vicious," and said that its adoption would mean in a few years a 100 million dollars or 150 million "perpetual debt" for school buildings now built out of current revenue.

DRIVERS' LICENSE BILL IS QUIETLY DITCHED IN HOUSE

Springfield, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—The auto drivers' license bill was virtually killed in the house judiciary committee today when consideration of it was postponed until Thursday. If the session closes at the end of the week there will be little opportunity of the measure to progress farther.

Today the committee hearing met with a scant attendance. When the bill was called, Representative John P. Devine [Dem., Dixon], raised the point of a no quorum and only ten members—less than a majority—were present. The bill thereupon automatically went over until Thursday.

LOW PRICED FLAT VENTURE PROVES SUCCESS IN N. Y.

Rosenwald's Experiment in Chicago Paralleled.

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Members of the New York state housing commission today endorsed the suggestion that large scale housing projects, similar to the Michigan Boulevard Garden apartments built by Julius Rosenwald in Chicago, might be made an important factor in stimulating business.

The success which has attended the Rosenwald project for Negroes, as set forth by the annual report made public in Chicago Sunday, has been recalled here in all the large scale housing which has been undertaken, according to members of the commission, who emphasized the financial soundness of such enterprises in large cities.

Buildings Return Profit.

Because of the acute shortage of dwellings in New York after the war, laws were passed which permitted the organization of limited dividend housing corporations. All of the construction under this law has proved profitable. There are substantially no vacancies in any of the model dwellings. Dividends are limited to 6 per cent but they are being earned with such regularity that the original difficulty of financing the projects is no longer regarded as serious.

The most spectacular example of the new housing is on Grand street, in the lower east side of Manhattan, one of the most congested areas in the world. It rises four, five and six stories in the midst of a neighborhood of slum tenements, an area marked by its high tuberculosis rate.

Thirty-nine per cent of the tenement apartments in this area contain rooms which have no windows. Eighteen per cent more have windows which open on such narrow areaways that daylight scarcely ever penetrates them.

Lack Sanitary Facilities.

Nearly half of the buildings have their toilet facilities in the halls. There are even some yard toilets left despite the efforts of health authorities, extending over decades, to force landlords to install sanitary facilities inside their buildings.

A recent survey showed that only 10 per cent of the apartments in this area had bathroom facilities and only 15 per cent were provided with private toilets.

A limited dividend corporation, organized under the auspices of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, obtained the entire block, bounded by Grand, Columbia, Sheriff and Broome streets, formerly the site of the R. H. Hoe & Co. factory. The project represents in all an investment of $1,500,000. Two-thirds of the capital was loaned on a mortgage by the Bowery Savings bank.

Rentals Are Low.

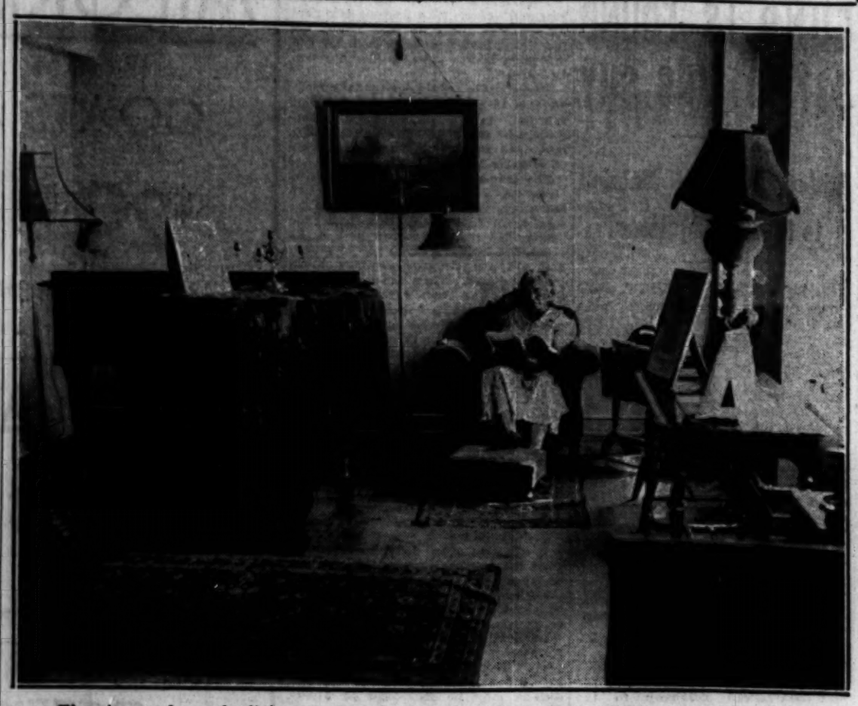
The average monthly rental in the new building is $12.50 per room, the maximum permitted under the law, and some rent for as little as $10 per room per month or $40 a month for a four room apartment. The building runs as high as six stories, but unlike others in the neighborhood, it is equipped with elevators. All rooms and halls are well lighted and all apartments are equipped with modern sanitary facilities.

"Our experience leaves no doubt in our minds of the practicability of these housing ventures," said Aaron Rabinowitz, a member of the state commission. "It is as easy to prove that they can be made to yield a safe return as it is to prove that they are needed. The first efforts to improve living conditions were undertaken by philanthropists; now we are going at it as we would approach any other business proposition."

Mr. Rabinowitz said no difficulty had been encountered in obtaining mortgage loans at 5 per cent from savings banks and insurance companies for 60 per cent of the total cost of a project. It is somewhat more difficult to raise the remaining equity of 40 per cent. He believes that in view of the depression in the building industry, the companies manufacturing steel, cement, brick, millwork, plumbing supplies and other building materials, for which there is now little demand, could profitably invest a portion of their surplus funds in housing equities with a view to creating a market for their own output and at the same time earn 6 per cent on the investment.

The housing law in New York grants to limited dividend corporations tax exemption on their buildings, but not on their land, for twenty years.

New York Indorses Rosenwald Housing Plan



The picture shows the living room in the apartment of Mrs. Mary Williams, which is one of those in the building known as the Michigan Boulevard Garden apartments, erected at 47th street and Michigan avenue by Julius Rosenwald as an experiment to determine whether a housing project on a large scale would pay. The Rosenwald plan was approved yesterday by the New York state housing commission.

WOMAN HANGS SELF IN HOME.

Mrs. Louise Wolff, 53 years old, 3636 Ward street, committed suicide yesterday by hanging herself in a clothes closet of her home. Her husband told the Town Hall police she had been despondent over ill health.

LINDY AWARDED 4TH HONORARY COLLEGE DEGREE

Princeton, N. J., June 16.—[Special.]—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh received his fourth honorary college degree today when Princeton university bestowed on him the degree of master of science at the 184th commencement. The ceremony took place at the graduation of 446 students.

At the same time Frank B. Kellogg, former ambassador to Great Britain, one time secretary of state, and author of the Kellogg peace pact, and Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, were granted the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

Willa Cather, authoress and winner of the Pulitzer prize in 1922, became the first woman ever to receive a degree from Princeton when she was awarded that of doctor of letters.

To members of the graduating class, 369 degrees of bachelor of arts, 53 of bachelor of science and 24 of bachelor of science in engineering were given, conferred by President John Grier Hibben. Sixty-eight commissions in the Field Artillery Officers' Reserve corps, United States army, and 32 doctors of philosophy, 12 advanced fellowships and 41 ordinary fellowships were awarded, in addition to eight graduate scholarships.

ENDS LIFE WITH GUN.

William Davidson, 45 years old, 2407 Flournoy street, a millwright, shot and killed himself with a revolver in his home yesterday. He had been despondent over ill health, police were told.

AGREE THEIR DIVORCE WAS ALL A MISTAKE; HEYMANNS REMARRY

Mrs. Josephine Wedeles Heymann, 5715 Kenwood avenue, daughter of Edward L. Wedeles, treasurer of the Steele-Wedeles company, wholesale grocers, agreed yesterday with her former husband, William R. Heymann, that the divorce she got from him a month ago was a mistake.

They appeared at the county building, obtained a marriage license, and were remarried. Members of their families gathered last night at the Wedeles home to greet them.

Mrs. Heymann gave her age yesterday as 26, and her husband gave his as 32. He is a bond salesman. They were married first on Dec. 1, 1926. She divorced him, on charges of cruelty, on May 14.

Defendant in Swindling Case Absent; Is on Jury

John C. Braschler, one of four men indicted on a charge of operating a confidence game in swindling the South Chicago Auto Finance company through fake automobile mortgages, failed to appear for trial as the case was called yesterday before Judge Philip Finnegan in the Criminal court. A lawyer informed the judge Braschler could not appear as he was serving on a jury in the court of Municipal Judge Justin McCarthy. Judge Finnegan ordered Assistant State's Attorneys Leslie Curtis and Dan Covelli to make an investigation to determine how a man under indictment was called to serve as a juror. The case was continued until July 13.

$458,375 ASKED FROM SCHOOLS TO MEET BOND DEBT

Reminded by City of Interest Due July 1.

Another financial difficulty was placed upon the board of education yesterday when City Controller Szymczak notified President Myers that $458,375 has not been deposited with the city treasurer to pay interest on the board's bonds, due July 1.

The interest is on the $25,000,000 of bonds authorized by the legislature in special session last year to provide a working cash fund for the board. Half of those bonds were sold last year at a discount of $144,037, and the other half this year at a discount of $324,870. This working cash fund was borrowed, as the law contemplated, and has been paid out chiefly in salaries last year and this.

City Changes Its Plan.

Some time ago there was a report that the city administration was planning to advance the money to pay the school bonds interest. The controller's letter yesterday indicates that this plan is not to be carried out.

President Myers of the school board, when asked about the controller's letter, said he had noted the interest payment on his memorandum book, but he did not indicate where he would get the cash.

This interest due July 1 is in addition to $5,145,000 which the board owes in overdue salaries, and about $80,000,000 it owes on tax anticipation warrants for the educational fund, most of which was spent on salaries.

In this connection it is recalled that within a week the school board has asked the legislature to authorize it to issue 50 million dollars' worth of additional bonds for new school houses.

City officials say they are confident of being able to pay about $2,900,000 due from the city in interest on bonds on July 1.

The county, which has $50,000 in bonds and $5,000 in interest due July 1, had not made any arrangements yesterday to meet these obligations. The county defaulted June 1 on $1,868,400 of bonds and interest, and it has $260,000 in interest due Aug. 1 on its working cash fund bonds.

County's Position Uncertain.

It is uncertain how much money the county has on hand. Two days ago it was announced that the county would obtain $928,000 in earnings from fee offices, and from that it was proclaimed that the current pay rolls would be paid. Later it was announced from the treasurer's office that $625,000 of these fees would be retained to reimburse other funds, to pay interest on tax anticipation warrants some time ago, and to make good a $340,000 deficiency in earnings, on the collection of taxes, which he had previously advanced for pay rolls.

From the controllers of Lincoln Park and the Sanitary district came statements yesterday that they expected to meet their bond and interest obligations due on July 1.

CHERRY QUEEN

MAXINE WEAVER.

Miss Maxine Weaver, 17 years old, high school senior of Traverse City, Mich., who recently was chosen queen of a national cherry festival to be held in Traverse City, July 15, 16, and 17, arrived in the Union station over the Pennsylvania Limited yesterday morning. She is beginning a good will tour to urge attendance at the festival.

Leaving the municipal airport by the Transcontinental and Western airline at 12:35 o'clock today, she will visit Fort Wayne, Columbus, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg, Philadelphia, New York, and Washington, where she will call on President Hoover.

Couple Elope to Waukegan; Wed 1:30 A. M. by Justice

John Niese, 22 years old, and Alice Hardy, also 22, both Chicagoans, eloped to Waukegan, routed from bed the Lake county clerk, Louis A. Hendee, and Justice of the Peace Henry F. Wallenwein, and were married at 1:30 o'clock this morning. The groom told the magistrate he was a son of George N. Niese, until recently vice president and director of the Foreman State National bank.

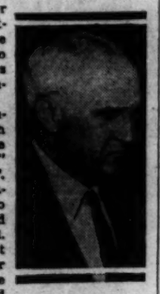
SCHOOL PENSION FUND IS FOUND $37,851,709 SHY

Added Revenue Needed to Meet Obligations.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Chicago school teachers' pension fund has a deficit of $37,851,709. It lacks that much money, or the means of getting it under the present laws, to pay the pensions promised the instructors.



D. F. CAMPBELL. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

"A private concern in such shape would be called 'broke,'" said Donald F. Campbell, actuarial expert who has investigated this pension fund. He stated that the tax levy for the fund must be heavily increased to put it on a sound basis.

"The benefit funds," reported the Cleveland Audit company to the board of education, "are holding out false promises to thousands of teachers; promises that can never be fulfilled. The financial involvements created by this muddle should prompt the board to give this subject immediate consideration."

Pension Charges Upheld.

That advice was given the board in writing on June 3 by the Cleveland concern which was chosen on the advice of a state senate committee to make a survey of Chicago school finances. The board criticized this report on the whole as "discriminatory and incomplete," but the charge against the pension fund is supported from other sources. The preceding legislature ordered the state director of trade and commerce to investigate this fund. He appointed Mr. Campbell, an actuary of extended experience. Mr. Campbell has reported to Gov. Emmerson that the liabilities of the fund exceed its assets, which includes its present power to obtain founds, by a total of $37,851,709. That amount must be raised by increasing the income of the pension fund if the teachers are to get the pensions they are promised.

Mr. Campbell recommended to the governor that the deficit be amortized over a period of 40 years. That means an additional tax for a sinking fund and interest. In 1915 the income of the pension fund was $295,939. To continue paying pensions on the present scale, and amortize the deficit in 40 years, Mr. Campbell reports that it will be necessary for the fund to obtain annually $2,523,500, "the equivalent of 0.7 of a mill on the dollar of assessed valuation in the city for 1929."

Present Tax Is 2.5 Cents.

That means 7 cents for each $100 assessed value. The present tax rate for teachers' pensions is 2.5 cents. If the valuations are decreased, as the assessing bodies predict, the rate will be higher.

The actuary points out that the trouble lies in the fact that the pension system was not started on a sound basis, and the five amendments to the law since have not gotten the system on a basis to pay out.

The teachers at present are contributing to their pension fund on the following schedule: $10 a year for each teacher in the service less than four years, $15 between four and eight years, $25 between eight and 12 years, and $50 for teachers serving more than 12 years. Then the board is obligated to put in the fund annually twice as much as the teachers from the revenue produced by a tax of 2.5 cents on each $100 valuation.

The teachers have bills before the present legislature to increase their contributions about two and a half times, and also increase the amount the board shall contribute. If these bills become laws Mr. Campbell estimates that the $37,851,709 deficit will be amortized in about 100 years.

A Pay Roll Provision.

"In addition to this pension scheme," reads the report of the Cleveland Audit company, "the school board is obligated under the Miller act, effective since 1927, to carry retired teachers on its pay rolls for life under a sliding scale arrangement."

Under this act teachers retiring at 60 years of age receive $1,000. This is increased $100 a year until the teacher who retires at 70 years of age receives the maximum of $1,500 a year. This added to the pension of $800 a year, which under certain conditions may be increased to $1,000, gives a retired pension teacher from $2,300 to $2,500 a year.

"Nothing," says the Cleveland Audit company, "could be more chaotic than this dual arrangement. Both of the schemes are fundamentally unsound."

The audit company points out to the board that the report of the state director of trade and commerce "should be a matter of grave concern to the board, the teachers and the taxpayers of Chicago."

FOUR FOREMAN DIRECTORS TO GO TO 1ST NATIONAL

Traylor Announces Plan After Board Meeting.

Four members of the directorate of the Foreman-State National bank and the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank have been offered places on the board of directors of the First National bank, which absorbed the Foreman banks on June 8.

The announcement was made yesterday by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National, after a meeting of the board of his bank. There is only one vacancy at present on the board and a stockholders' meeting will have to approve an increase in its size to accommodate the presence of the former Foreman directors.

Those named by Traylor, who have all signified their intention of accepting, are Albert D. Lasker, John Hertz, John R. Dole, and Charles A. McCulloch.

No announcement was made as to the future of the personnel of the former Foreman banks. According to Mr. Traylor, there had not been time as yet to settle this question.

The First National directorate voted to pay the usual quarterly dividend of $4.50 to stockholders of record June 30.

Vote Bonus to Employés.

The directors ordered that all employés, other than officers, be paid a bonus of one-half a month's salary for their labors during the period of absorption of the Foreman institutions. Former Foreman employés who have been taken over by the First National-First Union Trust will share in this disbursement with the employés of the absorbing institutions.

Another development of the afternoon meeting was the announcement that Harry A. Wheeler, vice chairman of the board of the First National and its affiliated institution, the First Union Trust and Savings bank, would retire from active office on July 1. He has reached the age of retirement and is eligible under the bank's pension plan for retirement. He will remain as a director of the First National group of banks and as a member of the executive committee.

New Central-Republic Details.

Details for the consolidation of the Central Trust company and the National Bank of the Republic, were being worked out smoothly. Some of the misunderstandings concerning this merger began to disappear yesterday in the face of fuller information.

The first announcements carried the information that the capital of the new Central-Republic Bank and Trust company would be $14,000,000 and the surplus $14,000,000. Six-fourteenths of the capital is to be furnished by the National Bank of the Republic and eight-fourteenths by the Central Trust company.

There is also to be a security affiliate with capital of $5,000,000, this capital to be furnished in similar proportions. Thus of a total of $33,000,000 the Central will furnish $17,860,000 and the National Bank of the Republic will furnish $14,140,000.

Explanation of Capital.

Items in the capital accounts of the two institutions as they exist today are larger, and it has been puzzling to some of those not bankwise as to what is to happen to the difference in the total capital of the two banks and the capital structure of the new consolidated institution.

There is, it has been pointed out, nothing mysterious about this." The National Bank of the Republic has in capital, surplus and other available items about $5,000,000 more than it will put into the consolidation. These excess assets will be retained by the present stockholders of the National Bank of the Republic. They will be liquidated in an orderly manner and at some time in the future the proceeds of liquidation will be distributed to the Republic stockholders.

Similarly the Central Trust company will retain its excess assets over the $18,860,000 for the benefit of its own present stockholders after a similar period of liquidation. On March 25 the Central Trust company capital was $12,000,000, the surplus $8,000,000 and the undivided profits $3,398,653.

CROWN BELGIAN GIRL QUEEN OF UNIVERSE AT BEAUTY CONTEST

Galveston, Tex., June 16.—(AP)—"Miss Belgium," Miss Nelta Duchatau, was crowned beauty queen of the universe at the twelfth annual international beauty pageant here tonight.

She defeated "Miss United States," Anne Lee Patterson of Ludlow, Ky., on the last ballot of the judges.

"Miss Memphis," Lena Thomas, was awarded the third prize of $250. "Miss Germany," Daisy Freiberg, won fourth prize of $150, and "Miss Atlanta," Pat Hall, fifth prize, $100.

"Miss Universe" is 17 years old and has long, dark hair. She was almost overcome with excitement after the verdict was announced and had to leave the stage for a moment. She embraced her chaperon and both wept a trifle.

YEARS OF KISSES TOLD IN $50,000 FIGHT FOR BALM

Necking parties in a parked automobile and in the home of a friend, participated in by Miss Lillian McQuillan, 35 years old, and William H. Evans, owner of the Evans Flexible Reamer corporation, 3513 Lincoln avenue, were described by Miss McQuillan's friends yesterday at the trial of her $50,000 suit for breach of promise against Evans.

Miss McQuillan took the stand first before Judge Marcus Kavanagh in the Superior court and described her romance with Evans, a married man, which ran for nearly ten years before it broke up due to his indifference, she charged.

They met in a dance hall shortly after Evans' return from the war, she testified, and on Nov. 1, 1919, he proposed to her.

"I said, 'Yes,' because I thought he was the most wonderful man I'd ever known," Miss McQuillan testified.

Later, however, Evans kept postponing their marriage because of business difficulties, she charged, and in 1928, she asserted, she had to talk him out of the idea of a suicide pact which he suggested as a way out of his business troubles.

Mrs. Adolph Westerman, 667 Fairview street, Elmhurst, testified that Evans and Miss McQuillan visited her home on an average of twice a week between 1919 and 1925. Miss McQuillan showed her an engagement ring in 1919, and she and Evans discussed their marriage plans with her, Mrs. Westerman testified.

But she admitted on cross-examination by Attorney Victor Frohlich, representing Evans, that she knew the ring had been given to Miss McQuillan by her former husband.

"Evans sure loved her," Mrs. Westerman said. "They only used one chair when they were at my house. They were always kissing and embracing."

Evans will take the stand today.

Clara Bow Declines $15,000 a Week Vaudeville Job

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—[Special.]—Clara Bow rejected an offer of $15,000 a week to go into vaudeville for a limited number of weeks, it was learned today. She arrived at the Nevada ranch near Las Vegas which she and her fiancé, Rex Bell, recently bought. She declined the vaudeville offer because she still is under doctor's orders recuperating from a recent illness and because she prefers to return to Hollywood and attempt a picture comeback this summer.

Enemy Fanelli Lands in Cell—Stays Only an Hour

Rocco Fanelli, public enemy, landed in a detective bureau cell again yesterday, but not for long. Sergt. Patrick McShane and his detective squad seized Fanelli near Polk and Morgan streets after their second trip to the corner. Fanelli was locked up at 4 o'clock, and Sergt. McShane notified all stations to have robbery victims at the showup tonight to view the hoodlum suspect. Then Jimmy Belcastro, Fanelli's brother-in-law, who is also a public enemy, called on Chief of Detectives John Norton. When Belcastro had finished Fanelli was charged with disorderly conduct and released on $25 bond at 5 o'clock.

Alcock Given Report on Shooting by Cop

Capt. Thomas Duffy of the Sheffield avenue police station yesterday stated that he had sent a report to Acting Police Commissioner Alcock on Policeman William Hoban, who was accused of firing several shots into the automobile of George Schweikert, 1970 North Halsted street, following a minor accident a week ago. The story of the policeman's actions was brought out when Schweikert was arraigned before Judge Leon Edelman in the Town Hall court a few days ago. Judge Edelman recommended that the policeman be taken before the civil service commission.

ALDERMEN HEAR EXPERTS TALK ON BETTER TRAFFIC

Superhighways Get Boost in Conference.

Traffic control, superhighways and accident prevention were discussed at a conference under the auspices of the city council's committee on traffic and public safety last night in the La Salle hotel.

Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, said he was gratified by the cooperation shown by the various groups which are working toward a solution of the city's complex traffic problem. Col. A. A. Sprague, commissioner of public works, spoke of the careful consideration needed of proposals advanced to improve traffic conditions.

Evanston Methods Told.

F. M. Kreml, director of the bureau of accident prevention of the Evanston police department, told how his suburb has reduced the automobile death toll by educating the public, remedying conditions which lead to accidents at certain corners, and using the police force effectively in bringing reckless drivers to justice.

Mr. Kreml has been employed by the traffic committee to establish a bureau of accident prevention in Chicago, similar to that in Evanston.

Dr. Miller McClintock, head of the Erskine traffic research bureau of Harvard university, pointed out that right in its own front yard Chicago has one of the greatest examples of the superhighway in the world—the outer drive.

He pointed out the success of the superhighway in sections of other cities, notably New York, calling attention to the magnificent drive through Westchester Park where grades are separated at all intersections for miles.

A Word of Caution.

Dr. McClintock said that Chicago must plan its superhighway system so that it will be coördinated, unit by unit, with a broad development linked with state and federal roads.

Frank T. Sheets, chief engineer of the Illinois highway department, said that this summer the state would begin helping the city maintain and improve those streets over which state roads pass.

John A. Massen, chairman of the council committee, told of plans for the adoption of uniform traffic laws throughout the city.

75 YEARS OLD

Jacksonville, Ill., June 16.—(Special.)—Andrew Russel, twice treasurer and twice auditor of the state of Illinois, will observe his 75th birthday anniversary tomorrow. He is now a member of the state board of paroles and pardons and is state central committeeman from the Twentieth district.

POLICE CAPTAIN HEARD BY JURY IN BOMB QUIZ

Capt. Patrick Collins and two other witnesses yesterday appeared before the grand jury, which has started an investigation into the three recent bombings in Austin and Oak Park. The investigation was ordered by Frank O'Dowd, foreman of the jury, who was aroused by the bombing of a building occupied by the Thomas L. Harrigan auto sales agency, 438 Madison street, Oak Park. The jury foreman lives in the neighborhood.

Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury, who is acting under orders of the jury, quizzed Capt. Collins and the other witnesses. The first two bombs were in the police district commanded by Capt. Collins and the jury wanted to know what he uncovered in his investigation.

The names of the other two witnesses were kept secret at the orders of the jury. It was neither affirmed nor denied that Harrigan, owner of the automobile agency, was one of the witnesses. The investigation will continue with the questioning of other witnesses later in the week.

WORK OF JUDGES FOUND LIGHTER WITHOUT JURIES

Courts Also Disclosed as More Lenient.

Comparisons have been made by the Chicago crime commission of the Criminal court records of the first five months of 1930 with the records of the first five months of 1931 in an effort to determine the effect of the Supreme court decision permitting defendants to waive trial by jury in criminal cases. The comparisons, as disclosed yesterday, indicate that the judges are more lenient than juries.

It had been expected that the establishment of the Felony court and the public defender system and the jury waiver decision would speed up justice. Crime commission observers reported, however, that while the changed procedure makes far less work for the courts, the judges are not spending as much time on the bench as formerly, though they are disposing of almost as many cases.

One result of the changes is that for the five months of 1931 there have been only 8 or 9 judges assigned to the criminal branch, compared with twelve during the same period of 1930.

Time Spent on Bench.

The records showed that in the five months of 1930, the average of 12 judges spent a total time of 5,589 hours on the bench, whereas 3,292 were spent by the average of 8½ judges from Jan. 1 to May 31, 1931. Days absent were less, 191 in 1931 and 217 in 1930.

The records show that in 1931 there was a falling off in the number of persons sent to the penitentiary, to Pontiac, and to the county jail, while there was an increase in the prisoners sent to the House of Correction. It was noted that probation was granted in more cases, also that more new trials were given.

It was last August that Criminal court judges were authorized to grant a trial without jury on the request of the defendant. Almost immediately, some of the defendants began intrusting their cases to the judges in preference to juries. Records show that from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, 1930, 568 defendants waived right to trial by jury, and during the first five months of this year, 734 defendants have so chosen, making a total of 1,302.

Results Are Tabulated.

The record of results, as compiled by the crime commission, comparing the month of May, 1930, with May, 1931, and also the entire five month period in each of the two years is shown in the following table:

	1931 May.	1930 May.	1931 5 mos.	1930 5 mos.

Not guilty of misdemeanor [plea of not guilty]	12	6	36	42

This table is not comparable with 1930 because there were no bench trials of felonies on pleas of not guilty in the first five months of 1930.

BANKERS MAKE RESTITUTION AND MUST PAY FINES

Benton Harbor, Mich., June 16.—[Special.]—Fred W. Gast, vice president, and Paul Berndt, cashier of the defunct Bridgman State bank, Bridgman, Mich., charged with embezzlement of the bank's funds last fall, each paid a fine of $500 when placed on probation here today by Circuit Judge C. E. White in Berrien county Circuit court and ordered to make restitution. Each was placed on probation for five years.

The bankers pleaded guilty Feb. 9, waiving examination, being bound over to the Circuit court. Their $3,000 bonds each were continued. Warrants for the officials were issued after authorities discovered an alleged $14,550.74 shortage.

Gast was accused of embezzling $8,894.74 and Berndt, $5,656. In addition to fines Gast paid $500 costs and Berndt $250 costs.

BRITISH, GERMAN, FRENCH CABINETS ESCAPE DEFEAT

Austrian Government Out in Financial Crisis.

Three "Crises" Fade

Three European governments escaped tumbling yesterday. A fourth government resigned.

A technicality in parliamentary procedure toppled the British cabinet.

The British cabinet won a vote of confidence after a bitter attack on Foreign Minister Briand.

The German government was saved when the council of elders voted against a vote on the reichstag to act on the deflationary decrees of Chancellor Bruening.

The Austrian cabinet resigned, due to the financial difficulties which the nation is facing.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 16.—All London is laughing tonight—its biggest laugh in years. Even the wiseacres at Westminster—though the laugh is at their expense—are greeting the joke hilariously. For the great "political crisis" bubble which provided front page news for more than a week past, burst with a bang today.

And a greatly advertised "crisis" ended in a comic sequel. All the terrible things threatened for days past to due for tonight, were suddenly dissolved in thin air. The salient features now emerging are that there will be no general election; the government will not be defeated and resign; and the grim chancellor of the exchequer, Philip Snowden, will not go into retirement.

How "Crisis" Began.

The Liberal party leaders had called an amendment to the Labor government's land tax proposals, which the government refused to accept. Mr. MacDonald declared that if the amendment was passed the cabinet would resign. There followed day and night conferences between cabinet members and Liberal leaders, costly negotiations at Downing street and in private committee rooms in the house of commons. Then, at the eleventh hour this afternoon, it was learned that the Liberals had rejected the amendment in a form the government would accept.

Shortly afterwards the house of commons met, all primed for the crisis. The solemn moment arrived for the passation of the amendment. Then came the surprise. The Rev. Robert Dennico, deputy chairman of committees, ruled it out of order. He pointed out that as it proposed to alter the basis of assessment, the amendment should have been put down in clause 14 of the bill, or as a separate clause, and not to clause 20, which the Liberals sought to amend. Clause 14 was passed several days ago. Laughter, loud and long greeted the decision.

BRUENING DECREES WIN

BY RICHARD SCHULTZE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 16. — Chancellor Bruening is absolute master of the political situation in Germany tonight after a stormy day of political conference. Those ended with the chancellor as victor because he succeeded in convincing the parties that for the sake of backing a revision of reparations payments, they must give the government a free hand to take necessary steps, unhampered by word battles in the reichstag.

Toward dawn this morning, after an all night meeting, Chancellor Bruening warned reluctantly party leaders that all preparations had been made for the proclamation of a dictatorship and martial law should they balk. The usually mild chancellor had worked himself into a rage and was heard to say that the day was not far away when they could sit back and watch the communists overthrow the republic and that they would not lift a finger to help the government.

Snowden and Mellon.

The argument which really won over the German peoples' party and the Bavarians was that about the reparations. Chancellor Bruening is said to have told the party leaders confidentially that at the recent conference at Chequers with Prime Minister MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, the latter advised him to enter formal application for revision or postponement of reparations until after his visits to Europe of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of State Stimson. The British, he said, felt certain that both American statesmen would advise Germany and France to get together and talk over reparations as a plain business problem.

They added that this suggestion, coming from "the most powerful nation in the world, could not be overlooked by France." Chancellor Bruening said that a cabinet crisis now would endanger all of these negotiations. This reasoning won over the leaders.

Plans Meeting of Envoys.

After his victory, Chancellor Bruening immediately started preparatory work in the compaign for revision of reparations payments. The German ambassador to Rome, Von Schubert, reported to the chancellor tonight that early next week he and Leopold von Hoesch, German ambassador to Paris, will come to Berlin and remain here until Freidrich von Prittwitz, German ambassador to Washington, arrives to take part in a general diplomatic conference.

Since Mr. Stimson is due in Berlin in July, Berlin expects that formal application for postponement of reparations payments will be filed on Aug. 15, the day when Germany makes her monthly Young plan payment. Meanwhile, it is understood here, the Bank of England governor, Montagu Norman, will confer with the chief of the Bank of France and other countries involved in reparations to prepare for the nomination of their representatives to a reparations advisory committee which must meet after Germany files application for the postponement of her payments, as provided by the Young plan.

Austrian Cabinet Falls.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Austria, June 16.—Chancellor Otto Ender and his cabinet resigned today. President Miklas asked the cabinet to continue in office until a new government had been formed.

The difficulties of the great Austrian bank, Credit Anstalt, brought about the resignation. Earlier in the day Dr. Otto Jugh, minister of finance, signed an agreement with foreign creditors of the bank giving a state guarantee for short term credits of about $80,000,000 which the institution is to receive to tide it over the crisis.

Dr. Franz Winkler, minister of the interior, insisted that the agreement, which runs for two years, with a renewal clause, would tie the hands of the government for any other loans during that period. He resigned, and later the entire cabinet followed suit.

Briand Policy Wins.

PARIS, June 15.—(AP)—Thanks to the intervention of Premier Laval, Aristide Briand, France's veteran foreign minister, today weathered another bitter attack on his foreign policy in the chamber of deputies. It was the third assault within a fortnight. The chamber voiced approval of his policy, 310 to 267.

Except for an "All that you say is false!" at his chief critic, Deputy Franklin-Bouillon, Briand himself did not take part in the debate. Premier Laval reminded the deputies that it would be most dangerous to seek a new lineup in the chamber at a moment when France's foreign policy demanded tact and adroitness more than ever.

LAWYERS CLASH AS TRIAL OF PANTAGES DRAWS TO A CLOSE

San Diego, Cal., June 16.—(AP)—District Attorney Tom Whelan, 28 year old prosecutor, answered in a fiery address to the jury in the "Girl Market" case today attacks by attorneys for Alexander Pantages, showman, and three other defendants upon Buron Fitts, Los Angeles county prosecutor.

"I hold no brief for Mr. Fitts," Whelan said, "but I know him for a conscientious law enforcement officer, and evidence was produced here that his treatment of Lydia Nitto, the complaining witness in this case, was no different from that accorded other witnesses in Los Angeles."

At adjournment tonight the last of the five defense attorneys had spoken and only one prosecution argument remained.

Adam Thompson, representing Pantages, made the concluding defense address. He asked the jury to free Pantages and permit him to return to his home in Los Angeles.

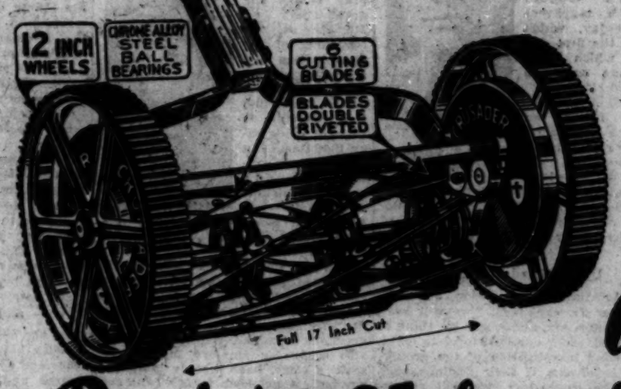
Now-Here's Something to Brag About!

SUBURBAN "LIMITED" TOPICS

A $17 Value for 9.95

Open Thursday to 9 P. M.



When your neighbor begins talking about his lawn and what a hard job he has of mowing it—tell him, "Why it's a cinch!" Just tell him you own a Sears Crusader Lawn Mower—

And Tell Him You Paid $9.95 for this $17.00 Mower

He'll Listen

Say to him—"Since I've had the CRUSADER mine has been the most talked about lawn in the neighborhood—smooth, level cut, even, like the face of velvet."

And—if he argues—say to him

"Use My Crusader"

The argument will stop in a flash. Then, with a sort of knowing smile you can begin to tell him what to expect of the CRUSADER.

He'll listen.

The 6 Blades—say, that means one long, continuous s-s-s-s-snip something the mower must have to give an even, level cut, like the face of velvet. And the way those blades throw that grass back into the grass catcher, just proves how sharp and clean the cutting is.

And keep on telling him—Work? Why, it's no work to have a beautiful lawn. The CRUSADER, with its 12 inch wheels, goes over a lawn like an express—fast! And every time you walk (walk, not push) down the lawn there's a 17 inch strip cut clean, smooth, level, even. Sweet running—say, there's no effort at all!

BALL BEARINGS—the CRUSADER just rolls on ball bearings—there are so many of them—they'll last a lifetime. And how those blades whirl around, they cut clean and with every turn of the wheel the blades are sharpened, too.

What's more—the CRUSADER is quiet—the neighbors don't have to listen to a rattle—rattle—crackle—crackle—plunk—plunk—(or whatever noise the old lawn mowers make). The CRUSADER is quiet, with a 4 Pawl Drive system that lasts indefinitely.

What a Lawn Mower the Crusader Is

"S'long, Neighbor—Meet You on the 5:15 Tonight."

"Certainly, take my Crusader tonight, and I'll just bet you'll go to a Sears store and buy one for yourself."

ORGANIZE FIGHT ON CHAIN STORE TAX IN ASSEMBLY

Officials Ask Hearing in Senate Committee.

Thirty Chicago chain store owners and officials, meeting yesterday at the headquarters of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, condemned the chain store tax bill pending at Springfield as unfair, confiscatory, and another prospective tax burden on the public. They urged its defeat by the senate.

FREDERICK MASSMANN. [La Vecchia Photo.]

Frederick Massmann, vice president of the National Tea company and chairman of a committee named to fight the bill, announced following the meeting that a hearing will be sought before the senate revenue committee at which his group hopes to present its arguments against the measure. He said he had confidence, however, that the bill would not be enacted.

Passed by House on June 12.

The chain store tax bill, introduced by Anthony Pintozzi [Dem., Chicago] was passed by the house on June 12 by a vote of 135 to 0. It went to the senate yesterday and was referred to the revenue committee which reported it back to the senate late in the day with no recommendation, but with a string of amendments.

The bill requires any person operating and owning more than three business establishments or stores known as chain stores, in the retail of food products, meats, groceries, drugs, tobacco, wearing apparel, furniture, hardware or manufactured products to procure a license. A fee of $25 for the first three stores and $1,000 for each additional store would be paid annually to the department of trade and commerce. Violation would be a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of $1,000 to $5,000.

Among the amendments submitted by the senate committee yesterday was one exempting coal and lumber yards, ice, hardware and lumber dealers from the provisions. When the bill is presented on second reading today another amendment is expected reducing the $1,000 fee to $100.

Warns of Injury to Business.

Mr. Massmann issued a statement which warned that the bill would drive business out of the state. Many of the smaller chain stores now, he said, would be thankful for an annual profit as large as the proposed tax. He argued that such a tax would encourage extravagance in state spending and open the way for increasing the tax upon all business at succeeding sessions of the legislature.

"The sound advantage resulting from the economies of chain store distribution as compared to the old régime of extravagant distribution evidently are not understood by our legislators," said Mr. Massmann. "We are confident that if they understood the advantages as clearly as the consuming public the proposed legislation would be defeated."

FOUND DEAD

LYNN J. RICHARDS.

Lynn J. Richards, 56 years old, cashier of the United State bank of Crystal Lake, Ill., which was closed recently, was found dead behind his automobile on a lonely dirt road a mile west of Crystal Lake yesterday morning. Coroner Edward Cook of McHenry county conducted an inquest and a verdict of death from a cerebral hemorrhage was returned.

Employes of the Public Service company found Richards' body. A rear tire of the car had been punctured and tire tools were strewn about.

Richards had apparently been changing a tire when he collapsed. His health had been poor, his friends said.

Richards had been cashier of the bank for 15 years. He was also president of the Community High school board of Crystal Lake and otherwise prominent in the town. He is survived by his widow and adopted daughter, Virginia.

The bank was closed on May 29 on order of State Auditor Oscar Nelson. Richards owed the bank $21,000, it was disclosed, but Mr. Nelson said there was no evidence that this loan was illegal in any manner.

ASSESSORS PASS TAX COMPLAINTS UP TO REVIEWERS

Property Owners Crowd Offices of Board.

The board of assessors, it was announced yesterday, will make no changes on its books as a result of the thousands of complaints which the board began to receive during the day against the 1930 assessments. The assessors' rooms were crowded with taxpayers yesterday, which was the first day on which complaints could be heard.

J. E. TRAEGER JR. [Wallinger Photo.]

The books for the towns on which complaints were received yesterday are already being footed, it was stated. To change valuations which taxpayers claim are unjust would mean a large amount of clerical labor would have to be done over.

Up to Board of Review.

"Accordingly," Assessor John E. Traeger Jr. explained, "we will hear the complaints, and where we think it justified, order our field force to make a second investigation of the properties involved. If their findings bear out the complaints, we will recommend to the board of review that it change the assessments in making its revision. The reviewers have promised to receive our recommendations and make the changes."

The necessity of rushing through the assessment work, already long behind schedule, was the reason given for the procedure. For the same reason, yesterday was the only day assigned by the assessors to hear complaints from the towns of Barrington, Bremen, Bloom, Berwyn, Cicero, Calumet, Elk Grove, Hanover, Lemont, and Leyden.

Plan May Go Awry.

Tax experts pointed out that the reviewers may be swamped, as they were last year, with complaints filed directly with them, and that any recommendations which the board of assessors makes regarding changes, may be overlooked in the rush.

Approximately 1,000 taxpayers who filed complaints yesterday were given an immediate hearing. Instead of sitting jointly, Assessors Traeger, Walter W. L. Meyer, and Gene G. Oliver heard the complaints separately.

Today complaints will be heard from the towns of Lyons, Maine, New Trier, Northfield, Oak Park, Norwood Park, Orland, Palatine, Palos, and Proviso. The remaining country towns are set for hearings tomorrow and those from Chicago on Friday.

DAN SERRITELLA SUBPŒNAED ON SHORT WEIGHTS

DAN SERRITELLA.

State Senator Dan Serritella, Capone lieutenant and city sealer in the former administration, has been subpœnaed to appear before the grand jury on Monday at the reopening of the investigation on short weight selling by merchants.

An indication that the state is seeking conspiracy indictments in the case was given yesterday when Assistant State's Attorney Harold M. Keele referred the subpœna to Attorney Edwin J. Raber, formerly of the state's attorney's staff and an acknowledged indictment expert.

Harry Hochstein, former chief deputy city sealer under Serritella, and Serritella's brother, William Serritella, also a former employé in the city sealer's office, have already been subpœnaed. A subpœna for Al Tallinger, secretary of Serritella, has not been served.

Assistant State's Attorney Keele said the subpœnas for William Serritella and Hochstein, although they were issued sometime ago, had been served without his knowledge. He said he will not ask Hochstein to go before the jury when he presents himself today.

TWO OF HILLMAN ROBBERS GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

Third, Who Testifies, Is Given 40 Years.

Charles Wollard, 22 years old, and James Zeman, 24 years old, were sentenced to life imprisonment on each of two charges of murder, and their companion, Samuel Goldstein, 23 years old, was sentenced to two 40 year terms on the same charges, by Judge Joseph Sabath in the Criminal court yesterday. All sentences are to run concurrently.

All Plead Guilty.

The three men pleaded guilty to the killing of Eugene Toro and Max Axelrod in an attempted robbery at the Hillman Food store, 24 West Washington street, last Jan. 24. Evidence was presented against them last week. The state did not ask the death penalty, as prosecutors believed it unlikely such punishment would be imposed on the testimony of but one witness.

The lienency of the court was asked for Goldstein by Assistant State's Attorneys Ross Lee Laird and Walker Butler. Goldstein took the stand and confessed to the robbery attempt after a cashier was unable to identify the bandits because all wore masks. The robbery was plotted from information supplied by Goldstein, who was formerly employed in the store.

Kill Money Guards.

On the day of the robbery the three bandits hid outside of the cashier's office and suddenly confronted the two guards and a woman cashier. The guards were shot as they reached for their weapons. The bandits fled without loot and were captured several weeks later. Zeman had planned to plea insanity, but threw his lot with the others when they entered pleas of guilty.

The trio will be taken to Joliet this week. Zeman and Wollard will be eligible for parole after serving 20 years and 3 months, and Goldstein after 14 years.

MAYOR SUGGESTS 4 WAYS TO TRIM CITY'S PAY ROLLS

Spread of Jobs and Cut of Vacations Considered.

A five day week in the city hall, with the Saturday forenoon holidays eliminated for vacations was discussed yesterday by Mayor Cermak as one of several ways to reduce pay rolls. The employe would receive the same pay but no vacations.

That plan was one of four which he submitted a committee of his cabinet to consider. The committee, consisting of Corporation Counsel Sexton, Commissioner of Public Works Bowler, Health Commissioner Bundesen, Controller Szymczak, Collector Knoll and President Lindheimer of the board of public improvements, is to draft a report on the proposals within a few days.

Four Economy Plans.

The proposals, all of which include smaller pay checks or lessened privileges, are as follows:

1. Employes would either be placed under the five day week, losing time from their vacation periods for the Saturday morning holidays, or would be alternated in employment, working two weeks and laying off two weeks. The latter proposals, which the mayor suggested for mechanics employed by the city, has already been accepted and is in force among city plumbers and a score of laborers.

2. City employes would be granted their regular two weeks vacation with pay, and would be required to take an additional week off without pay.

3. Pay rolls would be trimmed by dropping of all employes not essential. In this connection, the mayor pointed out that a number of departments have already dropped all of their temporary appointees, and that further reductions will mean the dropping of civil service employes. Corporation Counsel Sexton was instructed to investigate the possibility of such action.

Would Abolish Sick Leave.

4. The fifteen days sick leave with pay, now allowed most city employes, would be abolished. This privilege has been abused by employes in some departments, it is charged. The proposed change would not affect firemen and policemen who are visited by a city physician as soon as they report sick.

"All business houses are carrying out retrenchments of this character," said Mayor Cermak in making his proposals. "I do not see why the city should not do the same.

"We have $21,000,000 to make up somewhere. We will probably get only 70 per cent of our 1929 taxes. Only 52 per cent are in now. The budget was based on 91 per cent collection, and we will have to make up the difference in revenue by cutting expenses."

The alternative periods of employment, with intervening layoffs for the workers, was suggested to provide employment for as many workers as possible. The mayor suggested that the fee offices, which are bringing revenue to the city, be exempt from that provision.

"There is one painter," he said in illustration of his point, "who has been working for the city for twenty years and is now paid $325 a month. Surely he has saved some of his money. With 75 per cent of the painters out of work, I think it is on more than right to split the work between two man so that two families can be supported."

DETROIT TO ASK FORD TO SHARE DOLE OF 1½ MILLION MONTH

Detroit, Mich., June 19.—(AP)—The city of Detroit tonight was preparing to ask the Ford Motor company to assume a portion of the $1,500,000 monthly municipal dole expense.

Indications of this intention were forthcoming from Mayor Frank Murphy's office when Thomas E. Dolan, superintendent of public welfare, submitted to the mayor a letter in which he asked the Ford company where the city should send 8,000 former Ford employes he said are receiving municipal doles.

In the letter Dolan called the Ford company's attention to the statement of Harry H. Bennett, its service director, that the company cared for its own "welfare cases."

Dolan's letter and an investigation now being made by the police department are an aftermath of Bennett's charge that the city had paid dole to 329 persons who actually were employed at the Ford factory at the time, and that other fraud is extensive.

Return Open Verdict on Pastor's Fall to Death

A coroner's jury yesterday returned an open verdict after an inquest into the death of the Rev. S. S. Plumb, minister of the Church of the Brethern at Polo, Ill., who fell or leaped from a window of the Bethany hospital, 3429 Van Buren street, early yesterday. Testimony was given by hospital officials who found the minister dying on the front steps directly beneath his open window, and by a brother, J. D. Plumb of Polo, who said that he knew of no motive for suicide. He said his brother had come to Chicago on May 31 for a rest cure after a nervous breakdown.

THE PRESIDENT TO THE NATION.

One of the highest duties of an American President, probably in the long run the highest, is the guidance of public opinion, especially in times of confused and anxious thinking, in crises of doubt and discouragement. Not all of our Presidents have been capable of fulfilling this duty. Our greater Presidents have made their most enduring fame by performing it. In his address at Indianapolis Mr. Hoover reveals an understanding of conditions, a grasp of the forces controlling the national welfare and an insight into American principles of progress which express his intellectual qualities at their best. If the American people will read, ponder and inwardly digest what he has said upon this occasion we shall be saved from much ill-advised experimentation and costly error.

In the field of economics and the building up of the American edifice of material prosperity there is no more discerning and stalwart champion of American individualism than Mr. Hoover, and this championship has never been more needed, never indeed so much needed, as now when general business depression shakes the faith of many and invites our weakness to mistaken concessions and plausible curealls. What is of vital importance, as the President's wise message emphasizes, is courage and unflinching confidence in our ability to overcome our difficulties in the American way. There is no reason to be found in our experience as a people for deserting American principles of progress—progress through the character, the intelligence and the resourcefulness of free men. That is the American faith. There is nothing in the experience and the present condition of the old world which justifies adoption of its methods, though the air is full today of proposals whose inspiration comes from that source. If under the pressure of conditions far less serious than any supplied by the great nations of Europe, and at the invitation of plausible proponents of economic and social curealls, we depart from the path which has led us so far, we are surely the weakest and most gullible of peoples.

The gist, it seems to us, of Mr. Hoover's statesmanly advice is to hold firmly to the American faith.

There is clear reason to do so. Our chief danger is fear and apprehension. "Fear and apprehension," said Mr. Hoover, "whether their origins are domestic or foreign, are very real, tangible economic forces. Fear of loss of a job or uncertainty as to the future has caused millions of our people unnecessarily to reduce their purchases of goods, thereby decreasing our production and employment. These uncertainties lead our bankers and business men to extreme caution, and in consequence a mania for liquidation has reduced our stocks of goods and our credits far below any necessity. All these apprehensions and actions check enterprise and lessen our national activities. With no desire to minimize the realities of suffering or the stern task of recovery, we must appraise the other side of this picture. If we proceed with sanity we must not look only at the empty hole in the middle of the doughnut."

This is not a mere glittering generality, of no practical concern to us amid our present concrete tribulations. Mr. Hoover points to substantial facts and controlling forces now actually in operation, if little regarded in our present mood. "We must bear in mind at all times," he reminds us, "our marvelous resources in land, mines, mills, man power, brain power, and courage. Over 95 per cent of our families have either an income or a breadwinner employed. Our people are working harder and are resolutely engaged, individually and collectively, in overhauling and improving their methods and services.

"That is the fundamental method of repair to the wreckage from our boom of two years ago; it is the remedy to the impacts from abroad. It takes time, but it is going on. Although fear has resulted in unnecessary reduction in spending, yet these very reductions are piling up savings in our savings banks until today they are the largest in our history. Surplus money does not remain idle for long.

"Ultimately it is the most insistent promoter of enterprise and of optimism. Consumption of retail goods in many lines is proceeding at a higher rate than last year. The harvest prospects indicate recovery from the drought and increased employment in handling the crop. Revolutions in many countries have spent themselves, and stability is on the ascendancy."

Confidence restored through a sane reliance upon the fundamental realities of American strength is the first and chief essential of our recovery, and it is to be won by the exercise of our common sense. Anxiety is inevitable, as Mr. Hoover and every straight thinking mind must acknowledge, but it should stimulate courageous effort and sensible use of our resources, not paralyze them. Especially it should not be permitted to lead us to hasty resorts and fallacious remedies. The most mischievous of these is the demand for huge drafts upon the capital resources of the nation to be turned over to government agencies, to politics, in fact, as a short cut to employment. Mr. Hoover analyzes the basic fallacy of this panacea:

"While I am a strong advocate of expansion of useful public works in hard times, and we have trebled our federal expenditure in aid of unemployment, yet there are limitations upon the application of this principle. Not only must we refrain from robbing industry and commerce of its capital, and thereby increasing unemployment, but such works require long engineering and legal interludes before they produce actual employment. Above all, schemes of public works which have no reproductive value would result in sheer waste. The remedy to economic depression is not waste, but the creation and distribution of wealth. . . .

"We have had one proposal after another which amounts to a dole from the federal treasury. The largest is that of unemployment insurance. I have long advocated such insurance as an additional measure of safety against rainy days, but only through private enterprise or through cooperation of industry and labor itself. The moment the government enters into this field it invariably degenerates into a dole.

"For nothing can withstand the political pressures which carry governments over this dangerous border. The net results of governmental doles are to lower wages toward the bare subsistence level and to endow the slacker. It imposes the injustice of huge burdens upon farmers and other callings which receive no benefits. I am proud that so representative an organization as the American Federation of Labor has refused to approve such schemes."

Mr. Hoover's defense of our tariff policy and his suggestions as to the need for corrections in the functioning of our reserve system, and our speculative activities, and for a reconsideration of the whole national and local problem of the incidence of taxation deserve special consideration and discussion. On this occasion it is of first importance to realize the soundness of his statement of the general problem and to renew our faith in the American principles upon which our true prosperity and progress have been founded. We are invited and in the coming months we shall be passionately exhorted to abandon them. "Our immediate and paramount task as a people is to rout the forces of economic disruption and pessimism that have swept upon us. The exacting duty of government in these times is by use of its agencies and its influence to strengthen our economic institutions; by inspiring coöperation in the community to sustain good will and to keep our country free of disorder and conflict; by coöperation with the people to assure that the deserving shall not suffer; and by the conduct of government to strengthen the foundations of a better and stronger national life. These have been the objectives of my administration in dealing with this, the greatest crisis the world has ever known. I shall adhere to them.

"Our transcendent momentary need is a much larger degree of confidence among our business agencies and that they shall extend this confidence in more than words. If our people will go forth with the confidence and enterprise which our country justifies, many of the mists of this depression will fade away.

"In conclusion, whatever the immediate difficulties may be, we know they are transitory in our lives and in the life of the nation. We should have full faith and confidence in those mighty resources, those intellectual and spiritual forces which have impelled this nation to a success never before known in the history of the world. Far from being impaired, these forces were never stronger than at this moment. Under the guidance of Divine Providence they will return to us a greater and more wholesome prosperity than we have ever known."

LAW IN ADJOINING COUNTIES.

The Chicago bar ought to extend its surveillance over judicial personnel and the administration of justice to Lake and Du Page counties. Modern conditions are not affected by the political lines drawn by a long departed generation, and the people of Cook county are materially concerned with the conditions under which the laws are administered in the adjoining counties, and vice versa. There are thousands of Chicagoans who live in Lake and Du Page; there is a constant movement back and forth over the county lines; there is a strong community interest in the quality of justice dispensed, in the integrity of the courts and of the enforcement officers everywhere in the metropolitan district.

Racketeering or the abuse of official power has not been confined to Cook, and there are conditions which should have the bar's attention. The personnel of the judicial office and of the law officers of the metropolitan district should be better known and the conditions of the administration of the laws should be kept under observation. The bar should perform the same service for Du Page and Lake as it does for Cook, to inform voters of incompetence or lack of integrity among all law enforcing officials, to assist in the choice of worthy candidates and to initiate proceedings against unfit magistrates or prosecutors.

Editorial of the Day

A FALL IN POPULATION.

[London Daily Telegraph.]

The population of England and Wales decreased by some thousands during the first quarter of this year. The return of the registrar general, which gives these significant figures, shows also that such decreases, though still isolated exceptions to the general trend, are recurring. The cause of decline in this particular quarter was an unusually heavy mortality. There were rather more births than recent statistics gave reason to expect. But it is to be remembered that the birth rate has not been as much as 17 per thousand since 1926. Before the war it was half as high again, in the 'nineties it was over 30 per thousand, in the 'seventies it was 35. The growth of the nation is now only about 150,000 a year. The prediction that within twenty years, perhaps in little more than ten, the population will become stationary is upon this evidence highly probable.

Similar tendencies are marked in most western nations today, the outstanding exceptions being Italy and the Slavs. "The decline of births is the decline of nations," a principle vehemently advocated by some German thinkers, has been approved by Sig. Mussolini. But a comprehensive survey of the evidence hardly bears this out. A high standard of living appears to be always associated with a declining birth rate, but also with great efficiency, physical and mental. The inevitable inference is that stationary populations should be able to hold their own in the world, and that as others obtain more comfortable conditions they also will diminish their rate of increase.

A CYCLIC PERSONALITY.

A FEW weeks ago Ralph Barton, an artist, committed suicide. He wrote a story of farewell to the world and that story has in it something worth while for a large group of people. The following statements carry the point: "I have always had excellent health, but since my early childhood I have suffered from a melancholia which, in the last five years, has begun to show definite signs of manic-depressive insanity. It has prevented me from getting anything like the full value out of my talent. It has made it impossible for me to enjoy the simple pleasures of life. I have run from wife to wife, from house to house, and from country to country in a ridiculous effort to escape from myself."

This gentleman had a cyclical personality. He was born that way, or with the fundamentals of the type, and probably some close analyst could show how he inherited his peculiarities. Probably his parents did not know the significance of it all or, if they knew, they did not know how to train a personality of the kind.

Abraham Lincoln was of this type and some one, probably Menninger, has said that he is an illustration of what training can do to make such personalities into persons capable of rendering great service to the world. If Abraham Lincoln is an instance of success through such a personality, this artist regarded himself as an illustration of defeat by reason of it.

Perhaps he states the reason for that defeat. He says that he was always making "a ridiculous effort to escape from myself." Running away from the problems of life is suicidal to character. Even a person of the most normal of personalities must train himself to accept defeats and disappointments; to meet the problems of life face to face; to endure with equanimity those that cannot be overcome.

This is doubly true of persons with abnormal or unusual types of personality. Those with cyclic personality have periods when they "sit on top of the world." They are warmed by that altitude. Then follows the valley of depression. It is not easy to reconcile things as they are, or appear to be, in the valley with the "hangover" of the "top of the mountain" psychology. The fatal policy is to turn tail and run when this valley phase is reached. "I have run from . . ." said the man we quote. In "running from" he finally ran into the corner from which he chose suicide as the way out.

Of all types of insanity none other is so curable as manic-depressive, the end product of this personality. Of all types of personality none other is so readily overcome by training.

CASTOR OIL BEANS.

E. G. L. writes: Please advise if the castor oil bean, taken from the seed pods of the castor oil plant, known by the botanical name of Ricinus communis, is poisonous if eaten. Have been informed that last year several children died from having eaten the seed pods from such a plant.

REPLY.

Castor oil is made from this plant. The plant contains a poison. Some of this poison is present in castor oil.

CAUSE OF SEAT WORMS.

B. F. writes: What is the cause of seat worms?

REPLY.

Seat or pin worms result from soiled raw foods or from soiled fingers.

NERVOUS THROAT.

Mrs. F. S. writes: Could you please tell me what could be done for a nervous throat that gives one a choking feeling? Also the cause?

REPLY.

This is a classical symptom of hysteria. The only treatment called for in hysteria is training. There is some opinion that there is a physical basis for the symptom, that it results from pressure. However, even if true that would not mean that any treatment is called for.

APPLYING FOR CITIZENSHIP.

Chicago, June 10.—[Friend of the People.]—I took out a declaration of intention in June, 1926. Is it still valid?

2. When is it void?

3. In applying for my second papers do I just have to list the two witnesses or bring them along?

4. Three members of our family are applying for second papers. Will two witnesses suffice for all of us? Do we have to have pictures taken? R. S.

1. Yes.

2. Declarations of intention are good for seven years.

3. The applicant should forward form A-2214 together with money order and photographs and her declaration of intention. After the certificate of arrival shall have been received she will be notified as to when she may appear with her witnesses.

4. If the witnesses know all the persons for a period of five years, at least, continuously, the same witnesses may appear in each case. Photographs, as described on the back of form A-2214, are necessary in each case. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director of Naturalization.

TAX EVADER.

Chicago, June 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a machine registered in Illinois for the past four years, under the same ownership, entitled to the half rate license fee in effect July 1?

2. Is the car registered under new ownership still entitled to the half fee?

R. R.

We assume, although you do not so state, that the car has either been outside of the state or has been out of use during the first half of the year. It is so easy for drivers who have delayed their license application to make such a claim that the secretary of state pays little attention to such claims. A lawsuit would probably be necessary to force the matter and the amount at issue is not sufficient to make such proceedings worth while.

SENDING GIFTS TO RUSSIA.

Muscatine, Ia., June 9.—[Friend of the People.]—I am trying to find out how to go about sending some articles to Russia. I would like to know if there is a duty on any of them, particularly clothing, new or worn. Can you help me?

B. J.

There is a duty on clothing and many other articles. Write to the United States Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, 201 North Wells street, for pamphlet listing duties on gifts to persons in Russia.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE TWENTY YEAR PLAN.

And now we're told to dry our tears,
Things will be all right in twenty years.

The depression then will all be over,
And us guys rolling in the clover.

Even the winters will then be warmer,
And Prosperity jump from around that corner.

We'll have, each one, a house of his own,
And millions and millions of bucks to loan.

Scant meals by then will be forgot,
There'll be a chicken in every pot.

Our stocks won't suffer from downward jars,
In every garage there'll be two cars.

So, one and all, let's give three cheers,
For the good times coming in twenty years!

But, heck! I really don't care a shred,
For by that time I'll be quite dead.

NOW, HENRY, DO YOU THINK THAT WAS NICE?

Tck, tck, tck, Henry Ford! The newspapers say you have taken up the wholesale cultivation of cantaloupes with the intention of extracting alcohol from them which you will use in making paint for your flivvers. Yes, Henry, we have no doubt but that you will take the cantaloupe alcohol and make paint from it, but what will other people do, Henry, what will other people do? We will tell you, Henry; they will not make paint from the cantaloupe alcohol, they will manufacture the Demon Rum in large quantities. Had it not been for your accursed habit of always inventing something the rest of us might have gone peaceably on our way, never suspecting what lay hid in the heart of a cantaloupe.

But now, Henry, that you have spilled the beans, noble men and women will reel down the streets on a cantaloupe jag. Oh, yes, Henry, now everybody knows the worst can be expected. Men who have been an ornament to the community in which they live will sneak out to the icebox in the dead of night, extract the alcohol from a couple of cantaloupes, and then start breaking up housekeeping with an ax. A speakeasy is at least down an alley, and there are people no doubt who are unaware of their existence. Not many, but some. But everybody can buy cantaloupes, and cantaloupe stills will be sold on every corner. A bootlegger can be arrested, not that he often is, but he can be. But it will no doubt be some time before the drys can get an amendment to the constitution of these United States forbidding the extracting of alcohol from cantaloupes.

Honesh, Henry, we've shust been boilin' down shix or sheven cantelopesh ourshelves, and honesh, Henry, ole boy, they're shimply great. Shree sheers fer you, Henry, pash up yer cup and have nuzzer cup o' ole cantalup, shevnteen years ole. 'At a boy, cantelup ze stuff, it'll put hair on yer chest, Henry, it'll put hair on yer chest! Whoop-ee—shend us whole trainload o' cantelopesh. 'Rah! this is th' life!

AND NEED ONE ASK WHY THE EDITOR LEFT TOWN?

[Glimpsed by Wheaton in the St. Joseph (Mo.) Observer.]

Old Boy Cupid has been busy since June came in and the county recorder has issued about twelve marriage licenses testifying to the old story as to June being the month of brides. The number of birth notices so far, however, has been less than one-half that number.

EMANCIPATED.

To Springfield comes a prideful host,—
Prince, warrior, legislator—
To bow and boast, and mourn and toast
The Meek Emancipator.

I leave them to their proud parade
Along the haughty highway,
And seek the presence of a shade
That haunts a humble byway.

I leave them to their cenotaph
And to their tinsel glory,
Inveigled by a gentle laugh,
A shrug, a homely story.

I follow where the shade retreats
O'er plains, down fern-decked caverns,
Through little towns, up little streets
To modest country taverns.

I linger and I loaf around
With farmer folk and neighbors,
Far from the crowd, on holy ground
He hallowed by his labors.

The sunshine filtering through the woods,
The shadows on the prairies,
The sighs, the smiles, the mocking moods
Of gnomes and fauns and fairies:

Emancipated, glorified
In these by his Creator,
His spirit ever shall abide—
The Great Emancipator.

MR. CAPONE'S speech in court yesterday was not what might be termed a great forensic effort. But in this day of talk, talk, and more talk; words, words, idle words; platitudes hammered into sheets of infinite platitude, Mr. Capone's address was a model of logic, clearness, and directness. Arising and addressing the court he said briefly as follows (turn rule and quote), "Guilty."

YES, "GUILTY!" said Alphone Capone in open court yesterday. And of what is the Great Capone guilty? asks little Laura. Murder, sedition, conspiracy, corruption, and horrid deeds of darkness? Oh, not at all, darling; Mr. Capone is guilty of not paying his income tax. Why, how perfectly horrid of you Alphonse, naughty, naughty! R. H. L.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 17, 1915.

CHICAGO.—The first of State's Attorney Hoyne's contemplated police graft trials ended in the conviction of two men. They are James O'Dea Storen, captain of police, found guilty of criminal negligence, with $1,000 fine, and Michael Weissbaum, detective sergeant, guilty of criminal conspiracy, with three years' imprisonment. Frederick Roth, Weissbaum's partner, was found not guilty. Hoyne announced that he would take steps to bring the other indicted police to trial immediately. These include Capt. John J. Halpin, former chief of detectives; Lieut. John H. Tobin, formerly of the detective bureau, and Detective Sergeants William J. Egan and Walter O'Brien.

CHICAGO.—Street car and elevated service was normal yesterday afternoon following the agreement of the strikers and the companies to arbitrate their differences. It was agreed that the arbitration proceedings will not start until next week. THE TRIBUNE was the first to announce the end of the strike.

LONDON.—A Rotterdam dispatch says that the damage done by the raid of 23 French airplanes on Karlsruhe, capital of the grand duchy of Baden, was terrific. It claims that 200 persons were killed. Fifty bombs were dropped, one of them almost destroying one of the ducal palaces, used as headquarters by the Karlsruhe commandant. Others destroyed a number of factories. England was the victim of another serious raid on June 15 when a Zeppelin visited the northeast coast and dropped bombs which killed 18 persons and wounded 40 others.

ATLANTA, Ga.—Leo M. Frank's final appeal for commutation of his death sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan, a 14 year old factory girl, to life imprisonment was completed and his fate is now in the hands of Gov. Slaton. Frank's execution is set for June 22.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 17, 1901.

CHICAGO.—That the Harriman combine has secured control of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad and that a composite agreement has been made to perfect a community of interest among roads with tracks enough to twice belt the globe, as related in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, is generally accepted in railroad circles. The railroads interested in the proposed agreement in addition to the St. Paul are the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Great Northern, Chicago and Alton, Wabash, Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, and Chicago and North Western.

LONDON.—Gen. Kitchener sent a dispatch announcing the surprise and capture of 250 Victorian mounted rifles by the Boers on June 12. This was the most unwelcome piece of war news received here for a long time. The rifles were part of Gen. Beaston's column and were surprised in camp at Steenkoolstruit. The Boers crept up within short range and poured a deadly fire into the camp, killing two officers and sixteen men and wounding four officers and thirty-eight men.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 17, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—W. N. Dudley, United States marshal for Indiana, was appointed commissioner of pensions, vice J. A. Bentley, resigned. Judge Noah C. McFarland of Topeka, Kas., was appointed commissioner of the general land office, vice Gen. Williamson, resigned. Mr. Bentley's resignation had been requested by President Garfield, but it is learned that he was not removed because he was inefficient.

CHICAGO.—Rarely has there been gathered together so great a number of such distinguished guests as attended the banquet given by the Society of the Sons of Maine at the Palmer house to their New England and western guests. Judge Drummond, president of the society, delivered the address of welcome.

INDIANAPOLIS.—The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic elected the following officers: Commander in chief, George S. Merrill of Massachusetts; senior vice commander in chief, Charles L. Young of Ohio, and junior vice commander in chief, C. V. R. Pond of Michigan.

A HINT FROM A LEGIONNAIRE.

Bloomington, Ill., June 9.—In Sunday's TRIBUNE was an editorial, "A Hint from a Legionnaire," in which you took the Memorial day address of Rear Admiral Moffett and particularly called attention to his statement that "the adjusted compensation bill passed at the last congress and the navy's first year London treaty building program did not."

I was wondering if full thought was given by the writer of this editorial when it was being compiled. In the first place I am sure Admiral Moffett, as well as every member of the navy department, realizes that the American Legion has ever been behind the naval building programs, and it was through their efforts and efforts of their friends that the cruiser bill finally became a law some years back, and the Legion has been behind all naval appropriation bills since time immemorial by mandates of our national conventions and our legislative committees.

It might be interesting to note that the money that was obtained for the loans on the adjusted compensation bills was paid into the treasury by the ex-service men themselves through the war risk insurance department and a certain percentage of the surplus is taken from the war risk insurance profits each year in order to pay off the entire adjusted compensation certificates in 1945. There was already in the treasury, at least book credit for, over $912,000,000, which was more than sufficient to take care of the 50 per cent loan. Also that it would not increase the taxation.

It might be interesting for your readers to know that Andrew J. Mellon had made this credit a book credit only; that the funds were not there, and it was necessary for them to float a loan at the lowest rate of interest that has ever been paid for federal, loans and at less than 50 per cent of what the ex-service man is compelled to pay for his loan.

WM. C. MUNDT,
Department Adjutant, American Legion, Department of Illinois.

FOR A NEW ANTHEM.

Chicago, June 2.—Apropos the Toscanini incident in Bologna, after hearing various national airs I can understand why Toscanini, Muck, and our own Stock do not wish to play them. I am an American and harbor a great love for my native land, but how I detest the "Star Spangled Banner" music is difficult to describe. It positively grates on sensitive ears, covers such a wide range of the scale that only an unusual voice can negotiate it, and is so lacking in what goes to make a piece of music beautiful that it is unworthy of performance except on necessary occasions.

Congress should be induced to obtain a new national anthem by prize contest. Maybe a composition would come of it that is beautiful, singable, and entirely suited to the original words. In this great land of ours is there nowhere a Haydn to produce another piece of music like the Austrian national hymn?

THE FARM BOARD'S MONEY.

Sullivan, Mo., June 7.—If the $500,000,000 the farm board has charged off to bad judgment had been loaned to farmers on first mortgages at 2 per cent it would have gotten much better results, realizing a profit rather than loss.

A HOLE IN THE STREET.

Chicago, June 5.—Sunday evening, May 31, around 10 o'clock, I was driving east on Lawrence avenue when my car struck a hole in the pavement which caused a blowout of a new tire. I had no more than stopped my car to have the tire changed when another automobile hit the same hole in the pavement with the same disastrous results. Within fifteen minutes' time I was having my tire changed five cars hit this hole, necessitating the changing of their tires also.

Our car hit this hole with the right wheel with the result that the driver almost lost control of his car and he swerved to the left. Had there been a street car coming west or another automobile going west at that particular moment there might have been a serious accident.

I understand that this hole in the pavement has been there for several months. It lies on Lawrence avenue, about eight inches south of the south rail of the east bound street car track, at about one hundred feet west of Keystone avenue, Keystone being a block west of Crawford avenue. The hole is approximately six inches deep and about three feet long. Because it lies in the middle of the block, where shadows are heavy, it cannot be detected until one strikes it.

If five cars incurred the same amount of damage that my car did within fifteen minutes' time, one can readily imagine how much damage this hole is causing to motorists in the course of twenty-four hours—yes, over the period of months it has been there. It is surprising that some serious accident has not resulted from it long ago. J. ROBERT JOHNSON.

WHAT'S WRONG WITH TAXES.

Chicago, June 8.—The immediate establishment of some central tax readjustment bureau is the recommendation of the writer. The 42 per cent are determined not to pay the full tax assessed them, and will not, no matter what threats or anathemas are expressed. I would venture to say, however, that many would be satisfied were they given the opportunity to pay a fraction of the tax, in full settlement. The existing system keeps the government insisting that the full amount be paid, and the citizen just as insistent that they will not pay it all. Settlement is the only solution, and terms satisfactory to both parties the only means. There must be a cooperative effort of readjustment to present conditions, or the whole tax collection problem will become a farce.

ANTHONY C. TOUCHAN,
Loyola University.

TAX CONSCIOUS.

Chicago, June 7.—The editorial "What's Wrong with Taxes," is good so far as it goes, but the real remedy lies beyond mere cutting down of government expenditures. A means must be devised to raise revenue which will bring home to every voter the fact that he is also a taxpayer. At present, voting for bonds means to the average voter something for him to vote for and something for some one else to pay for. Real estate on north and south sides pay for bridges across the outer drive on the theory that their property is benefited to the extent of the tax levy. As a matter of fact, it is a motor highway and should be built by the motorists.

LAST PARTY OF STARR'S CAREER COMING TO LIGHT

Actors Sought as Participants.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Two actors were being sought for questioning today in the unsolved death of Starr Faithfull, whose body was found in the shallow waters of Long Beach on June 8. The men were Bruce Winston and Jack Greenaway, who, according to members of the Faithfull family, spent the afternoon and evening of June 4 in the company of Starr. Miss Faithfull disappeared from her home on Friday, June 5. There are no charges of any kind against Winston and Greenaway. They are wanted as material witnesses.

Meanwhile word came from Boston that Andrew J. Peters, former mayor of that city, would not appear before the Nassau county grand jury investigating the Faithfull case.

Mr. Peters, whose name has repeatedly been brought into the investigation of the death of his distant relative, Starr Faithfull, made a statement through Alexander Whiteside, Boston attorney, in which he insisted he knew absolutely nothing about the girl's death.

In the statement Peters denied he ever had any improper relations with Starr Faithfull. Later in his Boston office he granted an interview and discussed his connection with the case.

Peters reiterated that he had not seen any member of the Faithfull family for five years and had heard from them only once, that being last year, when Mrs. Faithfull and her two daughters, Starr and Elizabeth, were in London and needed money to return to America. London dispatches had said that Mr. Peters, who is wealthy, had sent them $5,000.

"The amount was really $300," Mr. Peters said. "It was not my money, but was furnished by another relative."

Actors Prove Elusive.

New York police were trying their hardest to trace the movements of Starr Faithfull on her last two days alive, June 4 and 5. Starr had told her family she had attended a farewell party for Miriam Hopkins, the actress, on June 4, Miss Hopkins, was leaving for Hollywood and Starr said she attended with two men to whom she said she had been introduced by Francis Peabody Hamlin, Boston representative of the Cunard Line. These two men, who, according to Stanley Faithfull, her step father, were Greenaway and Winston. Mr. Edwards is seeking Greenaway and Winston in the hope that they may be able to shed some light on where Miss Faithful went after leaving her home, supposedly to meet them.

No Trace of Greenaway.

No trace of Greenaway was found in theatrical circles, but it was learned that an English actor, Bruce Winston, described as an elderly man after several years here on the stage and in pictures, returned to England last February.

Miss Hopkins, in Hollywood, said more than 100 persons attended her farewell party, and she could not recall meeting Miss Faithful and her two friends.

Faithfulls Questioned Anew.

The bulk of the investigation today fell upon Inspector Harold King. The members of the Faithfull family reported to him this morning at Mineola and he questioned them at length.

During an interval Stanley Faithfull was asked, in view of the discovery of veronal in the body of Miss Starr, if she was a veronal addict?

"Well," he replied hesitantly, "I suppose pretty nearly everyone uses it as a sedative at one time or another."

The district attorney revealed this afternoon for the first time that Starr Faithfull was not only a trial to her mother, sister and stepfather because of her irregular habits and fantastic temperament, but she was also a household tyrant and bully.

He said that Tucker Faithfull, at the conclusion of a long siege of questioning by him recently broke down.

"I'm not sorry Starr is dead. She is happier. Everybody is happier," she sobbed.

Called Family Bully.

The girl then told him, he said, that Starr had ruled her family, slapping them and pinching them if she did not have her own way.

"Starr was evidently much stronger physically than her mother or her sister," Mr. Edwards said. "She was apparently stronger even than her stepfather, for I was told she used to slap him at times.

"Tucker said that if breakfast wasn't ready soon enough to suit her, Starr used to slap her mother and pinch her arm so the marks would remain there for days. Starr was exceedingly peevish, her sister said.

"Starr's domination was so complete, she said, that she even decided where the family would live."

HARDING, SON OF CAFE MAN, FREED OF AUTO CHARGES

James P. Harding, 30 years old, son of John P. Harding, restaurant owner, was cleared of charges of driving while intoxicated and reckless driving when arraigned yesterday before Judge Leon Edelman in Town Hall court. Theodore J. Schwitzer, the street car conductor who was struck by Harding's automobile, announced through his attorney that he did not believe the driver guilty of criminal negligence. However, Schwitzer yesterday filed a $50,000 personal injury suit, having lost his left leg as a result of the accident. He is still convalescing in the Lake View hospital.

The accident occurred on the night of April 17 in Clark street near Sunnyside avenue. Schwitzer was standing between the rails, replacing the trolley of his darkened street car, when Harding's automobile crashed into him.

BODY OF CAPRON, TOLD BY SON TO DIE, UNCLAIMED

Efforts to Find Son of Victim Fail.

John Capron, the college youth who advised his father to commit suicide, had not come forward last night to claim the body of the parent who followed that advice. An all day investigation by police only served to deepen the mystery surrounding the identities of father and son.

Policemen Edward Nevera and James Barnes were confident for a time that the man who shot and killed himself in Lincoln park Monday was Dr. R. C. Creech of Etowah, Tenn., a physician who escaped from a Tennessee jail last December while awaiting trial for the murder of his wife.

Identification Fails.

Dr. Creech has a son, Robert, 28 years old, serving a six months' term in the Bridewell for larceny. Robert told the policemen that his father answered the description of the dead man and was accustomed to loiter in Lincoln park. Last night, however, Robert looked at picture of the dead man and declared that it was not a likeness of Dr. Creech.

Thus deprived of their only clue, the investigators confessed themselves unable to answer the questions: "Where is young Capron, the college boy? Who is his father? What strange set of circumstances caused the son to suggest suicide to his father?"

A canvass of Illinois colleges failed to reveal a student named Capron. The postmark on the letter which contained the suicide advice indicated that it might have been from a station "A" in Illinois. Postoffice records showed three stations "A" in this state—at Moline, Crystal Lake, and Champaign. But an inquiry in those towns brought no information concerning a student named Capron.

Poetry from "Linebook."

The poetry in the youth's letter was found to have been taken from R. H. L.'s Linebook of 1927. It was a poem entitled "Revelation," written by Mrs. Grace Starbuck of Racine, Wis.

"The strange story of the boy who suggested suicide to his father has been printed in newspapers all over the United States," commented one investigator. "It hardly seems possible that the boy has not heard of the death of his father, and it would appear almost inhuman of him not to come forward to see the body of the parent for whom he confessed, in his letter, such a tender affection."

But no relative appeared at Scanlan's morgue, 2335 North Clark street, to see that the body receives a proper burial. It seemed that Capron's last written request, that his body be "given to science," would be granted.

STILL SEEK LETTER WRITER

June 9, 1931

Dear Dad;

I'm sorry I haven't more time to write, but my examinations begin tomorrow morning, and there remains still so much to be done in preparation.

I received your letters of Saturday and Sunday just a few moments ago. Came home from the library to get them.

I'm sorry we're losing. I'm wishing for you, dear dad - hoping for you - wishing you all I can wish - thinking of you all the time.

If we get a break, it will be a great thing, dad. If we don't, find an easy way out, dear dad. Know that I'll be thinking of you - great thoughts, dad. I'll be hoping I can be as game as my dad was. And I'll always remember the while we had alone together, too, dad. But if you must - if the breaks aren't with us, do find a simple way. Something - something. I'm sure you know why I'm saying it.

These lines - I like them.

'Death, you shall take my hand some day,
Fold it a moment gently, then
Lead me into the quietude unbound
Of ships that loiter at the quay
With cargoes of the dreams of men,
Beset stemmed as old sandalwood.

Then you and I shall sail away
To keep our lone predestined tryst,
And you who waited long for me
Shall smile at my surprise, and say
That, had I known, I had not sighed
Life's little things so bitterly.'

We'll see each other again some day, dad, and we'll have all the time there ever was. And at all events, we're hope awfully happy together. I'll keep writing you till it's time to stop, and after all, we may run into luck!

Until tomorrow, dad - goodbye - and good luck!

CANTON MUSTERS ARMY TO BATTLE NANKING TROOPS

HONGKONG, June 16.—(AP)—The insurgent government at Canton mustered its armies in Kwangtung and Kwangsi provinces today to repel an expected attack by 200,000 nationalist government troops and the swarm of Reds which President Chiang Kai-shek announced he would drive from devastated Kiangsi and Hunan provinces. Canton's huge population feared Chiang's asserted campaign to eradicate Reds and bandits was but a covering movement for a drive upon the armies of the insurgent government demanding his downfall.

Piracy received a reverse far up the Yangtze river today. When the American freighter Chita grounded near Shasi it was attacked by outlaws. The Chinese gunboat Weichun appeared and killed a score of the pirates and drove off the others.

The situation at Foochow, where several foreign warships guarded their nationals, was reported eased. Reinforced Fukien province troops halted the advance of outlaw bands down the Min river after they had despoiled much of northwestern Fukien.

STATUS OF ARKANSAS 90 DAY DIVORCE LAW APPEARS UNCERTAIN

Little Rock, Ark., June 16.—(AP)—Secretary of State Ed McDonald ruled today that petitions for a referendum on Arkansas' 90 day divorce law were insufficient and proponents of the referendum announced the state Supreme court would be asked to review the decision.

Meanwhile, there was disagreement among attorneys as to whether the law now is in effect after the secretary of state's ruling. His action was based on an opinion by Hal Norwood, state attorney general.

Filing of the petitions a week ago automatically prevented the law becoming effective on June 11. The Supreme court is required by law to decide the case as soon as possible.

A delegation today said at least 100 persons were waiting at Hot Springs to file divorce suits under the new law.

WHAT TEN-WORD SENTENCE CAN YOU MAKE USING ONLY THE WORDS IN TODAY'S ADS?

$1000 A WEEK IN CASH PRIZES

for the Best ORIGINAL

"GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS"

What Is a Good Time Charliegram?

A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice:

"Every time you buy something you help bring back prosperity."
"The time to stock up is when prices are low."
"Large savings can be made on nearly everything bought today."
"When business starts humming prices are bound to rise again."

Do you think you can make up a better Good Time Charliegram than any of these?—using only the words appearing in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune? Try your hand at it! Read the simple rules and start looking for your words now!

WHAT sentence of exactly ten words can you make up, using only the words which appear in advertisements in today's Chicago Tribune?

Ten little words—that's all you need to make up a Good Time Charliegram. Just pick the words out of any ads in today's Tribune except the Want Ads. Put them all together and they may spell one of the big cash prizes which the Tribune is paying!

Try it. It's loads of fun—just like a treasure hunt. Read the simple rules and start looking through the ads for the words now.

THE SIMPLE RULES:

1. The Chicago Tribune will pay $1,000.00 a week in cash prizes to the persons who send in the best and neatest complete sets of seven (7) original Good Time Charliegrams in accordance with these rules.

2. A Good Time Charliegram is a sentence of exactly ten words which conveys a timely message of good cheer or sound advice. The sentence must be made up of words taken from advertisements EXCEPT Classified or Want Ads, published in a single day's issue of the Chicago Tribune. To indicate where you get each word, simply write down the name of the advertiser following the word. Words are NOT to be taken from the Want Ads.

3. Not more than one word shall be taken from the advertising of any one store, company, or individual. If an advertiser has more than one advertisement in the same issue of the Tribune, only one word from such advertisements may be used in the same Good Time Charliegram. The same word may be used more than once, provided that it is taken from a different advertiser every time it is used.

4. The prizes for each week are as follows:

1st Prize		$250.00
2nd Prize		100.00
Next 2 Prizes	$50.00 each	100.00
Next 4 Prizes	$25.00 each	100.00
Next 28 Prizes	$10.00 each	280.00
Next 40 Prizes	$ 5.00 each	200.00
73 weekly prizes totaling $1,000.00

5. This offer is open to every one—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

6. Good Time Charliegrams are to be submitted in complete sets only. DO NOT send in each day's entry separately. Hold all Good Time Charliegrams until you have the complete set of seven (7). Then send them to "GOOD TIME CHARLIEGRAMS," the Chicago Tribune, Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill. All entries in the Fourth Series must be received in the Tribune office before 6 P. M. on Wednesday, June 24, 1931.

7. Contestants may submit as many sets of Good Time Charliegrams as they wish, but no contestant will be entitled to more than one prize.

8. You need NOT buy the Chicago Tribune. You may use the handy blank supplied each day in the Tribune or you may submit your entry on a separate sheet of paper. The Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at public libraries free of charge.

9. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be made to each tying contestant.

...Ald. Barnet Hodes [7th] led the ...fight to rewrite the relocation section. ...As drafted, it bound the company to ...enter any agreement on relocation ...costs on the same terms granted other ...utility companies of the city.

...Former Corporation Counsel Busch, ...who is still representing the city in ...its telephone franchise negotiations, ...was instructed to draft a substitute ...section.

Provide for the Work.

"There is already an agreement in the State street subway project," Mr. Busch pointed out, "that all of the utilities will pay the full cost of relocation."

"Yes," answered Ald. Hodes. "The companies want the subway there. We don't know what they will do if we want to build other subways later, in which they may not be interested."

Victor S. Petterson, deputy city comptroller, appeared before the committee in connection with the proposed sale to the telephone company of $1,500,000 in tax anticipation warrants. After the meeting Petterson, Busch and Attorney William F. Sidley arranged a tenative schedule for the sale.

Under their plan the company would buy $1,561,500 worth of warrants, divided as follows: corporate fund, $920,000; public library, $46,500; municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, $50,000; firemen's pensions, $30,000; 1930 bond and interest fund, $250,000; 1931 bond and interest fund, $215,000.

The sale of anticipation warrants of the bond and interest fund totaling $465,000 will enable the city to make interest payments and to retire bonds maturing on July 1 to a total of $2,900,000, Mr. Petterson said.

GAS ROUTS 37 FAMILIES.

ARMY'S RECENT AIR MANEUVERS COMPARED WITH WAR RECORDS

Washington, D. C., June 16.—[Special.]—Figures now being compiled to determine the actual distance and hours flown by the 650 military planes taking part in the recent air corps maneuvers are not yet completed, but it has been found that the air division between May 9 and May 26 flew a greater distance than the American expeditionary air forces flew over the enemy lines during the world war.

Our aviators put in 35,000 hours over enemy territory, according to official figures on file at the air corps, while the recent air division maneuvers chalked up 37,000 hours by the time it reached Washington for the final demonstration.

The average speed of the division planes was 100 miles an hour, while the A. E. F. ships were able to fly about 85 miles an hour.

TWO AMERICAN MARINES SLAIN IN NICARAGUA

Fall in Battle with Band of Bandits.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 16.—An American marine officer and an enlisted man attached to the Nicaraguan constabulary were killed yesterday by bandits during a skirmish in the western central part of Nicaragua. The navy department announced this today. The killing of these men marked the first marine fatalities since the Sandino inspired raids on the eastern coast of Nicaragua some months ago.

The marines killed were First Lieut. Lester Edwin Power of Calistoga, Cal., and Sergt. William Edwin McGhee of Chattanooga, Tenn. Lieut. Power was serving as a captain and Sergt. McGhee as a second lieutenant in the Nicaraguan National Guard.

Details of Battle Lacking.

No details regarding the bandit contact were received in messages sent by Lieut. Col. Franklin B. Garrett, commanding the second brigade of marines in Nicaragua. About 200 marines are still in Nicaragua. The marine officers serving with the National Guard are virtually the only ones serving in the bandit area.

First Lieut. Power was born on Jan. 4, 1892, in Calistoga, Cal., served as enlisted man in the marine corps from 1914 to 1918, was appointed as second lieutenant in the marine corps on April, 5, 1921, and has been attached to the Nicaraguan National Guard detachment since Aug. 3, 1930. His next of kin is his wife, Mrs. Mary Jane Power, who resides at Quantico, Va.

Born at Chattanooga.

Sergt. McGhee was born on Dec. 10, 1901, at Chattanooga, Tenn., and enlisted in the marine corps on Aug. 8, 1927. His next of kin is his father, Horace G. McGhee, residing at 501 Vine street, Chattanooga, Tenn.

Cherry Crop Too Big to Eat Up; Robins Die Trying

DISMISS MURDER CHARGE AGAINST KIRKLAND'S PALS

Crown Point, Ind., June 16.—[Special.]—The murder charges against the four youthful co-defendants of Virgil Kirkland in connection with the death of Arlene Draves at a Gary gin party last November were dismissed today. The dismissal freed two of the youths and allows freedom of the remaining two on $10,000 bonds pending trial on charges of assault and battery with intent to commit rape.

Robert G. Estill, prosecuting attorney of Lake county, who twice brought Kirkland to trial, appeared before Judge Martin Smith here to ask dismissal of the murder charges against Paul Barton, Harry Shirk and David Thompson. At the same time the charge against Leon Stanford, the fourth of the co-defendants, was dismissed by Special Judge Harry L. Crumpacker in the Porter county Circuit court at the request of Estill.

Stanford and Shirk were discharged immediately from custody. They had been held since the death of the girl. Stanford had followed Kirkland's example in demanding a change of venue to Porter county. Barton and Thompson were held on new affidavits charging them with the same count on which Kirkland was convicted at his second trial and on which he was sentenced to serve from one to ten years in the state reformatory.

OAK PARK BURGLARS PREY ON HOMES OF TWO NOVAK FAMILIES

The Oak Park police informed the Chicago detective bureau last night that burglars, on Saturday night, raided the home of Charles G. Novak, 814 Carpenter avenue, Oak Park. Their loot there was a mink coat valued at $1,000, a raccoon coat valued at $400, a $125 diamond ring, and a traveling bag.

Also, according to the suburban police, on Sunday night two men entered the home of Charles J. Novak, a second cousin of the other victim, at 533 South Kenilworth avenue, Oak Park. A neighbor saw them carrying away the $850 oriental rug which was their only loot there.

Government Buys Site for Cicero Postoffice

The treasury department at Washington yesterday selected a 50 foot frontage lot adjoining the government site at 24th place and 52d avenue, Cicero, for the Cicero postoffice. The purchased property at 5212 West 24th place was owned by Joseph Stranc. The price was $12,000. Negotiations for the property had been under way for more than a year.

RIVER SHANNON IS BLOCKED BY MUD; FLOODS COUNTRY

GALWAY, Ireland, June 16.—(AP)—A huge mass of black, malodorous mud which poured down the side of Slievenakilla mountain, in County Leitrim, blocking the headwaters of the River Shannon, has caused serious damage.

Hundreds of tons of earth, loosened by recent torrential rain in the upper Shannon country, plunged down the hillside and dammed the river, which finally broke through the barrier and flooded the district. The mud spread for miles and drove farmers from their homes, spoiling crops and threatening a winter of famine to hundreds of simple Irish folk.

County Commissioner Mooney and a gang of men working on a nearby road were marooned on a hillock for three days by mud and water until rescuers reached them.

Death Ride Slayer Found Guilty; Must Die in Chair

Elizabeth, N. J., June 16.—(AP)—William Moore Fraser of Rahway, charged with the "death ride" killing Feb. 18 of Mrs. Phoebe Stader, whom he professed he loved, was convicted of first degree murder tonight. The jury deliberated five hours and fifty minutes and did not recommend mercy. The verdict carried a mandatory death penalty.

to remember that the distinctive flavor of Hills Bros Coffee is the result of roasting the blend evenly . . . continuously . . .

YOU'LL NEVER TASTE THIS RARE FLAVOR IN OTHER COFFEES BECAUSE THIS CONTINUOUS PROCESS THAT ROASTS A LITTLE AT A TIME INSTEAD OF IN BULK IS HILLS BROS' EXCLUSIVELY

THERE'S an irresistible invitation in those wisps of fragrance that rise from a cup of Hills Bros. Coffee. Eagerly you reach for that cup to drink it down. And back you come for more!

No other coffee tastes like Hills Bros. Coffee because no other coffee is roasted the same way. Hills Bros., by their patented, continuous process—Controlled Roasting—are able to roast every berry evenly. Such exactness cannot be maintained by the ordinary method of roasting coffee in bulk.

Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is completely removed and kept out of the vacuum can in which Hills Bros. Coffee is packed. Coffee packed in ordinary cans, even if air-tight, does not stay fresh.

Hills Bros. Coffee is sold by grocers everywhere. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

3 JUDGES REBUKE U. S. GRAND JURY OVER DRY LAW

Resent Criticism of Way They Mete Out Justice.

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—Three New Jersey federal judges sitting together in Newark today, after a stinging rebuke of the federal grand jury which last week returned a presentment criticising their handling of prohibition cases, ordered the presentment struck from the records.

The judges, Guy L. Fake, William A. Clark—the judge who wrote the opinion holding the eighteenth amendment unconstitutional and was reversed by the Supreme court—and John Boyd Avis, told the jurors they had "transcended" their authority and declared the presentment was "illogically conceived" and "subversive of law and order."

Judge Fake pointed out that in prohibition enforcement "the court finds itself in a position peculiar to that subject, a position where it is called upon to mete out justice in cases where the parties on each side of the issue are representative of groups which are equally convinced that the group on the other side is lawless."

Refers to 4th Amendment.

There is nothing in the eighteenth amendment "which gives it any greater sanctity than that afforded to the fourth amendment, which makes explicit and plain provisions against unreasonable searches and seizures," said Judge Fake.

After pointing out the law on the subject of search and seizure has been "well defined in many cases by clear and concise decisions of the United States Supreme court," he said that "if searches and seizures are made in violation of one's constitutional rights as safeguarded under the fourth amendment, it becomes the duty of this court, however unpopular such sanction may be, to suppress such evidence and thereby keep it away from the grand jury."

What was construed by some who heard the opinion of the court as being aimed at Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, was found in the following paragraph:

"At times it falls upon this court to deal with appeals from the action of the prohibition administrator, and when it appears that his action in rejecting or revoking applications for permits is arbitrary and capricious as defined by our Circuit Court of Appeals and by the United States Supreme court, this court will deal with the subject in one phase of these decisions, whether such action on our part leads to restraint upon the conduct of such officer or not."

Pennington spent five hours before the grand jury on the day preceding the handling of the presentment.

Conscious of Duties.

Continuing, Judge Fake said: "Obviously, then, so long as the fourth amendment, as it is now interpreted by the highest tribunals in the land, stands as a bulwark against tyranny, just so long will the unreasoning zealot complain that the courts interfere with the quick and efficient enforcement of national prohibition."

Judge Fake went on to say that American judges will continue to uphold the fourth amendment. He added:

"The judges of this court are at all times conscious of the duties and obligations devolving upon them, and you may rest assured that they will not shirk those duties to serve the interest of any class nor will they weaken in seeing to it that all persons shall enjoy that equality before the law to which they by heritage from our forbears are entitled.

"Even though there be lawlessness, scandal and graft following in the wake of violations of the national prohibition act, it is of as much importance that the constitutional rights of the citizens accused under that act be preserved as it is that an offender against the law be brought to justice."

GUARD CALLED AWAY FROM JAIL BY RUSE, NEGRO IS ABDUCTED

Huntsville, Ala., June 16.—[Special.]—Police and deputy sheriffs here are searching for two unidentified men who broke into the municipal jail early today and abducted Thomas Jasper, a Negro, convicted of annoying a white girl in her home. Officials expressed the fear Jasper had been lynched after hours of search disclosed no trace of the men or their prisoner.

The men gained entrance into the jail by filing the lock on the rear door. They proceeded to Jasper's cell, broke open its door and quietly fled. Jasper had been fined $1,000 on charges of annoying the girl and was returned to his cell after failing to pay. Officials said he previously had been accused of similar charges.

Before the abduction Police Sergeant Ried, on duty in the municipal building, received a phone call asking aid in quelling a disturbance in a roadhouse near the city. He answered the call, leaving the jail unguarded, found all quiet at the roadhouse, then returned to the jail to discover Jasper's cell empty.

HOME HIS CASTLE, ROUTS 50 DRY RAIDING POSSE

Madison, Neb., June 16.—(AP)—Shouting "My home is my castle," Matt Toman, 70, sought on a bootlegging charge, tonight stood off fifty neighbors, police, and firemen who sought to arrest him and with a shotgun, rifle, and pistol drove the posse to cover. Police Chief William McVittee suffered minor wounds in the head and feet when struck by shotgun pellets.

At midnight the posse had settled down to waiting for daylight. Tear gas bombs had failed to dislodge the aged man. Police said the trouble began after Toman had chased farm hands from his home. The men called police.

Police said that about two months ago Toman had chased a man from his home with an ax. He is a bachelor.

MELLON LANDS IN BRITAIN; REFUSES TO TALK BUSINESS

SOUTHAMPTON, England, June 16.—(AP)—Andrew W. Mellon, American secretary of the treasury, landed from the Mauretania tonight and proceeded to London.

"I have come to England for purely personal reasons," he said. "I have a son at Cambridge university who will soon be graduated and I want to be there. I can assure you that I have not come for business reasons."

Wife Halts Birthday Party of Mate and Other Woman

Jack Odens, 34 years old, reputed bookmaker, was celebrating his 34th birthday early this morning in his smartly furnished flat at 836 East 81st street in the company of Miss Jewel Vavrick, 32, when his wife, Lillian, who lives at 816 Sunnyside avenue, gained entrance with two policemen and a policewoman. Odens was locked up at the Burnside station, Miss Vavrick at the Hyde Park station, and her 2 year old daughter, Gloria, was intrusted to juvenile authorities. The couple will be arraigned in Morals court today.

The wild grandeur of Trinity Bay, guarded by the tremendous capes, Trinity and Eternity—the ship's siren reverberating like giant laughter among the eternal hills—gives you a touch of the loneliness, austerity and beauty of the silent places.

A spirit of gaiety prevails for the entire journey, and there is not a dull moment on ship or shore. You dance every evening to the music of a lively orchestra. Delicious meals satisfy ravenous appetites. You will vote this the best vacation ever.

Remember, every expense on this enjoyable cruise has been foreseen and included in the figure quoted above, as well as stop-overs at important hotels en route. A courteous escort relieves you of every travel worry.

RUSSIA SPENDS 60 CENTS TO MINE 50 CENTS IN GOLD

Yanks Try to Convince Soviets of Errors.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

IRKUTSK, May 6.—[By mail.]—Red gold headquarters are based on Irkutsk, and the soviet gold and nonferrous metals trust has a number of American experts in its employ. These Yankees are the only people in Russia outside the Red army and important officials in the communist party who are permitted to carry guns. The Americans pack big gats on their hips, and usually carry a carbine when they are out on location.

For a long period, six to eight months at a time, these Americans are isolated in the dense frozen forests of the Upper Tenessei, or in the primitive wastes of Yakutia along the mighty Lena river.

I met O. A. Weldon of Oakland, Cal., on his return to town after nearly nine months in the wilderness, in which he had not been able to speak in a living soul, except in the pidgeon English of his interpreter. He was laid up for one month, waiting for a boat to take him down the Amur river, and nearly died from pneumonia at Yakutsk.

Leaves for U. S.—"Fed Up."

H. L. Wimmler of Los Angeles, who was in charge of the American experts, and who lived here in a comfortable cottage with Mrs. Wimmler, has just left for America "fed up" with the filthy and miseries of life in Russia. Other Americans still here are L. E. Roberts of Palo Alto, Cal., in charge of gold dredging; Mr. and Mrs. Grant of Colorado, and Mr. Vandervoort and his wife of Grass Valley, Cal. Mr. Vandervoort is in charge of hydraulic work.

There's also Robert Bedford of Berkeley, Cal., and former United States Consul Fowler, who was stationed at Archangel for many years and who has lived in Russia for thirty years. He is also handling hydraulic work for the Reds. There is a group of Americans from Fairbanks, Alaska, including Fred Carlson, Jack Hostler, the Bagstrom brothers and Jay Johnson.

This year's gold output from the mines in the Irkutsk region, which includes practically all the gold in Russia except the Ural workings, is expected to total fifty tons. Placer, hydraulic and hard rock mining are engaged in, but the principal yield is from dredging rivers.

The Abandoned Dredges.

Of the New Zealand model dredges, abandoned as obsolete by the United States many years ago, are still used chiefly for this work. Recently the Moscow government purchased several of the modern Hammond type dredges, and seven have been shipped to the Urals for platinum work.

On the lower Lena there are several of the largest dredges in the world, 11 dredges, which cost $3,000,000 to build in England and $1,000,000 each for shipment, freight, and assembly. American gold mining engineers here are not optimistic over the ability of the Russians to get anything near like the production of the yellow metal which is available. The placer workings, especially, are not worked through to sufficient depth, and in hard rock work the Russian miners leave a good deal to be desired.

One Russian engineer admitted that statistics indicate that it is costing the state trust six paper rubles to get one gold ruble in bullion value. In other words, if one bases the value of a paper ruble at 10 cents, it is costing 60 cents to produce 50 cents worth of ore.

Rubles Not Worth 10 Cents.

This is the clearest admission that could be made that the paper ruble is not worth even 10 cents.

Extreme precautions are taken to prevent "high grading," the stealing of nuggets by workers. It is illegal for any one to be in possession of gold of any kind. Recently a Chinese worker was arrested and when searched was found to be carrying 1,600 ounces of fine gold in a chamois bag. He was sent to the salt mines at hard labor.

Even though the best supplies and foodstuffs are available for the Americans, they find it extremely difficult to get proper nourishment, even in Irkutsk.

"There are three big shoe factories here, but I have never been able to buy a pair of shoes and neither has any one else whom I know," an American told me. "We must go in the open market to get butter and pay 15 rubles a pound for it and milk costs $1.25 a quart. Sugar is out, and we only get it through friends shipping it in by parcel post from abroad."

All of the Americans expressed amasement that Russian workers are able to keep on their feet on the miserable rations they receive.

"In the first place no miners in America would tolerate such fare and, in the second place, if any Americans were forced to live on such meager supplies, I doubt if they would have the strength to lift their hands, much less attempt to work," one specialist said.

"A pound of soggy black bread a day is what the hard rock men get, with a salt fish every other day and perhaps a bit of meat in their sour cabbage soup once a week. No sugar or milk in their tea of course! Sometimes they get a ration of oats, exactly like horses. They boil the oats up in water and it forms into a gluey sort of mess and they eat that.

"Of course they can't put in a proper shift, they are so weak that a dozen Russians can't finish what one man would do in America or Alaska."

Numerous groups of political exiles and kulaks are working in the gold region. Those who do not work receive absolutely no food and they are unable to buy any, even if they had money, because there are no shops for hundreds of miles, only the company store.

Are Paid in Coupons.

In these isolated camps the workers are not paid in money. They merely receive coupons good for purchases at the company store. In some camps no cash has been paid since last July.

There are soldiers all through these districts, not so many as I had expected, but in every tiny hamlet of only a score of people there will be a G. P. U. man, or perhaps two. And it's curious that one soldier can boss an entire community. He is never questioned, but always obeyed implicitly. They call in the militia over every dispute and every argument and his decision is always taken without a murmur.

Moscow is making determined efforts to open new mining properties everywhere in the hope of obtaining sufficient precious metal to store up credits abroad by bullion shipments for the purchase of machinery for the five year plan.

Americans have advised the soviet directors to concentrate more efficiently on properties already being worked and dig out the real pay dirt down in the bed rock and clay, usually below where the operations are going on. These suggestions are seldom acted upon, however, the Russian chief preferring to be able to announce in his reports to the Kremlin, that he has begun new operations.

SAYS ONLY CONGRESS CAN SAVE AVIATION SCHOOL FOR RANTOUL

Rantoul, Ill., June 16.—(AP)—Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley told business men of this district today that "only a mandate of congress next December can prevent the removal of the army's technical aviation school here to Dayton, O."

Invited by Congressman Charles Adkins of Decatur to meet business men of Rantoul, Champaign and Urbana here, Hurley said the war department "is forced to view the matter from the standpoint of economy and efficiency rather than from your position of local pride."

He said the school would not be moved this summer due to the economic depression.

MACKENZIE KING LABELS IMPERIAL PARLEY FAILURE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., June 16.—The British Empire's economic conference in London last year, which was to have paved the way for an empire trade merger, was characterized as a "fiasco" and "a dismal failure" by Liberal leader Mackenzie King in the Canadian parliament today as he delivered the final condemnations of the Conservative party on the eve of a parliamentary vote on Premier Bennett's "Canada first" budget enactments of June 1.

Denying that his late Liberal government's policies were in any way responsible for Canada's diminished revenues, he said. "May I ask if the Liberal policies were responsible for the fiasco which Premier Bennett and others made of the imperial conference? I think he realizes that the world recognizes that conference was a most dismal failure, that in every particular it left conditions between this country and the mother country in a disagreeable and unpleasant way."

TWO DASHING NEW

Ford Convertible Cars

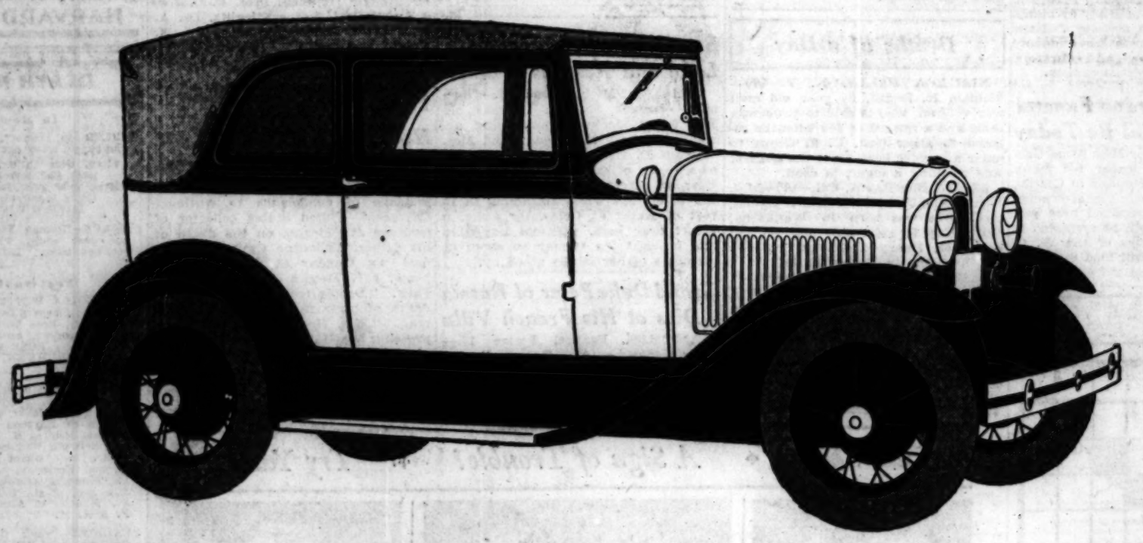
IN THE past few months, the Ford Motor Company has introduced three new five-passenger bodies—the Town Sedan, De Luxe Sedan and Standard Sedan. To this distinguished group are now added the Convertible Sedan and Cabriolet.

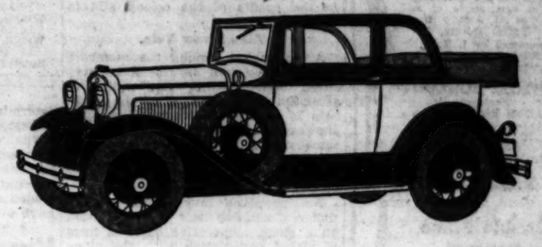
These latest Ford bodies are of particular importance at this season not only because of their distinctive style and beauty, but because of the convertible feature. Each is really two cars in one.

On bright, clear days and moonlit nights, you may enjoy the exhilarating dash and freedom of an open car. When skies are overcast, or winter comes, the substantial attractive top gives you the snug comfort and protection of a closed car. The change is made quickly and easily.

See these new Ford cars at the showrooms of Ford dealers and make special note of their careful finish, rich upholstery and beautiful colors. You will take pride in their striking appearance and their satisfactory performance over many thousands of miles.

THE NEW FORD CONVERTIBLE SEDAN





AN ENTIRELY new Ford body of impressive grace and style. Great care has been taken to make the top sturdy and substantial. Only four clamps are needed to hold it securely in place—two at the windshield frame and one on each of the rear-quarter side frames. Snaps fasten the non-shrinkable, fast-color top material to the sides. The solid frame for window and door supports is a distinctive feature. Seat cushions and backs are genuine leather, with arm rests for rear seat passengers. Driver's seat is adjustable. Side fender-well for spare tire is standard equipment. There is a choice of de luxe body colors. Most exposed bright metal parts are made of Rustless Steel. The slanting windshield is made of Triplex safety polished plate glass.

F. O. B. Detroit, plus freight and delivery. Bumpers and spare tire extra.

(Safety glass is optional in all doors and windows at small additional cost.)

COLONY IN IOWA TIRES OF CREED OF COMMUNISM

Amana Society Holds Vote on Change.

Homstead, Ia., June 16.—(AP)—Members of the Amana society went about their accustomed work today apparently unperturbed at the sudden spotlight of publicity focused on their group through reports that changes in or abandonment of the communistic principle were contemplated.

Some intimated that the present discussion might end with the present system of "share and share alike" in the profits of the colony still in force.

Take Straw Vote.

A vote taken among the members was characterized to the Associated Press as a "straw vote," taken to ascertain the sentiment of the members in regard to reorganization. It showed a decided tendency toward some change, but members of the committees from each colony and the chief officers said any plans were still in the nebulous state.

Among plans they admitted were under discussion was reorganization on a stock cooperative basis, a form of closed corporation with the members holding the shares and possibly receiving wages in addition to any profits that might be made.

Nonprofit Making.

As organized at present, the Amana society is a nonprofit making concern incorporated under the Iowa laws.

Any change, it was pointed out, would not be made until after a long period of exhaustive research into various legal angles involved, as well as determination of the fairest means of reorganizing.

The colonies, members revealed, have been the object of study by many persons interested in sociology. Representatives of the soviet government, students of communism, and educators have made studies of the system.

DR. E. O. TONNEY IS EXONERATED OF OLD CHARGES

By unanimous vote the civil service commission yesterday exonerated Dr. Fred O. Tonney, director of the research laboratories of the city health department, of the charges made against him last year by the former city hall administration. Dr. Tonney will receive pay for the period he was under suspension.

In its decision, which was announced by Richard J. Collins, president, the commission followed the recommendation of Health Commissioner Bundesen, and a committee of leading physicians and scientists who had investigated the charges.

The charges, which were never brought to trial by the former administration, were that Dr. Tonney had used equipment for experiments without authority, had read a scientific paper without first submitting it to his superiors, had been absent without leave, and had misapplied alcohol used in the laboratories.

The committee that investigated the charges and recommended Dr. Tonney's exoneration was composed of Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, Prof. E. C. Jordan and Prof. Julius Stieglitz, Dr. A. I. Kendall, Dr. A. A. Day, Dr. H. Gideon Wells, Dr. J. J. Moore, Dr. A. J. Carlson, Dr. J. P. Simonds and Dr. Morris Fishbein, and Messrs. A. E. Gorman, H. B. Lemon and Paul Hansen.

• Bad Skin • A Sign of Trouble! • Try Yeast •

THOSE HORRID blemishes usually come from trouble ⟩ RIGHT HERE! Poisons that spread from clogged intestines are the cause. ⟩ EATING YEAST every day corrects this condition.

You can't HIDE Pimples!

YOU know what they mean . . . those wretched blotches and eruptions! They mean that your system is not functioning properly . . . that an unclean condition inside your body is showing itself in your skin.

Then why go on trying to hide pimples? Why keep covering them up with powder, cream and rouge? Why not correct them, by attacking their chief underlying cause?

Fortunately, this is very simple—thanks to a method leading specialists recommend. They have discovered that in cases such as yours remarkable results are secured by eating fresh yeast.

So why not correct their underlying CAUSE? Here is the way!

Added to your regular diet, Fleischmann's Yeast softens the waste masses that are clogging your system. At the same time it stimulates natural intestinal action.

Thus your body is helped in throwing off its daily accumulation of wastes. No longer do poisons circulate throughout your system, to cause bad skin, unpleasant breath, headaches, indigestion, "nerves," etc.

And as a result, energy returns—you feel as much better as you look! All because your system is again internally active and clean!

So start today! Get a supply of Fleischmann's Yeast at any grocery, restaurant or soda fountain and eat it regularly, three cakes a day, following the directions on the label. Every cake, you know, is rich in health-giving vitamins B, G and D.

Eat FLEISCHMANN'S YEAST for Health—3 Cakes a Day

Always ask for Fleischmann's fresh Yeast (with the yellow label) . . . the only yeast "irradiated" to give it the Sunshine Vitamin D! Rich in Vitamins B and G, too.

Lure of Magic, Thrill of War in These Books

Naval Battles and Dartmoor Prison.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

Book lovers who enjoy an adventure story with the rich, rosy background of the middle ages, "Monk's Magic," by Alexander de Commau [Dutton], will provide interesting reading. While it lacks the wealth of detail of the jeweled settings that make a Sabatini novel sparkling and rich, it nevertheless has a plot abounding in thrills and suspense.

One comes across old friends of the historical romance writers: [illegible] the philosopher's stone that was always said to change dross into gold, or some elixir turned the trick; the elusive potion that was a cure-all for most human ills; weird poisons worn in rare rings, and magical elixirs that wrought miracles or brought [illegible].

[illegible] Dismas, a lay brother in a holy order, set out upon a quest that had none other than the elixir of life as its goal. He intended to search the world until he found all the ingredients and the magic formula that promised eternal life. Unlike the Jew who cursed Christ and was given endless life on this earth as a punishment, and who wandered, so the tale ran, from country to country for a thousand years, longing only for death, so Father Dismas coveted immortality and was determined to find it via the miraculous potion.

He set out from Wickdene, England, for London and was joined by a young boy, who was searching for his father. They visit a Jewish pawner in London who helps them on their way to the continent, accompanied by Thomas Brackenridge, a man [illegible] a barrel than a man, so [illegible] was his stature and so marvelous his girth.

Dismas eventually finds an elixir, but the one he set out to discover, for us that proves entirely satisfactory to him and to meet men to this day. Three guesses as to what the four letter word usually appearing at the end of a telegram!

Kenneth Roberts, whose historical novel "Arundel" won him so many readers, has followed it with a new one, "The Lively Lady, A Chronicle of Certain Men of Arundel" (Doubleday, Doran). In this tale of adventure and daring, laid in the period of our war of 1812 with England, Richard Ives, the son of Phoebe and Steven Ives of "Arundel" is the chief character and through him the two books are a thread of union. However, each story stands alone as a complete story in itself.

Mr. Roberts has the keen, observant eye of the reporter. Indeed, he started his career as reporter for a Boston paper. He goes directly to the heart of his subject and writes a swiftly moving, exciting story.

There's a vivid picture of English ships capturing American ones and "impressing" their seamen, forcing them to leave their ship and serve on British boats. Young Richard is so bent, but manages to escape, and [illegible] revenge, fits out his own prize, mans it with his Maine men and sets out to pilfer the English marine of as many prizes as he can.

Ultimately, in time he is captured and sent to Dartmoor prison, in England, one of the hell holes of the earth, in which 1,000 American seamen were held during the years 1813-1815. The conditions of this prison were almost beyond belief and, I think, Mr. Roberts, the French penal colony on Devil's Island, the French penal colony, can compare with it and with the brutal treatment of the men. The prisoners as well as American were kept at Dartmoor, and many of them were incarcerated there.

It is amazing at this late date, more than 100 years after the conclusion of the war of 1812, I should think Mr. Roberts' book would stir up considerable feeling against England. The description of the massacre of the prisoners, after peace had been declared, and on the eve of their release, is unbelievable. The author says: "America bears the pain of April 6, 1917, and England bears the shame of that day. To my mind what Britain did less than three months later will forever lessen its glory because of the [illegible] she put upon her flags at that time before at Dartmoor."

There is a thread of love interest through "The Lively Lady," but it is accidental, wistful and charming, and most of all, the writer leaves the memory of those early men who laid the foundation of our nation.

Hutchins Urges Grads to Face World in Crisis

And May Facts Help You, Says U. of C. President.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, addressing the 887 graduates on whom he conferred degrees yesterday, warned them that, having spent years in accumulating facts, those facts might be of little value to them "in a world as full of information as ours is."

He told those who soon will be looking for jobs that they soon would experience the economic crisis, "unprecedented in its scope and consequences."

Dr. Hutchins raised the question as to whether the educational system which the University of Chicago is scrapping with the close of this year, and which produced the class of 1931, an educational system based on the accumulation of facts "is likely to lead us through the mazes of a world whose complications have been produced by the facts we have discovered."

President Hutchins held out hope for future classes educated in the University of Chicago, however, sketching the new plan of education to go into effect in the fall there. That, he hoped, will supply what is missing in the world today—ideas.

Dr. Hutchins delivered the same address at each of two convocation ceremonies in the university chapel. At the morning ceremony advanced degrees were awarded 340 graduates. In the afternoon bachelor's degrees were presented to 527 candidates.

Francis Bacon in 1627 visualized the New Atlantis, his Utopia, as a state animated by the passion for useful information. President Hutchins explained. Discovery, invention and engineering were its objects.

"To Bacon that country was a land of dreams to which we could never attain," Dr. Hutchins told the graduates, "a land too good to be true. He was wrong. The New Atlantis did come true. We are living in it. We have more information, more means of getting information, more means of distributing information and more practical applications of informaton than Francis Bacon, in his wildest imaginings, could have predicted.

"Now the New Atlantis was an ideal state. Do you feel as though you were living in one? One half the world is starving to obtain the goods the other half is starving to dispose of, and we see no way of bringing them together."

Our knowledge of political institutions has produced no great improvement in government over that of Bacon's time, Dr. Hutchins said. Our collections of facts on rural and city life have not prevented poverty, unemployment, crime, demoralization, nor solved the race problem, President Hutchins declared.

"The world that we have created is too much for us," he said. "We cannot tell who or what is responsible for anything. The machinery we have invented produces results we did not forsee and cannot avoid. The industrial organization that has developed carries us along we do not know whither; we do not know why.

We have more money, more food, more things, and more power than at any time in history. We are poorer, hungrier, more helpless and more confused than ever before. The intelligence of the race has failed before the problems the race has raised.

"We must confess that something is missing in Utopia. What can it be? It is ideas. Facts are not enough. Facts are essential. They must be the basis for ideas. But it is not through facts but through ideas that Utopia will be achieved.

"Insight, understanding, the appreciation of values, intelligence, ideas were not esteemed in the New Atlantis. We pay the penalty today. Leadership, direction, the ability to plan, to formulate policies, judgment critical and constructive, obtained no place in the New Atlantis. We seek and rarely find them now. Upon the proper balance of fact and idea depends our eventual escape from the New Atlantis."

President Hutchins contrasted the present educational system with the one the university will put into effect next fall. Of the former he said:

"Our investigators secure facts. Our teachers teach them. Our students memorize them and hand them back to the teachers. If they hand them back without too much mutilation they may in many places receive degrees and go forth as educated people."

Of the new system, which, he believes, gives hope for our escape from the New Atlantis, the educator said:

"The new regulations permitting the student to prepare himself for examinations in his own way, to absent himself from classes and to present himself for examinations when he feels ready to do so, are obviously designed to promote independence.

"The new general courses eliminate the unessential; they demand mastery of important facts and important ideas. The general examinations must of necessity emphasize ideas rather than facts."

Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology in the Field Museum of Natural History, was awarded the honorary degree of doctor of laws by the University of Chicago. He has been associated with the museum since 1908.

Mortimer Adler, professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago, addressed the Alumni association of the University of Chicago law school at a dinner in the Congress hotel last night.

U. of Illinois Graduates Record Class; Chase Gives Advice.

Urbana, Ill., June 16.—[Special.]—Chicago and its suburbs furnished nearly 30 per cent of the graduating class at the University of Illinois this year. This afternoon approximately 1,900 degrees were conferred by President Harry Woodburn Chase. Of that number over 500 were from Chicago and its environs.

Counting the 400 degrees granted to graduates of the Chicago departments of the state university last Saturday, a total of approximately 2,300 degrees were given this June. That is the largest number in the history of the institution.

The university has also conferred 446 other degrees during the year, 197 being granted in October and 249 in February, making a grand total for the year of more than 2,750.

Dr. Chase made his first appearance before a graduating class at Illinois, advising the graduates to live as educated persons should in a world that senses values. The Rev. Morton C. Stone, chaplain of the Episcopal church of St. John the Divine, delivered the invocation and benediction.

"College formerly was a sort of shelter apart from and outside the main currents of life," President Chase said, "but I need not remind you that that time is forever past. Today the same influences that play through American life in general are as apparent in universities as anywhere else. The university student of today lives in an atmosphere that is impregnated by the ideas, the codes of conduct, the points of view, the interests that are characteristic of people of his day and time in general. This is inevitable.

"Our responsibility to you in these days is not to protect you from the world but to try to help to bring you some order and principle into the confusing and chaotic welter of modern life, and to assist you so far as we can in finding how to live full and happy and good lives in the midst of it.

"But education involves more than competence; it involves, among other things, a sense of values. It involves the ability to distinguish between what is temporary, accidental, and superficial and what is permanent. And, after all, new as are many of your problems and confusing as is the life of today, the world has been in existence a long time, and it has developed certain ways of getting at things, of judging things, and of acting toward them that you, as educated people, ought not to forget."

35 NOTABLES ADDED TO NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY ADVISERS

Silas H. Strawn, chairman of the Northwestern University Associates, yesterday announced the addition of the names of 35 outstanding business and professional men, largely of Chicago, to the list of its members.

Charles W. Nash, Potter Palmer, Halsey E. Poronto, Frank C. Rathje, Donald Riley, Henry A. Scandrett, Frank H. Scott, Edward G. Seubert, Fred Uhlmann, John N. Vander Vries, Harry L. Wells, Charles J. Whipple, Henry H. Windsor Jr., and Warren Wright.

"President Walter Dill Scott and his aids," Mr. Strawn said, "are entirely willing to assume responsibility for the technique of the university, but I submit they are entitled to receive whole hearted coöperation from those who have a wide experience in the commercial, industrial, and financial world. The perpetuation of the university and its advancement as a potential factor in the community is a responsibility which every citizen must share."

Camp Delights Mothers, Kids at Algonquin

Summer's First Group Arrives from City.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Many a blithesome mile from the sooty haze of the steel mills, the congestion of "back o' the yards," Camp Algonquin waved a leafy welcome last night as its brand new bus coasted to a stop in front of the refectory with its first load of summer guests. The vacation season had opened in a blaze of sunshine and good cheer for a group of 90.

It was appropriate enough that Mrs. R—— of 95th street, mother of seven [all present] should have intoned the theme song of the occasion. Hardly had the brakes been applied when she imperiled her trusty old black chapeau by poking an eager head through the window to yell at Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent:

"I coom back. I coom back."

"Fine. Dinner's ready," yelled back the petite superintendent, whose personality is reflected in the entire camp staff and radiates in their wholehearted service to these needy arrivals. Before the bus door can be opened the counselors, comfortable in sport shirts, shorts and tennis shoes, have charged the vehicle and are hoisting infants in arms out of the windows, to be hurried away to a nursery where the enticing bottles of milk stand warmed and ready.

Coatless youngsters of pre-school age are hustled into the refectory and boosted onto benches at the tables—where their evening meal stands ready. More slowly the mothers stream in, yielding bags and bundles with sighs of relief, to fall to with a will at the waiting places.

Hot macaroni with tomato sauce, plenty of bread and butter, as much milk as any one will drink, slice after slice of delicious coffee cake, and a dish of stewed apricots comprise the menu. Enough to refresh and strengthen the travelers who have just arrived after their unaccustomed and quite exciting journey, yet not too heavy to banish the sleep they are destined for almost immediately.

Before they leave the tables, the list of families has been checked and every mother knows where she and her children will sleep. Mrs. R—— is condescendingly instructive to those who weren't lucky enough to have spent a previous season at camp, as she has. She chatters volubly to the encouraging counselors about her man and her family and the hard winter it has been.

She is the oldest of the mothers. Among the mothers are several whose youth seems almost unbelievable, carrying one child and leading one or two others. There are shadows under their eyes, and the children smile bashfully up out of pathetically pasty little faces. They will be a different lot when they start back to Chicago some weeks hence.

Regular, long hours of sleep will mark their schedule. Their meals will be prepared for them, and full and hearty ones they will be, destined to implant a flush on cheeks now thin and pale. Plenty of exercise in the open air, rowing, bathing, boating, playing ball and lying on the grass, strolling over the rolling countryside in the vicinity, or merely sitting about in the evening, singing and telling stories, is in prospect for their stay at Camp Algonquin.

More mothers and more children than have ever before been accommodated at the camp have requested to be cared for this summer. Funds to help out on such care are always contributed by TRIBUNE readers, and all the old friends of the camp and many new ones will be needed now. Your check, large or small, will be thankfully accepted if mailed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, and acknowledged in these columns.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., June 16.—[Special.]—Carole Lombard and Bill Powell announce June 26 as the tentative date for their wedding here.

Mervyn Le Roy, director, and Edna Murphy, his actress wife, have decided to make their separation permanent, and Le Roy's attorney finished a property settlement with his wife yesterday. Everything has been amicably settled out of court up to this time, but a divorce action probably will soon be filed. Miss Murphy keeps the couple's beach home.

Lila Lee, whom some Chicagoans still remember as "Gussie" [Augusta] Apfel, child actress of North Clark street, is still in Hollywood, but in bed. She came back from a tuberculosis sanitarium in Arizona before some of the doctors thought she should.

Claudia Dell today was finally and permanently freed from her ex-husband, Philip G. Offin, final decree being entered to replace her interlocutory decree of divorce here. She divorced Offin here last year on grounds of desertion.

Members of Universal's company filming the Mississippi river story "Heaven on Earth" are returning to Hollywood after nearly four weeks on location along the Sacramento river.

The Columbia studio, biggest of the independents but only a midget compared with the big movie plants such as Paramount, Metro, Fox, Universal, R. K. O., and Warner, happens just at this time to be Hollywood's busiest. Seven companies are at work for this independent studio. Some of the big ones of the Hays combine, of which Columbia is not a member, are doing their skimpiest early summer activity in ten years.

Objets d'art rented to Hal Roach Film company for the making of the motion picture, "The Lost Paradise," are basis of a $42,000 suit filed in Superior court by Charles O. Canfield, oil producer, against the picture concern. One antique was a Louis XVI. bed which was used by the company, with an estimated value of $25,000, and a picture which it is contended once sold for $100,000 to Charles Yerkes, the one time Chicago traction magnate. According to the oil man, the company used his bed and picture from Sept. 21, 1928, until June 21, 1930, and the least that should have been paid in rent for them, estimating money tied up, possible interest on the funds tied up, and the insurance costs, was $500 a week.

Rush Medical School Future Still Problem

Dr. Frank Billings Says Identity Must Remain.

What to do with Rush Medical college as regards its association with the University of Chicago has not been solved, President Robert M. Hutchins of the university said last night. He addressed the class of 1931, alumni, and faculty members of Rush at a dinner in the Congress hotel.

Recounting the history of the famous medical college since it became a part of the university in 1917, Dr. Hutchins said, "We must have either one school, or two on a different basis. The present cost prohibits the development of two first class institutions by the University of Chicago."

At present a program for uniting the university's medical school and Rush college is being discussed by a faculty committee representing both schools, he said.

Dr. Frank Billings, veteran professor at Rush Medical college, assured the alumni that the college need never break away from the west side.

"I'm 77 years old now," he said, "but if I live to the time when we begin a campaign for funds to continue a great post graduate school, I'll do as big a job as I did in 1917, when I raised $2,500,000."

Dr. James B. Herrick was toastmaster. Other speakers were Dr. Thomas C. Clark of Minneapolis, member of the class of 1881, 10 of whom met in reunion in an adjoining room; Dr. Carl B. Davis, president of the alumni association; Alfred T. Carton, president of the board of managers of the Presbyterian hospital; Dr. Arthur H. Parmelee of the class of 1911, and Dr. Clarence K. Elliott of the class of 1931.

Other members of the class of 1881 who attended the reunion are: Dr. Albert A. Maurer, New York; Dr. V. J. Hawkins, St. Paul; Dr. C. L. Annis, La Porte, Ind.; Dr. C. F. Ross, Saunemin, Ill.; W. T. McLean, Maroa, Ill.; Dr. F. J. Kreibs, Elkport, Ia.; Dr. Joseph Krost, Chicago; Dr. J. R. Bedford, Dahinda, Ill., and Dr. Ward Woodbridge, Central City, Ia.

boots with spurs. When operating he always wore a Prince Albert coat. This was before the days of gowns and gloves."

Officers of the Alumni association of Rush Medical college as elected in the afternoon: Dr. Edwin M. Miller, president; Dr. B. J. Bill, first vice president; Dr. John Ritter, second vice president; Dr. Walter S. Babb, third vice president; Dr. Frank Allin, necrologist; Dr. C. A. Parker, secretary, and Dr. Carl O. Rinder, treasurer.

THE STAGE

THE Dramatic League of Chicago has added "Mrs. Moonlight" to the list of seventeen plays from which its program for next season will be selected. This piece is a romantic comedy, or fantasy, by Benn W. Levy, the Englishman who wrote "Art and Mrs. Bottle" and adapted Marcel Pagnol's "Topaze."

Charles Hopkins staged "Mrs. Moonlight" in his New York theater last fall, with Edith Barrett in its leading rôle, and it was received as a worthy successor to "Michael and Mary." Others in the New York cast were Sir Guy Standing, Haidee Wright, Kathryn Collier, Leo G. Carroll, Katherine Standing, Vernon Kelso, and John Ross. The play was one of the recognized hits of the New York season.

Mr. Hopkins appears to have become a regular contributor to the chain of subscription audiences which is represented in Chicago by the Dramatic League. He is rich, he has excellent taste in the selection and staging of plays, and his productions always have a special quality of charm. The little playhouse which he operates, formerly the Punch and Judy, now the Hopkins, is veritably a one-man art theater. The Hopkins touch was illustrated in Chicago last winter by A. A. Milne's "Michael and Mary," and in September, 1929, at the Garrick theater by the same dramatist's "The Perfect Alibi."

Mr. Ziegfeld's new "Follies"—the first for several years and the twenty-third in the series—is being put through its pace in the Nixon theater, Pittsburgh, this week, preliminary to its New York première, which is scheduled for next Wednesday evening. Thus "glorification" is descending upon 65 American girls. Among the principal entertainers are Helen Morgan, the sweet singer of the piano lids; Harry Richman, the "Sons o' Guns" barytone; Reri, a hula girl fresh from Polynesia; Jack Pearl, a German dialect comic; Gladys Glad, who married a Broadway columnist; Ruth Etting, and Pearl Osgood.

Jane Cowl will amuse herself this summer on the Pacific coast playing a modernized version of "Camille." She will also give her audiences a taste of her quality as a comedienne in Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

The première of "High Hat" at the Adelphi has been postponed from next Saturday to next Monday night. The play comes from Boston, where it has been well received. . . . It is likely that in another week or two Harry Mervis, formerly of the Goodman repertory company, will join the cast of "Apron Strings" at the Playhouse, succeeding Edmund George as the dilatory bridegroom. . . . Rosetta Duncan, the clown member of the famous sister act, will lead next week's vaudeville program at the Palace theater. William Demarest, companion-comic to Will Mahoney in Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" revue, is another well-known who will contribute to the bill.

U.S. Population Static by 1970, Experts' View

Tells London Session That Decline May Follow.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, June 16.—Addressing the second general assembly of the international union for scientific investigation of population problems, Dr. Louis I. Dublin, statistician of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, today predicted a stationary population of the United States by 1970.

Dr. Dublin predicted the birth rate and death rate will equalize each other and that will be followed by a further decrease in the birth rate to possibly ten per thousand. As the inevitable result of that the rapid decline of American population would follow, he indicated.

"The decline of the birth rate," he said, "is due somewhat to decreasing fertility, but more particularly to birth control. We have a knowledge of the latter, and its application is spreading rapidly throughout the civilized world, especially among American city dwellers. The true rate of natural increase already is at a low figure in cities of the United States. In many the true rate is either zero or a minus quantity at present.

"The studies we have made indicate that population of the country will become stabilized as to age composition in less than fifty years. When that happens the population will be in the neighborhood of 150,000,000 and expectation of life at birth will be increased to approximately seventy years. The true birth rate and death rate will balance at about 14 per 1,000. The true birth rate in 1928 was 17.8 per 1,000 and the true death rate that year 15.6, leaving the true natural increase 1.7 per thousand.

"If the true birth rate does finally fall, and it gives promise of doing so, and continues until it is 10 per thousand, even with the best mortality, the population will decline one half in eighty years."

Group Insurance Favored to Reduce Sickness Cost.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 16.—(AP)—An extensive program of group insurance against sickness was advocated tonight as a means of financing more easily the nation's annual $3,000,000,000 "doctor bill" by Dr. Michael M. Davis, Chicago, medical service director for the Julius Rosenwald fund.

Uneven and uncertain distribution rather than the cost of medical care itself furnishes an outstanding problem which requires solution without delay, Dr. Davis told the national conference of social work.

During a year over half of the outlay for sickness falls on about one-sixth of the nation's population, Dr. Davis asserted. No one, he said, can predict whether he or his family will be the "unlucky sixth" and as a result expenditures cannot be budgeted in advance as can be done in the case of other major expenditures.

The Jewish social service section of the conference adopted a resolution addressed to President Hoover calling for federal projects and formulation of a comprehensive program of social insurance.

Over 15,000 Youths to Gather Here for Luther League Sessions

More than 15,000 members of the Young People's Luther league of America will begin arriving here today to attend an international convention which opens tonight and closes on June 21. Most of the sessions of the convention will be held at the Stevens hotel.

The largest gathering will be held Sunday night in the Chicago Stadium. There a grand concert will be given. Under the direction of Prof. F. Mellus Christiansen, leader of the well known St. Olaf's college choir, a chorus of 3,000 adults and 1,000 children will sing choral numbers.

The first meeting tonight at the Stevens hotel will organize the convention. On succeeding days the sessions will be devoted to discussions of the relationship of modern affairs to religion.

At the concert Sunday night, the children's chorus will be drawn from Chicago churches, while the adult singers will represent choral organizations drawn from different parts of the country.

The prevocational school, which is a branch of Tilden High school, is attended by boys who are handicapped in such wise they are unable to attend regular classes. As a part of the day's program a class of deaf boys will give gymnastic drills.

MOVIE CLOSE-UP

People who live in the neighborhood of the Howard theater are fortunate. I noticed yesterday that this movie house, which runs double feature programs, advertises at what time each feature starts. If you don't care to see one you can ease in and see the other. I know from my mail that a sigh of relief would go up from motion picture fans if all theaters would follow this plan. Few of the loop theaters run double features, but if they would advertise the hours at which their feature film starts they would save patrons from sitting through news reels seen before and, perhaps, short subjects and stage shows that they don't care about. MAE TINEE.

BEG YOUR PARDON

THE TRIBUNE of June 5 said that William D. Mack, a stage comedian, was at one time the husband of Phyllis Haver, the motion picture actress. The Phyllis Haver to whom Mack was married is not the film actress.

4 Art Displays Offered You at Local Galleries

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Another morning of exhibits takes us to four interesting shows in as many attractive galleries. The Allerton gallery offers paintings by Marion Lukens and caricatures by Jane Spear King. The paintings may be dismissed more or less casually because they are on the face of them the work of a young and inexperienced artist. Miss Lukens obviously has a nice color sense but more than that is needed to make an oil that will stand out among its fellows. In fact, speaking of oils, her water colors are infinitely more vivacious and vivid than are they.

Jane Spear King with her caricatures gives us a splendid ten minutes. She is remarkably apt in her impersonations with a line here, an eye there, a chin, a tuft of hair, a lowering brow or a pursed mouth, at getting and giving the personality of the sitter whom at the moment her wit is spearing. "Coolidge," "Emmerson" (the governor, not the philosopher), "Capone," "Garbo," "William S. Schwartz." Miss King walks through contemporary society and picks her victims from all ranks and shades. Her portrait of the painter, Foujita, is more than a caricature. It is a delightful piece of painting. On the strength of this exhibit, her talent should take her far.

The Studio gallery, Diana Court building, is showing a thoughtful group of lithographs and drawings by Davenport Griffen. There is some very sensitive work among them. Mr. Griffen is to be represented with a one-man show of paintings in the summer exhibits at the Art Institute in July.

Further along Michigan avenue we find the Chicago Galleries association, where are hung the Fifty Best Prints of the Year. Modernism is rampant among them. Speaking as one individual who is interested in etching, there are few of these which I should care to own. It is startling, except that it has become so much a matter of course, how various manners of modernist treatment have crept even into black and white. Much sober, painstaking stuff is here as well as some that is vulgar and blatant.

Almost next door to the Chicago galleries is the Kroch gallery where this afternoon Lorado Taft will speak at a tea in honor of the current exhibit there of delightful sculpture pieces by students in the Chicago School of Sculpture. Taking a long step down Michigan avenue to the Congress hotel you will find in the Florentine parlors an interesting exhibit of portraits by a young Chicago painter, Briarly I believe by name.

WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. William Noble Moseley of 6047 Dorchester avenue announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Mary Horton, to Harold Sheldon Bott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bott of Alliance, O. The wedding is to take place on Saturday in the presence of the immediate families. After a trip to California, the couple will reside in Evanston.

Midseason Showings Favor Lace for Bride

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. —[Special.]— Bridal fashions keep up with the times just as much as any other styles, and though the wedding gown should still be the loveliest, it no longer has to be laid away in lavender, but steps right into place in the trousseau for post honeymoon parties.

A goodly percentage of the dressy frocks in our summer wardrobes are going to be in lace, if the Paris couturiers' midseason collections are any criterion. Molyneux is showing colored lace afternoon gowns and evening gowns with décolleté lace capes to match, and other creators favor this becoming material, also.

Therefore, the June bride will do well to choose a lace wedding gown this year, for not only will she be the last word in Paris bridal chic, but, with its train cut off, the frock will come in smartly later on.

Molyneux is making the ivory lace gown, sketched today, for several of the social season's brides, including Mlle. Ridou, Miss Robinson and Mlle. de Taurrelin, all of whom are noted for their elegance. The frock is extremely simple, as all good wedding gowns should be. The décolleté square in front and higher in back is typical of Molyneux's new mode. The skirt molds the figure almost to the knees, where it bursts into circular fullness. The large veil of ivory tulle edged with lace is attached by a wreath of baroque pearls to match the necklace.

The slippers are ivory satin.

Public Coddling and Love Making Apt to Annoy the Observer

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Do you consider it good manners for a wife to be hugging, kissing and calling her hubby all kinds of silly pet names, no matter where she happens to be? This one either sits on the arm of his chair or on his lap in a room full of people. She isn't a young girl, either. She's in her middle thirties.

"Her husband acts embarrassed. He is a man of education. She says men like to be coddled and made much of. I agree they do—but not publicly, where they are made a laughing stock.—P. S."

The irony of life is that there are any number of husbands who yearn so for the coddling and the fussing over that they'd be willing to be publicly embarrassed. But I guess this lady has been taking too literally the advice about letting the world know husband included, that he's the one and only.

It is pretty sickish to have to sit by and be the observer. And wives who are up on their Emily Post "etiquettelarnin'" just don't do it. Nor do the nice young things make themselves conspicuous on bus tops, or on park benches, or in motors by behavior whose sweets, so the seers promise, are sweeter when only two are in on the secret.

We're a pretty conventional group of people, after all. We may be guilty of our own little peccadillos, but we do like the other fellow to maintain a standard of decorum, is it not so? And we can develop into such goshoofful tyrants unless some one is by to remind us we were young and giddy ourselves, once.

Apropos, a woman of former reputation among the butterfly group was heard by an old acquaintance to attack with the primmest of New England consciences the doings of a silly but harmless young pair at her club. That's one of the things we oldsters have to guard against—not, in our respectability, to become unpleasantly intolerant.

Even if a wife chooses to sit on her husband's lap and coddle the life out of him, why bother getting excited about it? It isn't good form, to be true. But it isn't a heinous crime, either. A little good natured humor applied to the occasion might make the woman aware that she is being rather gauche, shall we say?

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

"Dear Miss Blake: The girl I met two weeks ago has asked me to marry her. JERRY."

That's pretty fast work, Jerry. I think I'd sidestep that lady.

Best to Quit.

"Dear Miss Blake: I can't seem to love my girl. How can I? JACK."

I'd advise giving her up. Don't take up her time when your feeling is that of friendship only.

Friends Are Right.

"Dear Miss Blake: The fellow I love never takes me out. My friends say if he cared for me he would. "UNDECIDED."

I agree with your friends.

Food Talk.

Mrs. M. R. writes: "I have heard that there is a never-fail pastry made of hot water. I was taught that pastry should be made with cold water, but I have never been able to succeed with that method. If there is really an easy kind that can be mixed with hot water, won't you please tell us how it is made?"

I know that the hot water method of making pie crust has been acquiring some popularity lately. I happen to know that it is a recipe that is used freely among brides who have not learned to make ordinary pastry successfully. I suppose the reason that it appeals to them is that the method is short and quick, and it produces a product that satisfies everybody except very discriminating pastry eaters.

There are no objections to the inexperienced making this variety of pastry until they learn the technique of the cold water kind, but they should learn this because it is then well made pastry of the highest order. My chief objection to hot water pastry is that baking powder must be added, otherwise the crust is inclined to be dense and heavy. I am opposed to baking powder in pie crust because it always seemed to me that it is used by those who are unable to make a good crust without it. And to my mind the flavor of pastry made with baking powder is not so good as one without it. A liquid or semi-liquid fat also produces a heavier crust than one made with solid fat.

The method of making the hot water pastry is as follows: The fat is melted thoroughly by adding hot water and this fatty liquid is stirred into the flour, salt, and baking powder mixture. As soon as the dough is mixed it should be chilled. Then it may be rolled out for immediate use or kept for some future time. The tenderness of the crust is increased by keeping the pastry in the refrigerator for several hours at least. Day old dough makes a noticeably shorter crust than the dough rolled and baked immediately.

HOT WATER PASTRY.

¼ cup boiling water
½ cup lard or hydrogenated fat
1¼ tsp. salt
3 cups pastry flour sifted before measuring
1 tsp. baking powder

Add the boiling water to the shortening and beat with a fork until creamy in appearance and uniform in consistency. Mix the flour, baking powder, and salt thoroughly; then quickly stir in the liquid. Chill before using. Roll out on a floured board, enamel table top, or on a magic cover. Bake in the usual way.

TAPIOCA CREAM.

2 cups milk
1½ tbsp. minute tapioca
2 eggs
2½ tbsp. sugar
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. vanilla

Heat the milk in a double boiler. Add the tapioca and cook until transparent—about 20 minutes. Beating constantly, pour the tapioca gradually into the egg yolks that have been combined with sugar and salt. Return to the double boiler and cook 5 minutes longer. Remove from the fire and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and vanilla. Chill. Garnish with one-half teaspoon currant jelly.

Yield: 5 servings.

It can't be "just like Kotex"

Kotex protects health as well as comfort

PLEASE don't ever think a sanitary pad is "just like Kotex" because it looks the same. You need more than surface resemblance.

You need the purity of Kotex. Your health requires its hygienic safety. Its care in making.

No sanitary protection that fails to meet these standards should ever be considered. You know Kotex is safe. You know hospitals use it.

This assurance of safety is beyond price. Don't give it up for the sake of a few pennies, when this saving means you must take some questionable substitute of whose makers you know nothing. By Alice Campbell

SYNOPSIS.

[illegible] year old daughter of Iris de Bertincourt, disappears mysteriously. Iris has been separated for years from her husband, Marcel, a man of great charm but no moral [illegible]. They are cousins and the possible heirs of their tyrannical aunt, the Comtesse de Bertincourt.

Marcel refused to divorce Marcel and marry Maj. Alan Charnwood. Charnwood and his friend Rostetter, conduct a private search for Clare.

Iris goes to her aunt's home and learns that her husband is already domiciled there. They have reformed. Alan meets Marcel and recalls having seen him at Le Touquet, [illegible] with a coarse looking couple. That night Alan sees Marcel with Susanne [illegible].

A note is sent to Iris, stating that Clare is being held for ransom. Her aunt offers [illegible] if Marcel and Iris promise to become reconciled. Marcel calls on [illegible] that night an attempt is made to asphyxiate Alan. He moves to Tommy's [illegible].

Marcel sent flowers to Iris the night Clare vanished. From Iris's description of the [illegible] who followed them Alan recognizes him as de Bertincourt's companion in Le Touquet. [illegible] with the couple, known as Yetia and Pietro, his partners in crime, the motive [illegible] the ransom. Alan and Tommy make an unsuccessful search for the couple, but [illegible] that they have a half-witted son. Tommy sees Marcel leaving Susanne Marly's [illegible] the hour scheduled for him to deliver the ransom. Alan calls on Iris and learns [illegible] has not returned home. Marcel arrives shortly after, badly beaten up, and declares [illegible] by the kidnapers. Tommy and Alan tell the story to the police.

INSTALLMENT LI.

A QUICK GET-AWAY.

Before they had finished the story Maupin sprung up to pace the floor in considerable excitement.

"Messieurs, messieurs!" he reproached them, "why in God's name did you withhold this information? Here we have been hopelessly handicapped, with the [illegible] growing colder each minute. Naturally, we investigated the domestic difficulties of mademoiselle's parents, but there seemed nothing to suggest a motive for crime. But now when it may be too late you bring me astounding details of a demand for ransom, attempted murder, and an unidentified messenger delivering flowers on the eve of the kidnaping—things we never dreamed of! Unbelievable stupidity! We could have done much, possibly [illegible] the whole thing down, if we had known sooner. But what can you expect from us now? I ask you—what?"

There was nothing to say. It was plain that the Frenchman's purely rational mind would not appreciate the reasons which had constrained them to silence. Tommy contented himself with a single remark.

"At least we have presented you with sufficient evidence to make one arrest."

"M. de Bertincourt, you mean? And why commit such a blunder as to accuse him? To do so could only harden him in the attitude of ignorance which is his only safeguard to maintain, besides warning his confederates of their danger. Such a course would be as good as signing mademoiselle's death warrant. No, we must plan something better than that." He thought deeply, eyes half [illegible] over smouldering eyes. "Where is M. de Bertincourt now" he demanded sharply.

Charnwood told him.

"Good! I will go to him at once, pretend I have learned of his misfortune through the Rambouillet police, and try to trap him into some admission. [illegible] will probably frighten him into communicating with his associates, in order to save his daughter, whom he can scarcely intend to abandon altogether. If he goes out I shall have him watched and followed."

Both men could see the good sense of this. The best move at the moment seemed to be the forcing of de Bertincourt's hand. Tommy, thereupon, said frankly their own intention to search the neighborhood of Nogent-le-

"Something may come through," he said doubtfully. We are doing our best.

Maupin [illegible] that it might be as well to learn the result of Maupin's interview [illegible] getting [illegible].

"Suppose we drive you with us to the rue de Babylone and wait round to hear your report?"

The inspector agreed, and after a brief absence to notify his men to [illegible] the concierge's house, returned to take his seat in the car. Halting a [illegible] distance from the gates, Tommy set him down and backed into the [illegible] side turning; but barely four minutes had elapsed when, to the Englishmen's amazement, they beheld his sturdy figure lumbering towards them [illegible].

"Gone!" he snapped with a red and angry face. "Flown, not a quarter [illegible] hour ago."

"Gone!" echoed the outraged pair. "Where?"

"That's what we must find out. As soon as the doctor left, he got up, [illegible] without help, and before any one guessed his intentions [illegible] out of the house. The concierge tried to stop him, thinking he was [illegible] to the head, but he beat him off, made a bolt for the street, and disappeared in the direction of the mews where his car is kept."

During the instant's blank silence Charnwood reflected that de Bertincourt's [illegible] must have been largely sham, that in all probability he was [illegible] up the sponge and making the get-away of which they had previously suspected him.

"A quarter of an hour? Then he can't have gone far," cried Tommy. "Come, Inspector, I'll ask you to take a taxi back, so we need lose no more time. I'm going to take the shortest cut for Nogent and comb the whole [illegible] with a fine toothed comb."

"To stand with your search, monsieur—it can do no harm," replied the [illegible]. "I shall telephone through to the Nogent police, so you might do [illegible] to get in touch with them as soon as you arrive. But I don't suppose [illegible] to do so."

"It certainly we shall, if we don't strike anything ourselves. But it seems to me we have as good a chance of finding the Lepins as they have." [illegible] the same an affair of this kind is safer in the hands of experts. I [illegible] you as quickly as possible, but I'd like to warn you not to expect [illegible]. You may find the house, but unless I am vastly mistaken, the [illegible] will not be in it."

"You mean that already she's been put out of the way?"

"They have played about too long. I am willing to stake my month's [illegible] on the lock of hair you mentioned is the last bit of her any of you [illegible]."

The other man spoke. They struck out immediately for the Boulevard [illegible] and as the car burnt up the miles of shining asphalt between them [illegible] city gates the police officer's final words hammered relentlessly in [illegible].

As they said, every faculty bent on reaching their destination in the [illegible] possible time. Charnwood, who was envisaging every dire calamity, [illegible] to begin the search, feeling he could not face Iris again until he could [illegible] some definite news.

Entering Nogent his companion aimed straight for the police.

"I meant all along to come here first," he declared naively, "only that [illegible] Inspector put my back up. But official inquiries have a big pull over [illegible] amateur kind, and some information may have been obtained [illegible]."

This, however, was not the case. The chief sergeant, having received [illegible] from Paris, had sent telephone calls to most of the villages [illegible] the street, but so far had gleaned only negative reports. He greeted the [illegible] Englishmen cordially, treating their mission with much more seriousness [illegible] had shown the day before.

"Something may yet come through," he said doubtfully. "We are doing [illegible] but it begins to look as though no one of this description was [illegible] in our district. You say your suspects own a car? Ah, that ex[illegible]. What is to prevent them making use of a railway station some [illegible] away? That is very likely what they would do in the [illegible]."

"Which means we must explore a pretty wide area," remarked Tommy [illegible] they entered their car.

"Nevertheless, thought Charnwood, that a single afternoon could hardly [illegible] anything.

Since the time was short they agreed to part company and pursue separate [illegible]. Accordingly, they hunted up a garage and after some haggling [illegible] to hire an antiquated motorcycle, sworn to be in working order. [illegible] Charnwood with some misgivings entrusted his life and limbs.

"I'll help you if it breaks down," said Tommy, eyeing the machine with [illegible] "It looks as if it had belonged to Father Noah and been left on [illegible] the flood. We ought to have thought of this before we left [illegible]. It's too late now."

They settled the boundaries of their respective regions, arranged to meet [illegible] some time during the evening, and at the edge of the town took [illegible] each other to begin operations.

Charnwood mounted his conglomeration of rusted metal and chugged [illegible] away towards the south. The autumn sun beat down on his back and [illegible] the white roads painfully dazzling, but last night's rain had laid [illegible] in that his journey was less uncomfortable than it might have been! [illegible] to inquire at various farms and cottages, he pushed on, omitting not [illegible] the most obscure lanes and cul-de-sacs, for something assured him that [illegible] had probably chosen an out-of-the-way spot.

[illegible] bottles of water abounded, but anything in the nature of a tower [illegible] to find. Evidently cupolas were not a feature of the local architecture, for that matter did fat, red haired Russian women and crippled [illegible] to the eye. Often his questions met with blank looks, sometimes [illegible] accorded a hostile silence, and on several occasions his progress [illegible] by savage mongrels who set upon him with loud barking and [illegible].

More than Chin Strap Needed to Make the Jawline Slim Again

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A correspondent asks about using double chin straps. She wants to know, particularly, if a chin strap will remove a double chin that is pretty large.

I'd suggest the chin strap and something else for getting off the extra weight beneath the chin proper. The chin straps are good for sagging chins. But for the actual removal of a well established extra one it would be slow reducing, if one reduced at all.

No doubt there is need of weight reduction all over if the chin is bearing an extra heavy load. This would entail a diet over a period of weeks, I should say. And then some exercise especially directed at the overweighted underchin part. And some massaging [best done in patting form] to hammer away at the fatty tissue.

There isn't anything any better in the way of exercise for the double chin than the good old formula of letting the chin drop low on the chest, bringing the head back to rest on the lower back of the neck, then swinging the head to the right and to the left. Of course, you've got to put some pep and pull into the mechanics of the movement or it won't do any good.

However, for the benefit of those who may be interested in chin strapping for other purposes: A sagging chin can be firmed, somewhat, by strapping it up well every night and slipping in between the strap and the skin a pad of cotton dipped in a good astringent. In fact, a pretty good emergency chin strapping trick is to slip ice in between the chin strap material and the skin and let it remain as long as you can stand it. The ice does make the chin contour firmer.

Chin straps have to fit well or they are not effective, so I would suggest that you don't buy them as off hand as you'd buy a spool of thread. They must fit your chin, or be adjustable so that you can make them fit perfectly. You can pat the chin with an astringent before putting on the strap, but if your chin is markedly affected a strong astringent may be required.

Difficult to Explain the New Education to a Biased Mentality

"Have You a Shy Child?" one of a new series of booklets for parents, will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Overheard at a tea.

"Yes, I have a little girl—she's 9."

"I have a boy, 11."

"Well, you must have your hands full with a boy. I know I think I have mine full with a girl. I just have to sit on her and sit on her. You live downtown, too, don't you? Where does your boy go to school?"

"He goes to the —— school." And the speaker began to laugh. "You should have seen him when he came home today. He was a sight—a jagged tear in his knickers, two buttons off his shirt, and such hands!"

The other restrained a polite sniff of horror. "The —— school? O, one of those new progressive schools, where they have no restraint—where they do just as they please! Thank goodness, my girl goes to a strict public school. I have to sit on her all the time as it is."

At this I glanced surreptitiously over my shoulder at the boy's mother, expecting to see or hear an exasperated explosion. I saw her mouth open, but no sound came forth as a look of resignation settled on her face. "What's the use," it seemed to say, "of trying to explain the new education at a tea to a woman who solves the problem of her child's energy by sitting on it?"

My sympathy was all with her resignation. There is so much misconception about the new education, the new psychology, that when you find yourself face to face with some one holding the old rigid idea you feel a sense of the hopelessness of trying to make him or her understand. The new education needs an interpreter—it needs some one to explain right and left that it will ultimately turn out a more intelligently controlled, self-disciplined, vital generation than any system of arbitrary restrain and rote learning could possibly produce.

Anyhow, it is encouraging to know that thousands of this new generation of mothers are "in the know" regarding the new psychology and the new education. Perhaps we need to catch them young—way before they are mothers.

Offers Chance for Adults to Help the Poorer Kids

An appeal to Chicago business men to provide tickets for underprivileged children to attend the Fresh Air Charity circus at the Coliseum was made yesterday by Stephen A. Day, president of the charity fund, with headquarters in the Palmer house. The show is being held the week of June 24. "Any one buying tickets for the circus and then contributing those tickets to a juvenile institution is performing two good deeds at one stroke," said Mr. Day. "He is not only helping underprivileged children to enjoy summer outings, but is giving an afternoon of fun to them."

BABES ON PICNIC BOAT LIFT DEATH TOLL ABOVE 500

French Officials List New Victims.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NANTES, France, June 16.—It became certain today that the final figures on the loss of life in the wreck of the excursion boat St. Philibert off St. Nazaire Sunday will be well over 500. It was estimated that the number of persons known to have been drowned leaped to 494 with the issuance of a third list of victims tonight.

But this total fails to include the tragic quota of babes in arms who so far are not accounted for, due to the fact that they needed no tickets. Their number is estimated at 20, according to figures of an official of the shipping company. But others place it at 30 or more.

The latest list showed that 182 women and girls were lost, including 39 children under 15 years of age, but who were old enough to pay their fare. Also about 75 persons between the ages of 17 and 25.

Seven More Bodies Found.

Although airplanes, tugs and fishing smacks continue to search the scene of the disaster only seven more bodies were recovered up to midnight. Three bodies, including that of the skipper, Capt. Ollive, were washed up on the beach of Pornichet, seven miles from where the boat sank.

Women lined the beach walk of St. Until late in the night men and Nazaire, near the American monument, commemorative of the first American soldier to land in France in 1917, watching for the boats and seaplanes search for bodies.

The efforts to locate the wrecked ship were fruitless. Divers who have been ordered from Brest will arrive tomorrow.

Nantes Claims Its Dead.

Mourning the greatest catastrophe in its history, Nantes, the ancient seat of the dukes of Britanny, claimed its dead today. Seventy-one bodies, 52 women and 19 men, were brought from St. Nazaire. They arrived in plain unvarnished oaken coffins accompanied by an escort of gendarmes. A wing of the fifteen century castle of the dukes of Britanny was prepared as a mourning chapel.

The dead, which have been identified, will receive church and civic honors at a great funeral on Thursday. The unclaimed bodies will be cared for by the marine authorities, according to a decree of 1681 by Jean Baptist Colbert, the great minister of the time of Louis XIV.

Broker, Cleaning a Rifle, Shoots Himself and Dies

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Worthington Davis, 34, socially prominent stock broker, died tonight of wounds received when he accidentally shot himself while cleaning a rifle. Mr. Davis was a first cousin of Ralph Pulitzer, former newspaper publisher.

David Heller, 62 years old, cotton broker, was found shot to death today on the roof of his residence in East 93d street. He left a note saying: "I want to be cremated."

NORTHERN ILLINOIS PAYMENTS ON INCOME DROP 41 PER CENT

Income tax collections in the first Illinois district, which includes Chicago, for the first six months of this year dropped approximately 41 per cent below those of the corresponding period of last year. This was disclosed yesterday in the report of Acting Collector of Internal Revenue Robert E. Neely.

At midnight yesterday the 1931 collections totaled $62,354,097. A year ago the collections were $103,957,032. Midnight was the deadline for the second quarterly installment. Mail, postmarked before midnight was received during the day. The senders will not be penalized. The total for 1931 will be swelled but slightly by this mail, said Mr. Neely.

Lose Sausage Machine and Wife in Court

John Kolecek lost his sausage macins as well as his wife yesterday in the divorce proceedings before Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude. He had agreed to the divorce, and was willing to give her his btucher shop at 1359 Dixon street, valued at $20,000, for the support of herself and their two children. But he held out for the sausage machine, informing the judge that he wanted it as a basis for a new business. Judge Trude ordered it given to Mrs. Kolecek. He issued a permanent injunction forbidding Kolecek to approach the shop.

POWERFUL INDIAN PRINCE ASSAILS FEDERATION PLAN

Fears Loss of Throne if Scheme Is Adopted.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIMLA, India, June 16.—It was in fear that his bejeweled throne and that of his brother princes might crumble under a self governing Indian federation, as did the German principalities in the confederation of 1815, which prompted the maharajah of Patiala to withdraw his support from the proposed federal constitution for India.

He admitted as much in a 5,000 word statement which he issued tonight in which he attempted to justify his political somersault. Last fall he was one of the most vehement supporters of a new federal constitution. The maharajah quotes everybody, from Prof. Charles E. Merriam of Chicago to Prof. Jellineks A. Staastiehre, to prove that a federal constitution for India is impossible.

Cites Difficulties in U. S.

The Tory Times of India tonight savagely attacked the maharajah for "not playing cricket and for breaking his solemn word, which he pledged in London."

Alluding to the difficulties of creating an American federal system, the maharajah said: "The highest statesmanship of the most able leaders any country ever possessed was hardly sufficient for the transformation of 13 states into one confederated nation."

The Indian states, the maharajah declared, are not fitted for "the new fangled dream of federalism." He fears that the maharajah's states would be gobbled up under a new democratic rule, at the center, as were the principalities of the German confederation in 1815. He cannot understand, he says, Mahatma Gandhi's argument that undiluted democracy is incompatible with undiluted autocracy. He, therefore, would continue to maintain the medieval form of government of the princes indefinitely.

Has Substitute Plan.

The maharajah's substitute is a plan that provides for a union of the Indian states in direct relationship with the crown, leaving British-India to its own democratic devices. A standing committee of princes would confer with the federal parliament to compose differences, with a final appeal to the privy council, thus maintaining India under the heels of the British for all time.

The maharajah of Patiala is one of the most powerful princes of India, being ruler of the largest sikh state, and his stand is expected to create new difficulties in the way of a settlement of the Indian problem.

The nawab of Bhopal, chancellor of the chamber of princes and a staunch advocate of a self-governing federation, arrived here to confer with the viceroy today. He assured Lord Willingdon that the princes of India, as a whole, would support the federation plan at the coming conference.

JOSEPH LEITER'S DAUGHTER ALICE IS IMPROVING

Alice Leiter, 14 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter, is in the Alice Home hospital, Lake Forest, recovering from an operation for appendicitis, performed last Monday. Mr. Leiter, who recently settled a suit with his sister, the countess of Suffolk and other relatives, over his management of the estate of his father, the late Levi Leiter, recently brought his family from Washington, taking the residence of David Dangler at 155 North Mayflower avenue, Lake Forest, for the summer.

POLAND MERGES PROVINCES TO SLASH BUDGET

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WARSAW, Poland, June 16.—The Polish budget will be reduced by 500,000,000 zlotys, approximately $56,250,000, following the new plan of John Pilsudski, minister of finance, which was approved by Marshal Pilsudski today. The reduction will be made possible by the merger of the existing 17 provinces into 12, the discharge of a large number of unnecessary government officials, by combining the smaller administrative units into larger ones and by a more strict curtailment of all government expenditures.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

One of the largest individual numbers in the Chicagoland Sports Congress Sunday afternoon will be presented by the Czecho - Slovaks. One thousand Bohemians and Slovaks from Chicago and near-by cities will combine for a 20 minute drill that will be surpassed in numbers only by the mass drill which is the finale of the three and a half hour program.

ANNE SIMUNEK.

The Slovak sokols who have their own units, join with the Bohemians in their drills at special occasions. This Slovak organization is not to be confused with the Catholic Slovak Union, which also will have participants in the mass drill concluding the program.

Wisconsin Slovaks Enter.

Nearly 500 Slovaks are coming from Kenosha, Cudahy, Wis., Kenosha and Racine to join their Chicago friends of the Czecho-Slovak Sokols. Sokol units, more than 5,000 men, women and children, will form the parade which opens the Chicagoland Sports Congress. Three bands and six drum corps will march.

The pageant will be the largest ever presented in Chicago. For the first time all units have united for a demonstration on one field. Admission is 25 cents. No seats are reserved.

The Slovak Gymnastic Union Sokol, which is a part of the Czecho-Slovak group on Sunday's program, was organized July 4, 1896, in New York City. "Break through, jump over, but do not crawl under," is the motto of the union of American citizens who practice the teachings of Miroslov Tyrs, the founder of the sokol society.

Headed by John Kosan.

The first president of the Slovak union, which now has 22,000 members in the United States, was Gejza M. Matuska. The first chief commander was Frank Sedlacek. The parent club of the New York union combined with Guttenberg, N. J., to begin the present organization with a membership of 200. There now are 277 clubs in the United States and Canada, all organized at Sudbrook, N. J.

Frank Ouliolo of Guttenberg, N. J., is national president; Frank Klasek of Chicago is chairman of the finance committee and chief commander of the union, and Mary Molnar of McKeesport, Pa., is secretary.

The official publication of the Slovak union is the Slovensky Sokol. Frank Zak is the editor. The periodical was first published in 1905 as a monthly, but later was made bi-monthly. Milan Getting and K. Zak are editors. The Slovak union holds a national convention every four years, the last being conducted in 1930 at Guttenberg, N. J.

Band Tours to Europe.

The Chicago district, or L'Udevit district, consists of 26 clubs which are located in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Michigan. There are 1,000 members in the Chicago district. The chief officials are John Kosan, president; Joseph Vavrina, secretary; Frank Kubik, treasurer; Joseph Kubik, financial secretary, and Kath. Kosan, corresponding secretary. The Chicago district was organized in 1926 under the presidency of Jan Hrbek of Chicago.

KATHERINE DANKO.

The Slovak Gymnastic union and the American Sokol union (Bohemian) are united under the name of Czecho-Slovak sokols. The first joint festival of these organizations was held in 1926, and together they send their best gymnasts and athletes to Prague, Czechoslovakia for international competitions.

Ukrainian Folk Dances to Enliven Sports Congress

BY ARCH WARD.

Athletics of the people, by the people, and for the people will be on display Sunday afternoon in a size and scope never before presented in America.

FRANK KOCHANNY.

The Chicagoland Sports Congress, with its 5,500 participants, will provide an abundance of melody, rhythm, color, energy, startling agility, and amazing mass effects. Thousands of athletes, dancers, and musicians have united to give Chicago an afternoon's entertainment it will long remember.

While the Sports Congress, as the name implies, was arranged as a great demonstration of mass athletics, the program will be varied with a Ukrainian folk dance, music by four bands, fireworks, and the singing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," in which all will join. The admission is only 25 cents. Net proceeds will be donated to charity.

40,000 Ukrainians Here.

The Ukrainian dance will be presented by 100 men and women in costume. For the enlightenment of those unfamiliar with the term, it may be said that in southeastern Europe there is a nation of forty million Ukrainians. These people possess a high culture and language of their own. They have had a glorious past. For more than a thousand years Ukrainians fought nomadic Asiatic tribes, including the Huns and Tartars, thus serving as Europe's barrier against Asiatic barbarism.

Long struggle against invading hordes exhausted the country's strength and it became the prey of nearby European nations. Taras Shevchenko, one of Ukraine's greatest poets, characterized his fatherland as "Our land, but not belonging to us."

At the end of the world war Ukraine enjoyed a brief period of freedom, but the vicissitudes of history once more caused the nation to fall under the yoke of neighboring powers and today Ukraine, with its compact territory mothering forty million inhabitants, is divided among four European countries.

More than 40,000 Ukrainians are now in Chicago. Their love for freedom, their culture and their national consciousness have been kept alive in their poetry, their folk songs and folk dances. You will see these characteristics in the Ukrainian dance at Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon.

Falcons Offer Act.

The youngest of the dancers who will appear in the Sports Congress is five year old Olga Kolesnik, 2107 Huron street, who will dance in the Chicago Civic opera next October. She is a pupil of Vasile Avramenko, the dancing master of Ukraine. Avramenko has been in the Russian navy, has fought under Ukrainian colors in the Russian revolution, has been a prisoner in a Polish camp where he started the first school of the Ukrainian dance. He is the idol of the considerable Ukrainian population in American industrial centers.

Another added attraction to the Congress will be included in the entertainment presented by the Polish Falcons. Frank Kochanny and Frank Frasz, who have toured the country in vaudeville as the Frazier brothers, will put on a hair raising gymnastic act. They competed in the international gymnastic turnverein at Posen, Poland, in 1929.

Six hundred feet of rope for the biggest tug of war ever held was ordered yesterday. The rope will stretch from the north end of Soldiers' field to the horseshoe on the south side. On one side will be 250 of the strongest men in the Illinois National Guard. On the other will be as many Poles, Czecho-Slovakians and Germans as care to match muscles with the guardsmen.

DUNDEE LOSES TO LOU TERRY IN SIX ROUNDS

Lou Terry, St. Louis lightweight, last night defeated Mike Dundee, Rock Island, Ill., in the six round windup at the Congress stadium. The fight was close throughout. Mickey McFarland, Pueblo, Col., knocked out Steve Meyers, St. Louis light heavyweight, in the third round of the scheduled six round semi-final bout.

NAVY OARSMEN TAKE VARSITY RACE ON HUDSON

Cornell Finishes Second; Washington Third.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16.—Way off in the distance, only faintly visible through the screen of rain, a spectral rowboat, as long as a street car and as narrow as a nickel's worth of seat in one of the same, came sliding down the Hudson river on the Poughkeepsie water front this evening to win the varsity race of the Poughkeepsie regatta for the United States Naval academy.

There was great wonder and excitement about this, because the Navy crew had lost to Columbia and Harvard earlier in the season and everybody who claims to be anybody at all in the inner circle of this obscure sport had thought of the Navy's 1931 crew as just one of those entrants who were making the best of an off year. Cornell had been expected to win and Syracuse and Columbia were regarded as the crews most likely to do the serious pushing.

Navy Boat Skims Along.

But, after the nine shells had covered the shake down mile and the weaker crews had spent their first stylish dash and fallen back, the Navy ship was skimming along second only to the boat from the University of Washington and showing such steady strength that a gentleman who had drawn the Navy in a five dollar hat pool began to fan his pockets for the little scrap of paper which he had offered to trade a few minutes before.

The Navy never took back after that, and when the leaders vanished behind the big stone piers of the railroad bridge at the three mile point the Midshipmen had closed up the small remaining margin of open water between their bow and Washington's stern. The Annapolis kids licked the western crew in the next quarter of a mile, shoving their own bow definitely into the lead, despite a strong challenge from the Cornell outfit, which had saved something and was now taking advantage of Washington's fatigue. Cornell also passed Washington, but this took all they had, and the Navy was a length and a quarter in front and going away when they crossed the finish line.

Rear Guard Weary.

So Cornell was second, Washington third, California fourth, and Syracuse fifth, with Pennsylvania, Columbia, Wisconsin, and Massachusetts Tech flogging the water with tired sweeps way back yonder in the annual pathetic competition of the also rans to avoid the ignominy of closing the parade.

The party who had drawn the Navy in the five dollar hat pool on the observation train, known as the Bolivian hospital sweep, now held up the contemptible slip of paper, accepted a fair sized sheaf of five dollar bills, and announced that he would still be Bill to his old friends.

Most of the rowing coaches were sliding up and down the river bank on the observation train, among them Old Dick Glendon, the coach of the Navy crew. Of course, people turned to old Mr. Glendon for his remarks on the surprising turn events had

BOYS HOWDY 1ST IN DERBY TRIAL; SWEEP ALL HURT

BY FRENCH LANE.

From now on I'm going to call this $50,000 gallop of a mile and a quarter at Washington Park next Saturday afternoon the "American Open" Derby. And why not?

Listen to the tidings from the ringside while the Derby trial was run at Washington Park at about 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon:

Boys Howdy from Canada, first.
Morpheus from California, second.
Spanish Play from old Kentucky, third.

Did you ever hear of any of these where the Derby dopesters get out their dope books and settle down to the business of figuring the American Derby winner? If you have you are one up on me.

Trailing these three long shots home were Oswego, Sunny Lassie, Ladder, Knights Call, Sweep All, and Pittsburgher, in the order named. You can make the figures prove that any one of the also rans can win the Derby.

Sweep All Breaks Down.

Any one of them but Sweep All, Charley Fisher's colt, for which the Derby Trial was disastrous. Sweep All bowed a tendon in his left front leg and the injury was so serious that his trainer, Clyde Van Dusen, announced last night the son of Sweep-Nettie Hastings was definitely out of the Derby and likely would not race again this year.

As Sweep All limped back over the tanbark path across the infield to his stall the crowd groaned. For with Sweep All out of the Derby the hopes for a western victory were dimmed. He had finished second to Twenty Grand in the Kentucky Derby and had

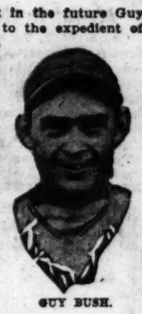
Let's Abolish All First Innings for Bush's Sake

It may be that in the future Guy Bush will resort to the expedient of having one of his mates pitch the first inning for him. Yesterday convinced him that the opening inning, a perfunctory scoreless routine for most pitchers, is a wicked jinx for him.



GUY BUSH.

And if you blame Guy for his superstition ponder the following:

On May 3 Guy started against the St. Louis Cardinals. Here's what happened in the first inning: Adams singled and went to second on a wild pitch. Orsatti walked. Frisch doubled to left center, Adams scoring and Orsatti stopping at third. Bottomley singled to right, scoring Orsatti and Frisch. Bush left the game without seeing a putout. May went in and retired the side, but not until Bottomley had got around on an infield out and a single by Gelbert.

Bush didn't get another start until May 19, and here's what happened in the first inning on that occasion: English threw out Maranville, but Dreesen walked. Berger tripled to right center, scoring Dreesen. Berger held third while English threw out Worthington. Sheely singled to center, scoring Berger. Then Schulmerich walked. Spohrer tripled to right, scoring Sheely and Schulmerich. Maguire grounded to Bell, who threw the ball into the boxes, Spohrer scoring and Maguire pulling up at second. Hornsby fumbled Cantwell's grounder, Maguire stopping at third. Maranville singled to center, scoring Maguire, and when Wilson juggled the ball, Cantwell got to third and Maranville to second. Bush was taken out and Blake went in. Dreesen doubled, scoring Cantwell and Maranville. Berger popped to English.

And you know what happened in the first yesterday.

Still and all, Guy shouldn't do too much kicking on his luck, for in the three games he was charged with only one defeat. In the St. Louis game Blake took the fall in the eleventh inning and yesterday—well, you know about yesterday.

WARRANT FOR CARNERA ISSUED BY FRENCH ARMY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 16.—The French military authorities today issued a warrant for the arrest of Primo de Carnera to compel him to begin his military service. Gendarmes called at his training quarters where he got his start, and where he shed his Italian citizenship for the French, but they found he had gone—to the United States.

Carnera is not expected to return with the liability of one to 12 months' imprisonment hanging over his head. In consideration of his absence from the country, however, Primo will be allowed a leeway of six months in which to come back and climb into an oversized uniform and shoulder a rifle.

Lightning Knocks Down Grid Teams; Fans Riot

RIGA, Latvia, June 16.—A freak bolt of lightning here caused a panic among 3,000 football fans when, during a blinding flash, all of the players were hurled to the ground. The spectators began to stampede, but before the panic attained serious proportions the players arose. Within a few moments the game was resumed. The bolt struck a group of spectators and two persons were seriously injured. The players received a severe shock which stunned them momentarily.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Our Cubs yesterday put on the special of the year before a ladies' day crowd of 30,000 when they licked the pesty Boston Braves after spotting them six runs in the first inning and seven in the first three innings. The score of the glorious spectacle was, Cubs 8, Braves 7.

It was an added ladies' day, and after Guy Bush had been tortured in that first inning the squealing guests forgot their squeals for a record period. But they squealed a lot when the Cubs made three runs in the fourth, squealed more when Hack Wilson knocked his sixth homer in the sixth, and when the Cubs made four runs to take the lead in the seventh the gals became downright hysterical.

Bill McKechnie, manager of the Braves, fresh from three victories in St. Louis and two here, had sought to high hat the Cubs by using nothing better than a third string pitcher in the Chicago series, but before yesterday's game was over he had employed his three aces, Zachary, Selbold and Brandt, to no avail whatsoever.

Umpire Chases Cronin.

The seventh was a wild inning, in which Umpire Clark, whose efficiency had been questioned several times during the series, got in a debate with many Braves and had to chase Catcher Cronin for a frantic burst of anger after Cronin had adjudged English fanned while Clark thought he had walked. In the later stages of the same debate, Manager McKechnie also was bounced.

Of course, we will tell you later about the way they treated luckless Guy Bush in the first inning, but right now you should know the details of that hilarious seventh.

Going into the inning the Cubs were trailing, 7 to 4. Grimm popped an easy fly to Dreesen, but to the amazement to all present the Braves' third baseman muffed it. As always happens after an inexcusable muff, the next batsman, who in this case was Pinch Hitter Johnny Moore, walked. Zachary relieved Moss and Cuyler sacrificed. It was then that Mr. Clark got in his second jam, for he waved English to first, filling the bases, after a count of 3 and 2.

Walk Forces in Run.

Dan Taylor batted for Blair and also walked, forcing in Grimm. This made the score 7 to 5. Selbold relieved Zachary. Stephenson, who previously had made two singles, drove his third hit into center field, J. Moore and English running across with the tying tallies and D. Taylor going to third. Wilson furnished the second out with a pop to Maranville, but Hemsley doubled to left, scoring D. Taylor with the winning run.

Now for the less pleasing first inning:

Dreesen, first up, walked and went to third on Maranville's single to right. Berger singled to right center, Dreesen scoring and the Rabbit stopping at second. Worthington bunted and the ball bounced past Bush into wide open space in the shortstop territory. It went for a single and the bases were full. Neun topped his shot, causing it to bound high over Bush's head—another infield single, which scored Maranville and left the bases full.

Randy Moore hung around at the plate until he had run the count to three balls and two strikes. Then he slapped a high one to right center which either Wilson or Cuyler could have caught in his rosin pocket. But they got crossed on the project and it fell for a double, scoring Berger and Worthington. Neun stepped at third.

At this point it was agreed that Bush was bruised enough and Ed Baecht was called to the center of the diamond. The Braves greeting was a double by Cronin, which scored R. Moore. Maguire attempted to bunt and popped a foul to Hemsley for the first out. Moss fanned and Dreesen,

New York, June 16.—[Special.]—The gray gelding, St. Francis, which Joseph E. Widener presented to his daughter, Mrs. Milton W. Holden, was ably ridden to victory by Mack Garner today in the $3,300 Rockaway claiming stakes, feature of a rainy day program at Aqueduct.

The horse, a paddock tip, was driven down from 4 to 1 to 16 to 5, and was a joint favorite with C. A. Grande's Nyack. George D. Widener's Panetian, which opened the choice at 5 to 2, went up in the betting to 4 to 1 and ran as its weak backing predicted.

Wins by Two Lengths.

St. Francis, in a field of eleven, turned in the fast time of 1:19 3-5 over a sloppy track. He got home two lengths ahead of E. R. Bradley's Bathorse, which closed fast in the stretch to beat W. R. Coe's Masked Ball.

At the post, Panetian and St. Francis gave the assistant starters trouble, and St. Francis got off none too well when the barrier rose. The slowest starter of all was Nyack. He ran a good race, for, after he got under way, he was blocked and still was good enough to run fourth. St. Francis, by contrast, ran up on the outside with Garner keeping him clear all the way.

Masked Ball Wilts.

The lead had been taken by Jubilate, with Masked Ball second. They led around the turn and into the stretch with Masked Ball finally racing the others into defeat. Mr. Coe's filly took the lead, but Garner had just been bidding his time with St. Francis.

He sent St. Francis along with a rush and Masked Ball, tired from early efforts against Jubilate, could not stave off the challenge.

YALE LIGHT CREW BEATS HUSKIES FOR U. S. TITLE

Seattle, Wash., June 16.—(AP)—The lightweight crew of Yale university conquered the 150 pound eight of the University of Washington today to lay claim to the national championship in that class.

The undefeated Bulldogs ran away with the race after a short bow-and-bow battle to win by three and one-half lengths in 6 minutes 17.8 seconds. The Husky shell crossed the finish mark in 6:21.

The victory gives the Yale oarsmen the unofficial national 150 pound rowing championship, as they also hold victories over Princeton, Navy, Columbia, Syracuse, and Pennsylvania.

Brickies Strengthen Team for Glasgow Game Sunday

The Bricklayers, western soccer champions, have signed two of the best players in Chicago for the international game with the Glasgow Celtics, which will be played at the Cubs park Sunday. The players are Baba Vicek, inside right of Sparta, and Davie Imrie, center of the Jugo-Slavs.

With these men in the lineup, the Chicago club is expected to put up a strong battle against the Scottish cup champions. Vicek scored the two goals that gave Sparta the Peel cup championship Sunday while Imrie led the Intercity league in scoring last season.

Boys Howdy Wins $50,000 Derby Trial

performed so brilliantly at Washington Park many were sure he was one of the topline 3 year olds of the year.

The Derby trial finish was a thriller, for Boys Howdy, racing in next to the rail all the way down the stretch, lasted just long enough to beat the 71 to 1 shot, Morpheus, by an inch. In another jump Morpheus would have beaten him.

Maybe the trial didn't prove anything, but there's one fact, I'm sure it proved. Spanish Play, which finished third, is the most consistent of all our western 3 year olds, even though he doesn't win often.

Pittsburgher Runs Last.

Boys Howdy's time for the mile and an eighth was 1:52 2-5 and he had to be a good game colt to withstand the challenge Morpheus made all through the last furlong. Sweep All had been the favorite, with much support going to Ladder and Knights Call, neither of which ever figured in the final outcome. Pittsburgher, the chief hope of old Kentucky, ran last all the way.

Boys Howdy rewarded those who backed him at $19.90 to win, $11.42 to place and $8.24 to show. Morpheus paid $55.98 to place and $24.68 to show. Spanish Play paid $5.62 to show.

The Washington Park track record fell in the Sherman hotel purse when No More, a son of Friar Rock-Once More, paying $33.66 in the two dollar mutuels, skipped over six furlongs in 1:11. No More is also an eligible for the Derby, but his activities so far have been confined to sprint events.

Whips Tannery Two Lengths.

When he scorched the track he showed his heels to the odds on choice Tannery by two lengths. The defeat was a crushing blow to the Tannery crowd, for it came just at a time when it seemed that he was about ready to lay claim to the western sprint championship.

Tannery whipped My Dandy and Don Leon on the stretch bend and headed for home comfortably in front. Then came No More in long machine-like strides. He took hold of Tannery in midstretch, whipped him completely, then went on about the business of smashing the track record, which was 1:11 1-5, held by Club House. Tannery held on to be second and My Dandy lasted long enough to take third money. It was My Dandy's first start of the year.

Pheasants Find Splendid Havens in Subdivisions

BY BOB BECKER.

Although scores of real estate subdivisions in Chicagoland have utilized former farm lands for building purposes, many acres in these subdivisions still are without buildings and can be classed as good bird havens because stands of tall weeds and other brush cover the land.

Owners of these idle subdivisions, which are outside of town and village limits, can provide fine pheasant and rabbit shooting this fall if they leave enough cover on the land for the game to find both shelter and food. Most of these vacant plats must be combed for vermin such as certain species of hawks, crows, weasels, etc.

Up our way, a large subdivision, which has several miles of sidewalks as well as streets, is a good example of how pheasants and rabbits move onto a piece of land when it provides the proper growth of weeds for shelter and food. This property does not see a mower from spring to fall.

At one side of the tract is a small stand of timber. A short distance away, in an open piece of farmland, there is a small pond. The layout is ideal for pheasants. Many mornings we look from the train windows and see pheasants strolling around. Inasmuch as they are inside the city limits, they are not harrassed by guns, either in the spring or fall.

However, the presence of raccoons, weasels, skunks and an occasional mink is a menace to all the bird life in this subdivision. Every year one or more of these animals are trapped not far from the tract. On several occasions raccoons have raided poultry houses right in the town. Just ten days ago a weasel killed a pheasant hen on her nest at the edge of the village.

Pheasants are so hardy and aggressive that vacant subdivisions, either within or without town limits, can produce hundreds of these birds.

ROSTER SHOWS ARGENTINA HAS STRONG POLO 4

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, head of the Onwentsia polo committee, which has charge of the international match scheduled for Lake Forest July 11, 15, and 18, between the Santa Paula four of Argentine and the Old Aiken polo team of Long Island, received a list of the Argentine players yesterday from Manuel Andrada, captain.

The picked players who will make up his team in the Lake Forest games and also in its quest for the United States open championship at Meadow Brook, Long Island, in August, are, in addition to Andrada: Alfredo Harrington, No. 1, rated at six goals; José Reynal, No. 2, eight goals, and Juan Reynal, No. 3, six goals. Andrada plays back and is an eight goal man. Andrew Gazzotti, rated at five goals, will be carried as a substitute.

Thomas G. Nelson, manager of the Santa Paula team, is on his way to Chicago with three carloads of Argentine ponies. They are due to arrive Friday morning.

Lane, Schurz Keep Pace in Baseball Race

Harrison Tech and Marshall were eliminated from the Chicago Public High School league baseball championship race by losing semi-final games yesterday. Marshall dropped an 11 inning battle to Schurz, 9 to 6, and Harrison lost to Lane, 3 to 8.

Nichelwitz's triple in the eleventh inning with two on base gave Schurz its second victory in the semi-finals. Schurz held a 6 to 2 lead until the fifth inning when Marshall scored four runs to tie the score.

Lane Scores Early.

Lane, 1930 champion, began its scoring early in its game with Harrison. With Bergmann and W. Laskowski leading the attack, Lane scored two runs in the first inning, two in the third and four runs in the fourth.

Schurz and Lane will meet for the north and west sectional championship Saturday. Marshall and Harrison will complete their semi-final schedules in a game at Mills stadium Friday.

Lindblom handed Tilden Tech its first defeat in the central-south division semi-finals at Normal park. A seven run attack in the sixth inning gave Lindblom a 15 to 4 victory, its second in the semi-finals.

Narbut Stars for Lindblom.

Frank Narbut, Lindblom hurler, permitted only seven hits and fanned ten. In addition Narbut hit a triple and a single in four times at bat. Scores:

taken, but Mr. Glendon seemed less surprised than most.

"Did you know how good that crew was?" Mr. Glendon was asked.

"I knew how good my boys were," said Mr. Glendon, "but I didn't know how good the others were. Now we all know. We live and learn."

An odd family situation arises here, for old Dick Glendon's son, young Rich Glendon, is the coach of the Columbia outfit which had beaten Navy some time ago, and there was young Rich Glendon's boatload a long way back with the other members of the fishing fleet at the finish of the championship race. Another passenger on one of the cars was Mr. Rusty Callow, the coach of the Pennsylvania crew.

Several regrettable social errors had been made during the course of the dismal afternoon in the rain, for these coaches don't wear labels on their hats and people are likely to blurt their opinions of this crew or that one in the unconventional give and take of idle conversation during the long pauses between races. One of the passengers had drawn the Pennsylvania crew in not only one hat pool but two, and when his second ticket read "Penn" this party quite naturally made several humorous remarks about the rotten state of his luck.

Solace in Beating Columbia.

Mr. Callow made no remonstrance, although it seems probable that a coach who has been striving and living with a lot of earnest young athletes engaged in a heartbreaking sport felt some counterremarks leaping to his tongue. He might have felt that a few five dollar bets were insufficient cause for ridicule of his young men, remembering how hard they had worked, and how hopelessly, and all that.

You could not call this evening's performance of the Penn crew a complete success, but it must have been a matter of some slight pride to the young men and their Mr. Callow that they also beat Columbia in the big race. Columbia had beaten them twice.

They were rowing on a fast tide today and the Navy's time of 18 minutes 54 1-5 seconds was only a few winks off the record for the four mile Poughkeepsie course, achieved by California in 1928. That time was 18:35 3-5. Only one other winning crew, Cornell in 1901, has done better than the Navy did today. Statistics say—and rowing, next to horse racing, is the most statistical sport there is—that two crews which finished second in those bygone years also rowed faster than the Navy, '31.

Crowd Doesn't Seem Large.

The crowd will be estimated in the traditional box-car figures of 50,000, and there is no way of disproving these guesses, nor anything to gain by doing so, but actually there weren't very many people along the river today. There were about 3,000 on the train of awninged flat cars and certainly not more than that and apparently a lot fewer watching the race from the yachts anchored in the stream.

On the Poughkeepsie side, which is the far side of the river, a spy glass could pick out clusters of ten or fifteen or so on the Palisades, but no masses of people. And the crowd along the railroad right of way, watching the race on foot, had fallen off due to the premonition of rain. Or perhaps it is that people nowadays can't even afford to attend free races.

Columbia Crowd Noisiest.

One big string of Pullmans was tied up at the Highland station early in the afternoon with two hangers-on set at convenient locations by the train and waiters busily tending bar up to the moment of debarkation. But there was less singing and organized yelling of the traditional varsity delay-wow-wows than there had been at these free and easy reunions in other years.

The Columbia crowd was the largest and most vociferous. Wisconsin and California, however, whose delegations had set the Palisades ringing with their warcries many a time, were still today.

The rain began during the junior varsity race and this was no frivolous rain either, but one of those steady downpours that melt the glue out of straw hats. It continued through the long intermission to the varsity beat-ride and long after that to send the good people home on shoes that made squashy sounds, with their holiday clothes hanging clammy on their contours.

Five Dollar Trade Dampened.

The five dollar trade on the flat cars really was the only complete victim of the weather, though, because all the foot passengers along the railroad ties and the fellows with the pennants, balloons and soda bottles, in a remarkable flash of intuition, had guessed it was going to rain and had gone away in time.

By an interesting coincidence, the Syracuse freshmen and junior varsity crews contrived to retard the starting of the big race almost an hour until 7 o'clock. The Syracuse frosh were almost ready to go when they slipped away from their stake boat, a little skiff anchored on the starting line, where a fellow hired by the regatta committee is supposed to hold them fast until the gun. Their coxswain then found it necessary to go way up stream and come about to reach the stake boat again, consuming almost half an hour.

Accident Delays Jay-Vees.

Then, when the junior varsity was starting for the line, a regrettable accident broke something in their shell which needed half an hour to repair, while the other crews sat in their shells beaten by a driving rain.

The coincidence is that for two days prior to the race, persons attached to the Syracuse crew had been saying that old Mr. Ten Eyck, their coach, did not wish to start until 7 o'clock as he thought the tide wouldn't be just right till then. The intervention of the two accidents adjusted the schedule very nicely.

The Syracuse junior varsity won by a length and one-half from the boys who had sat through the rain, with California second and Cornell third. Washington's freshmen won their race, Cornell and Syracuse being second and third.

EARLY RETURNS GIVE OLD GOLF BALL BIG LEAD

Three Precincts Favor Its Rule, 109 to 29.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The old golf ball was chuckling in its campaign headquarters last night as the first reports of the poll on the new and old balls, being taken by The Tribune in conjunction with the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, began to roll in. And the results from the three early precincts—the Mid-City, Evergreen and Hickory Hills daily fee courses—supplied plenty of reason for his merriment. Out of 138 early voters, who stated their preference, 109 desire the return of the old ball, while only 29 are satisfied with the one which succeeded it the first day of the year.

There was no despondency among the new ball's managers, however, all of them pointing out that their candidate had just begun to fight and would be heard from in quantity before the final count is made. All stressed the strength of the new ball on the issues of approaching and putting, and the voting yesterday bore them out. Six-tenths of the daily fee course players found the shot to the green with the new ball, while 72 are against it. The new ball scored a victory in the matter of putting, 75 voters expressing a liking for cup shots with the 1931 version, as opposed to 62 who don't care for it. One voter was neutral on both of the last named issues.

Private Courses Vote Later.

The Tribune's poll at present is being taken only on the fifteen member courses of the daily fee association, but private course and public links players will have their say in a canvass which will follow the daily fee poll. Voting blanks are now available at all of the daily fee courses, and golfers interested in the controversy between the new and old balls are urged to vote. When filled out, the blanks should be mailed to the golf editor of The Tribune.

The following points are included in the voting blank:

1. My average score is.....
2. My average drive with the new ball is.....yards.
3. My average drive with the old ball is.....yards.
4. I [like] or [do not like] the shot to the green with the new ball.
5. I [like] or [do not like] to putt with the new ball.
6. I [would like] or [would not like] to use the old ball come back.

Several votes in yesterday's ballotting were ruled out because they did not supply adequate information as to the voter's preference. All statements in the blank must be filled out, or it will not qualify as a vote. Players are also asked to make use of the space at the end of the card for any specific opinions on the new or old ball.

C. A. Nash, president of the Techny Public club and the Chicago Daily Fee Golf association, is opposed to the new ball insofar as it affects the game of the average golfer.

"The United States Golf association could by this time know that the new balloon ball in actual play works exactly the opposite to its theory," Mr. Nash writes. "In the hands of the player who shoots over 100, instead of acting as the U. S. G. A. said it would and make the game more pleasant, it does just the reverse and takes all the joy out of the game.

Shorter Off Tee.

"From the tee the drive is materially shortened, which in itself is enough to discourage a player, and in addition, any default, such as a hook or a slice, is decidedly emphasized, to say nothing of the fact that driving directly into a head wind he can hardly get a hundred yards.

"The sponsors of the ball predicted that the shot to the green would be easier, as the ball would rise more easily and higher. It does exactly the reverse, with the result that the medium player, who is always short of the green with the old ball, now rarely reaches the green.

"When it comes to putting, the new ball's large size and lack of weight promotes many three and four putts. The smallest obstacle on the line of putting will deflect it and make the ball hit the side of the cup instead of the center, when, due to its light weight, it rims and refuses to stick.

Doesn't Bother Stars.

"In the hands of the pro or the expert amateur, whose low scores had been expected to rise with the advent of the new ball, it makes little if any difference, as is proven by comparative scores to date."

The results of the individual balloting at the three early voting courses yesterday follow:

June Beebe's 85 Leads in Open Trial

Four young girls—June Beebe, Jane Weiller, Priscilla Carver and Virginia Ingram—swept the Chicago women's district foursome team event at Wilmette Country club yesterday. They led the field both individually and collectively, Miss Beebe having 41—44—85 for low gross, and Miss Weiller tying Mrs. Pearl Indig of Mohawk for second low gross. Their team score was:

Miss Beebe	85	4	81
Miss Weiller	88	8	80
Miss Ingram	90	3	87
Miss Carver	95	7	88
Total	358	22	336

Miss Beebe's 85 could easily have been cut by four or five strokes had she kept out of traps and conserved on putts. Her card:

Miss Beebe—

In	754	644	454—44—85

Out	544	545	355—40

The second low foursome was composed of Mrs. Pearl Indig, 85—7—81; Mrs. Thomas Quinton, 93—14—79; Mrs. W. W. McAllister, 103—17—86, and Mrs. C. J. McDyer, 106—11—95, with a total of 390—49—341.

A field of 75 played. Most of those who played will finish their tuning up for the Women's open, to be held at Midlothian next Monday, at the Crystal Lake course tomorrow.

A. S. Brown won the Electric Club of Chicago golf tournament at the Maywood Country club yesterday with a card of 42—44—86. Approximately 200 participated and scores were uniformly high. Prizes were offered in three classes.

Harry Johnson won low net in class A with 90—16—74. Art Golk was second with 92—18—74.

In class B, low gross went to E. L. Jackson, 47—48—95. William Augenstein won low net with a card of 96—29—67. Albert Kahn had 100—30—70 for second.

Tom Casey shot 58—51—109 to win low gross in class C. His brother, Frank, captured low net with 110—42—68. R. J. Stretch was second with 111—36—75.

JOHNNY GOODMAN GETS 149 TO TOP TRANS-'SIPPI GOLF

Minneapolis, Minn., June 16.—(AP)—Johnny Goodman, conqueror of Bobby Jones in the national amateur tournament two years ago, today won medalist honors in the trans-Mississippi golf tournament over the Golden Valley course.

Bettering his Monday score by one stroke, Goodman finished the medal play with a total of 149, one stroke better than Billy Sixty of Milwaukee and L. B. Maytag of Des Moines, who were tied for runner-up with 150.

Sixty's Monday score showed only ordinary golf but today he set a new course record with 70, three under par. The previous record was 71. Goodman started the day's round with 75 and a pair of 37s today placed him on top. Maytag appeared in line for a low score when he began today's play with 76. He went out in 37, even par, but went one over coming home for a 74.

Lester Bolstad of St. Paul, former national public links champion, had 151. Dick Sawyer, Minneapolis, who finished in first place in Monday's play, took an 82 today and finished with 153, while his brother, Walter, beat him by one stroke with a 152.

MINNESOTA FOOTBALL.

DEATH of Dr. Henry L. Williams removed one of the acknowledged coaching figures of American football in its period of greatest development. During his tenure of 21 years as head coach at Minnesota, the gridiron sport threw off the old mass play attack for the more open game, in which offensive tactics are being more highly specialized each year.

Minnesota's attack under Williams primarily was one of power, yet he was a master strategist who also knew how to use speed. Johnny McGovern, open field runner, and the famous Wyman to Baston forward pass combination are still well remembered by Gopher opponents.

Unfortunately, Dr. Williams showed little ability to make friends. Thus, when Minnesota had a few bad years, as all teams do, the alumni "wolves" were at his heels. Smarting, no doubt, under what he must have termed ingratitude, he quit his post as head coach and practiced his profession of medicine.

Because of what we regarded as his attitude of taciturnity, if not suspicion, he was not popular with newspaper men except one or two in Minneapolis who knew his moods. He was difficult to interview, either before or after a contest. One incident we remember was when the late Walter Eckersall went to Minneapolis a few days in advance to report a football game.

During the secret practice, Eckie was spied in the stands. Practice was stopped until Eckie left the field. That caused a breach which was not healed until many years later. Readers may better understand if we state that Yost, Zuppke, Hanley, the late Knute Rockne and Stagg, to a lesser degree, always welcomed reporters even to secret practice before big games, assuming that neutral observers will divulge nothing thereof.

The Wake, too, felt no particular warmth toward this great coach for many years. On the last several occasions we met, after all those years of casual acquaintanceship, he was a different person. We wondered if we had estimated him correctly. We wondered whether what seemed coldness and uncommunicativeness (is there such a word?) had not been diffidence or shyness. We are inclined to think it was, from the nature of our later conversations.

Dr. Williams was the greatest factor in Minnesota football, comparable during his régime to Stagg at Chicago, Yost at Michigan and Zuppke at Illinois. What he did for Minnesota will not grow less with the years.

And plodded weary miles.
Your trail leads to a palace,
An empty lonely place;
My road leads to a cottage
Where waits a sweet, dear face.
Your feet are tired from dancing,
Your throat is parched from song;
I'll be happy in my cottage
My whole life long. Eleanor.

Cubs Trail by 7 Runs, then Whip Braves

up for the second time, filed to Wilson.

The Braves added run No. 7 in the third. Cronin tripled with one out, paused while Jurges threw out Maguire and came home on Moss' single to center.

Cubs Snap Into Action.

In the fourth the Cubs snapped out of the coma that had beset them and made three runs on good sound socking. With one out Stephenson got his second single and stopped at second when Wilson drove a single into center. The bases were full after Hemsley had singled to center. Jurges sent a long fly to Berger, and Stevie scored after the catch. Grimm doubled to left center for his second hit, scoring Wilson and Hemsley. The session ended when Baecht filed to Worthington.

Both teams left after the game for the east, the Cubs to prepare for the opening of their second invasion of the east in tomorrow's game against Brooklyn and the Braves to get ready for entertainment of the Cardinals.

In the home stay just concluded, the Cubs won 10 and lost 6.

Sox Find Solace in Boston Rain; It Stops Finale

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., June 16.—The White Sox' record for their first complete eastern tour this season is two victories against ten defeats. It might have been worse, or it might have been better, if the final game had been played here today. Rain, however, washed out the engagement and everybody in the Chicago delegation was glad of it.

The ill fated Sox now are on a somewhat extended vacation, which may do them some good. It certainly can do no harm. Some of the regulars, augmented by a number of the reserves, will play an exhibition at Albany, N. Y., tomorrow and reach Chicago Thursday noon. The others will reach home tomorrow afternoon. There is no league competition until Friday, when the Athletics return to Comiskey Park. The champions will be obliged to take another look at Pat Caraway's southpawing on that day.

Bush has promised Garland Braxton a treat tomorrow. He will let the lean southpaw pitch the exhibition at Albany. Braxton is the leading golfer in the Sox party, but this doesn't help his pitching, and in the near future he may find himself en route into some minor league. The only thing keeping Braxton around now is that Bush must have a batting practice pitcher.

ADDED WEIGHT HELPS MASTRO PUNCH HARDER

Ends Training for O'Dowd Bout Tomorrow.

Judging from the punching prowess displayed in his workouts, a stronger Earl Mastro will be seen tomorrow night at Mills stadium when the little Chicagoan meets Midget Mike O'Dowd in the windup to Jim Mullen's second outdoor show.

EARL MASTRO.

Mastro's new punching power is attributed to added weight acquired through long inactivity. He now weighs 126 pounds, four pounds more than a year ago.

Mastro finished his boxing yesterday, sparring six rounds with three different sparmates. He will confine his work to calisthenics today. Other fighters on the card, including O'Dowd, also wound up their boxing and will follow a similar program today.

In addition to the Mastro-O'Dowd melée, Mullen is offering an eight round semi-windup between Pep Justo and Joe Sharkey, local middleweights; three six round fights and a brace of four rounders. Les Finnucane will meet Al Engle, Muskegon, Mich., 160 pounder, under the management of Lena Levy, in one of the sixes.

STEINBORN AND WASHBURNE TO CLASH ON MAT

Milo Steinborn of Germany and Jack Washburne, California heavyweight, will meet in one of five wrestling matches to be staged next Monday night by Promotor Doc Krone at Mills stadium.

A double windup has been arranged, featuring Jim McMillen against Frank Bronowicz, and Hans Steinke against Jim Clinkstock. In another contest Karl Pojello meets Nazareno Pogri.

Both Steinborn and Washburne are rough performers. They depend on brute strength, Steinborn especially. Both have appeared here several times in recent months. Steinborn relies on an arm grip around his opponent's body.

Clinkstock and Steinke recently met in a 30 minute draw, while McMillen and Bronowicz never have met before. Each of the bouts will be one fall to a finish, assuring a decision.

CHICAGO STOCKS GAIN SLIGHTLY ON SMALL SALES

Auto Accessory Shares Show Improvement.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Trading continued at an extremely slow pace on the Chicago exchange yesterday, while stocks of all descriptions shared in the moderate improvement which lifted prices fractionally throughout the list. The turnover of 45,000 shares was the smallest since July 2, 1928, when 45,000 shares were traded in.

The reports of plans for increasing activity in the lower priced automobile field has a beneficial effect on the accessory shares, with Borg-Warner enjoying the best demand. The stock was bid above 17 on fairly active trade. Bendix was less active but showed a modest gain. Houdaille A stock brought 16 at the close of the day, compared with 14½, its previous price.

E. L. Bruce Gains.

One of the outstanding features of the session was the substantial push which was given E. L. Bruce Co. common stock. Its closing price of 26 represented a net gain for the day of 4¼ points. The stock has been accorded good market support in recent weeks and is now selling at nearly twice its recent low price of 13⅞.

The company is the largest manufacturer of hardwood flooring in the country and is a large producer of hardwood. The last dividend distribution on the common stock was made Aug. 30, last year, which was a quarterly disbursement of 62½ cents.

There was some irregularity in the closing quotations on utilities, but the changes were insignificant with the prevailing tone generally steady.

Canal Construction Down.

An odd lot transaction in Canal Construction preferred was made at 4, which was a point down from the previous quotation. On the previous day the company announced the omission of the dividend on the stock, despite the fact that earnings for the first five months of the year were said to be in excess of a year ago. The action was attributed to the low price trend on work now being let.

"One of the topics of discussion in the customers' rooms yesterday was the section of the President's Indianapolis address, which touched on the stock market. While the trading community was confident that no congressional investigation is possible in the next few months, many saw significance in the President's allusion to the necessity of determining whether security and commodity exchanges were being used to create "illegitimate speculation and intensify depression."

"Present Economic System on Trial."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—Our present economic system, now on trial before the public of the world, has lost none of its power to increase productive capacity, but is more and more open to criticism as being unable to utilize that capacity with a tolerable degree of justice, Sir Arthur Salter, director of the economic and finance section of the league of nations, 1922-1931, made this statement today in an address before the Bond club at the Racquet club. Sir Arthur pointed out that collective leadership is what is desired.

"We are in an intermediate stage between the automatic adjustment of supply and demand through keen individual competition and its deliberate adjustment by collective planning and direction," said Sir Arthur. "In these circumstances we have the three alternatives of chaos, collective control or collective leadership. As none of us desires the first, we must lead, if we do not want control. The practical choice in most countries is now between collective leadership by industry and finance and collective control by the state."

Gives Illustrations.

"Let me give a few illustrations as to the directions in which this leadership is and will be needed. It is evident, first, that situations are arising and are likely to arise in the near future when a common understanding is very desirable between the leading financial institutions with regard to their policy as to renewals or withdrawals of credit; and when no single institution can act as it knows to be in the general interest unless others do the same.

"This practical and immediate necessity will involve consultations with will, I hope, begin to be the task of the collective leadership which the world will need when this depression is past as well as while it lasts. Two problems in particular will need solution if we are to prevent a recurrence of our present troubles. The financial system which rendered possible the wild speculation of 1929 must do something to cure what it has rightly caused.

"Speculation did not produce the depression, but it has greatly aggravated it and is certainly prolonging it. Never before in the history of the world have tens of millions of people speculated on margins on borrowed money or been able to do so. That they did so on such a scale made the reaction much sharper. The investor's timidity, resulting from the excessive caution which has followed excessive rashness, expresses itself in a preference for short term lending against long, for keeping money at home rather than abroad, for bonds rather than equities; and in all these three forms it creates a formidable obstacle to recovery.

To Forestall Trouble.

"It is essential that when this depression is past and another boom is getting up there should be a collective policy to prevent, or at least mitigate, the development of forces which will precipitate a depression possibly even worse than the present one.

"This involves some method by which the collective experience of the economic, financial, and business world can express itself and transform itself into the guidance and direction of policy both in the sphere of banking credit, of stock exchange policy, of industrial planning, and perhaps in the use of such methods of statesmanship as the installment system."

G. Moore Hubbard, vice president of J. G. White & Co., Inc., was elected president of the Bond club today, succeeding George N. Lindsay. Other officers elected were Laurence M. Marks of Lee, Higginson & Co., vice president; Boudinot Atterbury, vice president of Foreman State corporation, secretary, and W. Manning Barr of Barr Brothers & Co., Inc., treasurer.

Gold Stocks Nearing Five Billion Mark

New York, June 16.—(AP)—Stocks of gold held in the United States increased further today.

The daily report of the Federal Reserve bank of New York showed the receipt of $4,618,300 from Canada and a further decrease of $13,336,700 in stocks held for foreign account. This latter item signifies that although the gold was physically in the United States its title had been held abroad until today.

Sets Another New Peak.

An increase in the earmarked foreign account of $10,000,000 which was made yesterday, but not reported until today, thus reducing the net gain in the country's gold stock on Monday through changes in foreign accounts to $31,680,000.

The latest Federal Reserve statement on total gold stocks in the United States showed $4,803,000,000 as of June 10. With the various additions yesterday and last week the aggregate stock of monetary gold in this country, as accurately as it can be calculated, is $4,878,978,000, which constitutes another new high record for all time.

Three Cornered Deal.

Comment on changes in earmarked account is never available at the Federal Reserve bank. Reports were current elsewhere in Wall street to the effect that Monday's decrease resulted from the transfer of gold owned by the Bank of France, but held in New York, to the Reichsbank, which in turn sold the metal as part of its reported operations to support reischmark exchange.

The Reichsbank in turn is understood to have shipped an equivalent amount of gold from Berlin to Paris. This three-cornered transaction is similar to one made during a crisis last year.

It reduces the cost of transportation as shipping, interest and insurance charges between Berlin and Paris are lower than between Berlin and New York.

RAILROADS FILE RATE INCREASE REQUEST TODAY

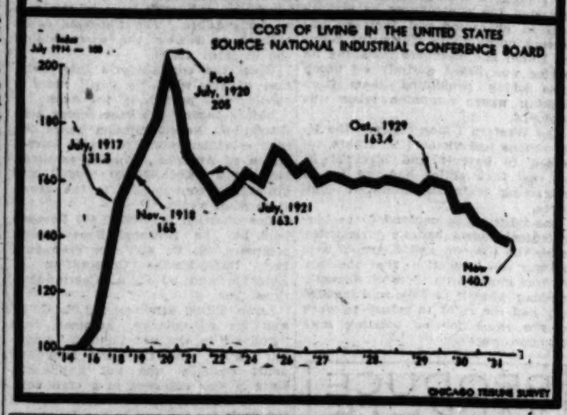
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—The application of the railroads to the interstate commerce commission for an increase of 15 per cent in freight rates and charges will be filed tomorrow.

As announced previously, the petition, in which all railroads are joined, will show the grounds on which the railroads claim the need for additional revenues and will indicate the futility of trying to improve their earnings position by reducing wages.

It is estimated that a 15 per cent increase, with exceptions applied in the cases where differentials must be preserved or where traffic is peculiarly susceptible to transportation by truck or water, would provide a rate of return of about 4 per cent on property valuation of the carriers.

COST OF LIVING IS LOWEST SINCE 1917—DECLINE SINCE 1929 IS PERSISTENT



Ten Years Ago in Finance

Further signs of easing money rates were afforded when the Cleveland and Philadelphia reserve banks followed the action of the New York institution in lowering rediscount rates from 6½ to 6 per cent. The Chicago bank made no change in its rate. It was said to be no secret that western banking interests oppose lowering of the rediscount rate until the member banks have further reduced their indebtedness.

Directors of the Louisville and Nashville railroad have voted to increase the stock from $72,000,000 to $125,000,000.

Swift shares drop to 89¾, the lowest price in several years, on the Chicago Stock exchange.

The average prices of fifty representative stocks on the New York exchange ten years ago today were as follows:

25 railroads	52.26	50.97	51.15
25 industrials	75.72	72.27	73.33
50 stocks	63.99	61.62	62.23

The second reduction in the price of crude oil at Pittsburgh within a week was announced when the principal purchasing agencies made another cut of 25 cents a barrel. Prices now range from $2.50 to 75 cents.

Top hogs sold around $8.10 a hundredweight; best cattle sold at $9.

The United States treasury's combined offering of $500,000,000 in three year notes and one year certificates brought subscriptions of more than $750,000,000, Secretary Mellon announced.

CANADA DRY CO. VOTES REGULAR 75 CT. DIVIDEND

Directors of Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc., yesterday voted the regular quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share. In announcing the dividend action, President P. D. Saylor said that during the first eight months of the fiscal year the company earned just short of the full yearly dividend requirements of $3 a share.

"Our fiscal year started Oct. 1," he said. "In the first quarter we earned 40 cents a share and 92 cents a share in the second quarter ended March 31. The first month of this quarter we earned 95 cents a share."

Insurance Commissioners Fill Office Vacancies

Officers were elected to fill vacancies in the executive committee of the National Association of Insurance commissioners in convention at the Stevens hotel yesterday. Commissioner Charles D. Livingston was chosen vice president, Commissioner W. A. Tarver of Texas, chairman of the executive committee, and Dan C. Boney of North Carolina, member of the committee.

Amer. Smelting Cuts Dividend; Newmont Co. Omits Payment

Three mining companies yesterday readjusted dividend rates bringing total of downward dividend revisions by mining companies this year to seventeen.

The American Smelting and Refining company reduced the quarterly payment from $1 to 50 cents a share, with the result that the annual basis was lowered from $4 to $2. The Newmont Mining company omitted the quarterly dividend of $1 a share due at this time, while the Howe Sound company by declaring a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, compared with 75 cents paid previously, reduced the annual basis from $3 to $2 a share.

The reduction in the dividend of the American Smelting and Refining company is the first made since the old $100 par value common stock was exchanged for new no par value common stock in January, 1929, in the ratio of three new shares for each old share.

The Newmont Mining company, which is a holding company, also had paid the regular cash dividend all through the depression until yesterday. The stock was put on a $4 annual cash basis in 1928. The company also had been paying 6 per cent in stock but omitted the stock dividend in April, 1930. The reduction in the dividend of the Howe Sound company was the second made this year.

Omits Payment.

Directors of Mexican Petroleum company have omitted the quarterly dividend of $3 on the common stock due at this time. The quarterly dividend of $2 on the preferred was declared, payable July 20 to stockholders of record June 30.

Meeting of directors of Skelly Oil company to act on the $1.50 quarterly dividend on the 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock has been adjourned until June 22.

Lehigh Portland Cement company omitted its quarterly dividend of 25 cents on common stock due Aug. 1 and Taggart Corporation has omitted the quarterly dividend of 50 cents due on its class A.

The Ritter Dental company declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents a share on the common stock, placing the issue on a $1.50 a share annual basis, compared with $2.50 paid previously.

Other Dividend Actions.

Salt Creek Consolidated Oil company omitted the quarterly dividend due at this time. In the preceding quarter the dividend was reduced from 10 cents to 7 cents a share. Kelly Island Lime and Transport company declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, reducing the annual basis from $2.50 to $2.

Family Loan Society, Inc., declared an extra dividend of 37½ cents a share on its participating preferred in addition to the quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share. Finance Company of America declared an initial quarterly dividend of 87½ cents a share on its class A preferred stock.

Pacific Investment corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 75 cents a share, placing its stock on a $3 basis, compared with $6 previously paid.

I. C. C. Permits Santa Fe Line to Potash Field

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company has been authorized by the interstate commerce commission to construct a five mile line in Eddy county, New Mexico, to reach a large deposit of potash. The line will start near Loving Station, New Mexico, and run in an easterly direction. The commission said it had been informed that the annual consumption of potash in the United States was approximately 270,000 tons, of which over 90 per cent goes into fertilizer. The company operating the deposit contemplates establishment of a refinery near the eastern end of the new line.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 16.—The stock market was dull today. It was so quiet in Wall street you could have heard a feather drop. There were shares for sale, money to buy them with and traders to complete the deals—but there was no business. It was just another day of pencil sharpening.

When the head of the adding machine squad knocked off punching the keys, the total sales for the day looked like a score by innings report of the Cincinnati Reds, there were so many zeros. All in all there were 1,100,000 shares traded and if a comparison is needed it can be found in the records of the spring of 1928, for the market has not seen such a dull day since.

The market opened dull and irregular. Noon found it inactive and uninspiring. It closed dull and irregular. This was, of coures, due to the fact that initiative was lacking on both sides.

Wall Street Naps On.

Initiative, however, was not the only thing lacking. Those of the traders who had returned from last week-end's holiday had not completed putting two and two together or adding up their golf scores or whatever it is they always do in between week-ends when there is no money to be made in the market.

Wall street just napped on. Nobody

THE Background OF THE BOND MARKET

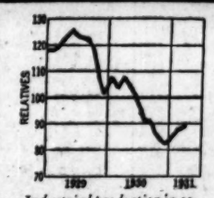
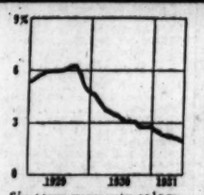
Sound judgment of investment values must be founded upon the basic factors that affect securities and their markets. The charts herewith present graphically some of these important fundamentals as they exist today. They are of timely interest and help to investors who seek sound and adequate information upon which to base their decisions.

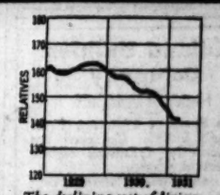
GENERAL BUSINESS AND ECONOMIC TRENDS



Industrial production in reduced volume has released funds for investment. Chart adjusted for seasonal fluctuations; 1923-1925=100.

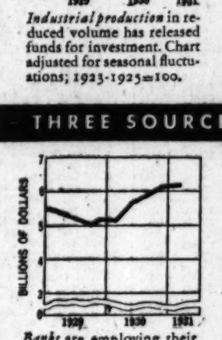


Short term money rate, at lowest recorded levels, reflect reduced demand for commercial credit. Chart shows 4-6 Months Prime Commercial Paper.

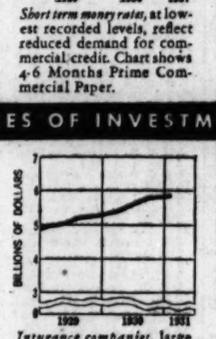


The declining cost of living means that the bondholder's fixed income buys more. (July, 1914=100).

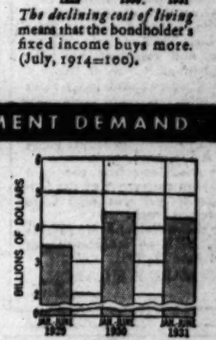
THREE SOURCES OF INVESTMENT DEMAND



Banks are employing their reserve funds increasingly in bonds. Chart shows investments (excluding U. S. Gov. obligations and stock holdings) of all Federal Reserve member banks.

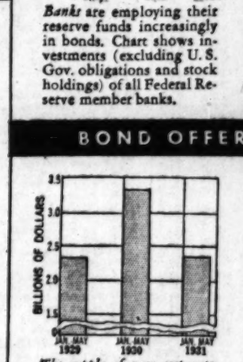


Insurance companies, large bond buyers, have steadily added to their holdings. Chart shows security investments, 98⅝% of which are bonds, of 40 leading life insurance companies.



Interest and dividend payments have continued an important factor in demand for bonds.

BOND OFFERINGS AND YIELD TRENDS



The supply of new corporate and municipal bond offerings is only moderately large.

Demand has been largely concentrated in the gilt-edge class, causing yields to decline. Chart shows average yield of 15 gilt-edge corporate bonds.

Less recognized issues have been neglected, resulting in high yields. Chart shows average yield of 15 less recognized corporate bonds.

CHICAGO ELECTRICAL MEN ASK HIGH COURT TO VOID INJUNCTION

Washington, D. C., June 16.—(AP)—The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, local union No. 134, and others asked the Supreme court today to set aside an injunction granted by the federal courts in Chicago restraining them in a dispute with the Western Union Telegraph company.

The labor organizations in Chicago covered by the injunction included many engaged in building trades. They protested the controversy as strictly local in character and their refusal to work on buildings where the Western Union had employés installing its service was based entirely on union rules which prohibited them from working where nonunion labor was employed.

The Western Union charged the labor unions had violated its rights, intended to boycott and blacklist it, and that their action had resulted in restraining it in its interstate commerce.

The labor union contended the lower federal courts had no jurisdiction under the Clayton and Sherman acts to issue the injunction, that the hazard was imposed on them of correctly guessing what it forbids, and insisted they had the right to refuse to work on the same job or building with nonunion workers.

COTTON UP $1.50 BALE

Spot houses and shorts were good buyers of cotton yesterday. Part of the important buying that absorbed the offerings early in the day were credited to local professionals who were covering and found offerings light. Later in the day prices were advanced by renewed spot house buying and also by purchases for domestic and foreign account. Weather conditions on the whole were showery but regarded as beneficial. Traders took the buying as one of the first signs of a healthier condition in the market and sentiment became a little more bullish. Liverpool closed strong and 4 points net higher with spot sales of 4,000 bales. The Association of Cotton Textile Merchants report sales during May at 71 per cent of production and shipments 9.1 per cent. Stocks of goods owned by mills at the end of the month were 7 per cent larger and unfilled orders decreased 18.5 per cent.

At the close futures in Chicago were up 22@24 points, New Orleans 24@28 points and New York 23@28 points. Spots in New York were up 30 points, equal to $1.50 a bale, reaching 8.95c, while New Orleans was up 25 points to 8.70c, with Galveston 8.90c and Houston 8.75c. Prices follow:

JULY CORN SELLS AHEAD OF WHEAT FOR SAME MONTH

Reports Continue of Crop Damage in Canada.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

July wheat and corn parted company yesterday, with July corn going to a fractional premium over wheat. The latter declined as the result of a bearish construction placed on a statement by Chairman Stone of the farm board, saying that the government holdings would continue to be offered for sale abroad as long as it did not disturb the world's market. Corn, however, acted tight and advanced on short covering, closing ¼c above the final figures on the nearby delivery of wheat, compared with a discount of ⅜c Monday.

The steady increase in the movement of the new winter wheat crop in the southwest, with 18 cars reported at Fort Worth, Tex., and 5 cars at Wichita, Kas., combined with the abnormally slow foreign demand for this season of the year, apparently outweighs all bullish crop comments from the Canadian northwest.

All of the new crop deliveries sold within a fraction of the lowest figures of the season early, with July touching 55⅞c, but the slack was taken out of the market by holders of bids and a rally of around ½c from the inside followed with the close unchanged to ⅛c lower, July being 57⅛c to 57⅛c; September, 57¼c to 57⅜c and December at 60⅝c to 61c.

Elevator Interests Buy.

Elevator interests were buyers of July and sellers of September wheat at the same price and some of the locals did likewise, but the aggregate trade was light and the market easily influenced, with some buying on the strength in corn. Winnipeg closed ⅛@1c lower in the face of sensationally bullish crop comments from the prairie provinces, with the July 60c at the last or only 1c under Liverpool. The latter was ⅝@1¼d lower due to a limited United Kingdom and continental demand for cash wheat.

The Canadian northwest promises to harvest a small wheat crop this season under the most favorable weather conditions from now to harvest. The Lake of the Woods crop report as wired from Winnipeg said in part:

"Throughout the whole of central and southern Saskatchewan and parts of central and eastern Alberta crops have suffered and are still suffering severly, and regardless of future moisture conditions, these districts hold little promise of anything except very light yields. As this area comprises well over half the total wheat acreage of the three provinces, the situation is very alarming. While it can be remedied somewhat by immediate and heavy rains and favorable growing weather, damage has been severe and there could not be any material change in present prospects."

Winnipeg Crop Estimate.

A leading Winnipeg line elevator company estimated the condition of the wheat crop in the prairie provinces at 70, compared with its estimate of 73 made two weeks ago, although during that period more or less moisture has been received. Stooling is reported as 60 per cent of normal. The Saskatchewan official report said crops in the central and southern areas were generally poor and in some of the south central districts are too badly damaged to recover. With ideal conditions in the latter area it was regarded as impossible to produce a crop even approximately the average.

Scattered short covering developed in July corn and found offerings small, advancing the nearby delivery to around 51¼c over the September, with the close ⅝c higher at 57¼c to 57⅝c, while the deferred months were ⅛@⅜c higher, September being 52¾c, and December, 46c to 46¼c. The latter sold at 46⅛c early, equalling the inside figure of the season.

While there was some increase in country offerings to arrive, and purchases of 58,000 bu were reported there were 71,000 bu sold for shipment and a local industry was credited with having bought 100,000 bu from elevators.

Oats Under Pressure.

July and September oats were under pressure from scattered longs early and dropped to a new low for the season, the former selling at 25c, the lowest price since April, 1901 when it was down to 24½c. In 1896 both deliveries sold as low as 15c, and the July did not get above 28c for about 8 years afterwards. Future finished ⅛@¼c lower with July, 25½c September, 26¼c, and December, 28⅛c. New oats were reported as selling at Gainesville, Tex., at 15c per bu.

The fall rye crop in the Canadian northwest is regarded as a practical failure by the Lake of the Woods Milling company report. In 1930 about 75 per cent of the total rye acreage in Canada was in the three provinces with an aggregate crop of 22,000,000 bu of winter and spring. Futures, however, closed ⅝@¾c lower with July, 37¾c; September, 39¼c, and December, 41⅝c.

Argue Suit to Foreclose on Goodrich Line Bonds

Arguments on a motion to foreclose on five bond issues of the Goodrich Transit company lines on the S. S. Alabama and other of the company's boats were begun yesterday before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. The motion was brought by the bondholders who aver $170,000 is now due on issues totaling $700,000. Col. Cassius Poust, attorney for the operating receivers, Capt. Edward Taylor and George F. Getz, protested on the ground the line is now under federal jurisdiction and operation during the peak summer season would be ended by foreclosure. Judge Woodward is expected to take the motion under advisement on the conclusion of arguments.

PRODUCTON OF NEW LIFE INSURANCE IS DOWN 10.7% IN MAY

The production of new life insurance in May was 10.7 per cent less than in the corresponding month of 1930, while the cumulative total of new business for the first five months of this year was 12.3 per cent less than the volume for the same period a year ago. These facts are shown by a statement forwarded by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents to the United States department of commerce.

The report aggregates the figures, exclusive of revivals, increases, and dividend additions, of forty-four member companies having in force 82 per cent of the total insurance outstanding in all United States legal reserve companies.

Industrial insurance, according to the report, which showed decreases during each of the first four months of 1931, in comparison with 1930, showed an increase in May of 2.7 per cent over the amount for the same month of the preceding year.

For May, the total new business of all classes written by the forty-four companies was $950,658,000, against $1,097,740,000 during May of 1930, a decrease of 10.7 per cent. New ordinary insurance amounted to $672,519,000, against $776,394,000, a decrease of 13.4 per cent. Indöstrial insurance amounted to $236,294,000, against $230,083,000, an increase of 2.7 per cent, while group insurance was $71,845,000, against $91,263,000, a decrease of 21.3 per cent.

During the five month period the total new business of these companies was $4,833,797,000 this year, against $5,512,771,000 last year, a decrease of 12.3 per cent. New ordinary insurance amounted to $3,277,008,000, against $3,944,050,000, a decrease of 16.9 per cent. Industrial insurance amounted to $1,141,100,000, against $1,186,467,000, a decrease of 2.2 per cent, while group insurance amounted to $414,785,000, against $402,251,000, an increase of 3.1 per cent.

EGG FUTURES LOWER

After opening slightly weaker on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday in sympathy with somewhat heavier receipts in the eastern and local markets butter held steady during most of the call, storage report showing lighter storing than year ago, but buying developed at the close, prices recovering ½c from the day's low. With the finish unchanged to ¼c off. Eggs, after opening ¼c lower sold off sharply, receipts being considerably heavier and storage news regarded as bearish. The lower price attracted some buying, with the close ⅝@¾c off. Potato trading was slow, closing 1c lower to 1c higher. Poultry, 100 cars; eggs, 106 cars; potatoes, 3 cars. Top yesterday, $8.85; average, $7.50.

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 8,000; hogs, 17,000; sheep, 8,000.

Hogs strengthened up yesterday after a steady to 10c lower opening and finished mostly 5@10c above the general selling of the previous day. A decidedly stronger undertone was noted early in the day and most interests scrambled for stock when prices slipped a little during the first round. Cattle ruled steady to strong, some of the best steers showing slight gains. Lambs were steady to 25c lower, thousands of head from the new crop selling at the lowest prices of the season late in the day.

The extreme top price for hogs at $7.05 was paid numerous times in midsession and later and some that were bid that price were held off the market for later in the week. The general average price moved up 5c at $6.50. Some of the largest droves of hogs were costing fully steady and many droves to eastern interests figured 5@10c higher than on the previous session.

Good shipping demand for hogs has been a boon to the trade. Outside demand is the broadest since early last March. Although receipts are larger than a week ago, they are below normal for this time of the year. The two day total at the eleven markets at 189,000 shows a decrease of 58,000 head or 23 per cent compared with a year ago.

Next Month's Hogs Bid $7.

Light weight hogs for July and August delivery were bid $7.00 on the futures market yesterday, but $7.50 was the lowest offer at the close. September contracts were offered at $7.65 and bid $7.25. Mediums for September delivery were offered at $7.75 and bid $7.25, while heavy grades for September were offered at $7.65 and bid $7.25. Light weights for today's delivery carried bids of $7.00 on the "to arrive" market.

Although the demand in the cattle yards shows a preference for yearlings and light steers, prime 1,250 lbs, steers sold at $8.80, within 5c of the extreme top for baby beef yearlings averaging 878 lbs. Although eastern demand is broadest since early in May, local packers are active competitors lately and are paying some of the highest prices for choice stock. Armour paid the extreme top of $8.85.

So far this month outsiders have purchased 32 per cent of Chicago receipts, against 25 per cent during the same period in 1930. Best corn fed cows and heifers were strong, while butcher stock showing "grass" ruled weak to lower. Calves ruled stronger. Stockers and feeders were scarce and unchanged.

Nine Dollar Lambs Gone.

For the first time since 1913 prices for the new crop of lambs have slipped below the $9.00 line. Yesterday's extreme top for fat Idaho range lambs averaging 79 lbs dropped to $8.85, while about 2,700 of them sold at $8.75. Best natives stopped at $8.50 and the bulk of good kinds changed hands at $8.25, also new low levels.

Two weeks ago Idahos sold up to $10.60 and about the middle of last month $12.00 was paid for tops from

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Wheat traders are drifting along without making progress in either direction. Large traders are said to be bearish and there is a good sized following of the smaller operators who lean to the selling side on bulges. Market fluctuations from day to day mainly are within 1 to 1½ cents, and traders await an increased marketing movement of new wheat, which they expect will bring hedging sales and eventually lower prices. Spreaders are buying July and selling September at the same prices and there is a little hedging coming from the southwest which attracts moderate attention. Fort Worth and Oklahoma points appear to be a factor in the greater part of the new wheat that is moving. Millers are expected to absorb a large part of the wheat marketed in the next 30 days. Those who are buying July and selling September expect to get a delivery of the new wheat.

"We think that during July the farm board's offering of wheat might hinder considerably Canadian business abroad and therefore cannot feel friendly to the Winnipeg spread as usual," says the Uhlmann Grain company. Fred Uhlmann, who is in Winnipeg, wired his house that the wheat crop still depends upon weather from now on and indications are that there will be some fairly good showers in the provinces as well as in the Dakotas over night. If these materialize it is only natural to assume there will be an improvement, just as there has been from scattered rains during the last two weeks.

Canadian wheat shipments this week were 6,070,000 bu, against 7,262,000 bu last week, according to Broomhall. Total since August 1, 1930, were 227,874,000 bu, against 156,294,000 bu for corresponding period a year ago.

E. H. Miller, the J. E. Bennett & Co. crop statistician, who is in the Canadian northwest, wired from Moose Jaw, Sask.: "Summerberry to Indian Head to Regina the country is brown; condition of crop very poor. Regina to Moose Jaw some fields better, due to local rains. Without moisture entire section will produce very little."

"Marketing of new wheat in the southwest has more than offset sensational drought conditions in the Canadian and our northwest," says George E. Booth of Lamson Bros. & Co. "Sales of new wheat in Kansas City Monday reported 15c over Kansas City July, or 76 to 77 cents. Chicago is showing a good demand for this first run of new wheat. The price level for new wheat, based on Chicago September, figures 45 to 50 cents to Illinois farmers and 42 to 47 cents to Iowa farmers and surely discounts extreme bearish crop and economic conditions."

A late cable from Paris said the French chamber has issued an order permitting French millers to use 30 per cent of foreign wheat in their manufacture of flour. This is an increase of 5 per cent.

It is said that many cash wheat handlers who some time ago sold their wheat to the farm board agencies are buying a considerable portion of it back at prices established by the farm board some time ago. The rate originally fixed was for an advance of ⅛ cent a bu every 10 days, starting at 32 cents about April 1.

the new crop of natives. Yearlings slumps 25c, the best falling to $6.75 against $9.25 early in May when they were classed as aged shorn lambs. Aged sheep were weak at prevailing quotations.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 8,000 cattle, 17,000 hogs and 8,000 sheep, against 11,585 cattle, 16,161 hogs, and 14,708 sheep, the previous Wednesday, and 9,558 cattle, 27,889 hogs, and 14,330 sheep a year ago.
